Restored Pay Hopes Vanish; House Passes Economy Bill

Republicans, Insurgent Democrats Beaten, 240 to 141.

Senate to Keep 10 Per Cent Cut

Strong Administration Grip Upon Congress Is Revealed.

An optimistic drive by Republicans and pay-cut opponents among the Democrats crumpled last night before a preponderant Democratic majority in the House, and the independent offices appropriations bill was passed, virtually without amendments.

A motion to recommit the bill was defeated on a roll call vote, 240 to 141, and with it went the last chance of Government employes receiving more than a 5 per cent pay restoration in 1935, except by Senate action or Executive order.

Heartened by the close vote of the preceding day, in which a drastic gag rule preventing amendments to the economy provisions of the bill won by a majority of only 5 votes, Republican leaders and insurgent Democrats in the House launched a vigorous attempt yesterday to consolidate their gains against the Administration grip on Congress.

Fall Back in Line.

The test vote, however, found most of the Democrats back in line, after the majority steering committee had considered the necessity for a party caucus to check the revolt.

Democratic leaders admittedly were worried on the close vote by which President Roosevelt's hold on the House was sustained Thursday, and much of yesterday afternoon was devoted to organization plans while the bill was being debated and read.

Under the gag rule, amendments conflicting with the economy rider to the offices bill were held out of order yesterday, as was an attempt by Representative Richard B. Wigglesworth (Republican), Massachusetts, to have the measure sent back to committee with instructions to strike out Title II, covering the economy provisions.

With the Democratic benches once more packed for a show of strength, the House then voted down a motion of Representative Edward P. Goss (Republican), Connecticut, to recommit the bill, 240 to 141.

Bill Goes to Senate.

The offices bill now goes to the Senate Appropriations Committee, which probably will respect the President's desire that the economy rider provide for retention of a 10 per cent Federal pay cut in 1935.

When the measure reaches the Senae floor, however, anything may happen. There is also a possibility that surveys made for President Roosevelt in the next year or so may lead him to restore an additional part of the wage reduction.

The bill, carrying a total of $566,435,693, was passed with only one opposition amendment. Representative Snell, of New York, Republican floor leader, moved to reduce the World Copyright Demands Termed "Outrageous."

Chicago, Jan. 12 (AP).—Tomorrow afternoon's grand opera matinee of "Manon" was canceled by Director Paul Longone today with the announcement the French owners of the world copyright demanded "outrageous" fees.

Longone said the owners asked $1,500 contract rights and $750 royalty fees for the performance. The opera had been in rehearsal for a month.

Winship Replaces Gore As Puerto Rico Chief

Roosevelt Names Army General to Succeed Retiring Governor.

Accepting the resignation of Robert H. Gore as Governor of Puerto Rico, President Roosevelt yesterday sent to the Senate the nomination of Maj. Gen. Blanton Winship, former Judge Advocate General of the Army, as his successor.

In this change he replaced the Florida publisher, who was troubled both by island politics and ill health, by a veteran in insular affairs, who retired only November 30 last, after a life-long career in the Army, as soldier, lawyer and diplomat.

Announcing the resignation of Gov. Gore, the White House made public an exchange of letters in which the President, addressing the governor as "My dear Bob," expressed regret that ill health had prompted him to ask retirement.

The resignation was followed a few hours later by a list of nominations sent to the Senate, which included that of Gen. Winship. By his appointment, which was referred to the Senate Territories and Insular Affairs Committee, it was believed the President was hopeful the Puerto Rican situation would be cleared.

Meanwhile, Senator Bronson Cutting (Republican), of New Mexico, indicated after a conference with the President that the next move toward Philippine independence is up to the Filipinos. The present Hawes-Cutting bill, providing gradual freedom, already rejected by

French Bond Quiz Pledged By Premier

Confidence Twice Voted on Promise to Sift Bayonne Scandal.

Paris, Jan. 12 (AP).—The Chamber of Deputies tonight gave Premier Camille Chautemps an overwhelming vote of confidence, 360 against 229, on his pledge to clean up the $40,000,000 Bayonne pawnshop scandal.

The vote came on the government's opposition to the creation of a parliamentary commission to investigate the collapse of the institution, the death of its founder, Serge Stavisky, and the part several deputies have accussed high officials of taking in the affair.

Confidence Twice Voted.

The premier insisted that such a commission would not get to the bottom of the charges.

A second expression of confidence, 376 against 205, was given on a resolution of faith in M. Chautemps' promises to investigate the scandal "personally" and "sparing no names."

The latter resolution was offered by former Premier Edouard Herriot.

Threats of a dictatorship profoundly stirred the chamber which was in a virtual state of siege as it voted with several thousand foot and mounted police, behind barricades, awaiting further attacks by Royalists.

The premier himself warned that the Royalist riots on Tuesday and yesterday over the bond scandal pointed to a threatened coup d'etat to establish a "directory."

Troops in Readiness.

Thousands of troops were in readiness for action in Paris to put down any serious disorders.

The Chamber had previously been unexpectedly adjourned this afternoon by its president in the midst of boos, desk banging and shouts that followed the declarations of Deputy Jean Ybarnegaray that "unless the country were cleaned up quickly" it faced a dictatorship and that "the police assassinated Stavisky to protect officials alleged to have had a part in the pawnshop failure.

M. Chautemps heatedly denied the charge. Amid pandemonium, he said the financiar killed himself last Monday when secret service men tracked him to a hideout in Chamonix.

Man Cleared in Shooting.

Baker, Fla., Jan. 12 (AP).—A coroner's jury today exonerated Aaron W. Baker, school bus driver, for the fatal shooting last night of L. L. Shaw, during an altercation over a small piece of land in which three persons were slain and a fourth critically wounded.

Utilities Code Called Veiled Power "Grab"

Ickes and Commission Join to Challenge NRA Authority.

(Associated Press.)

A denunciation of the private power industry and its ruling elements for "unsocial conduct" and "nefarious practices" was given the recovery administration last night by a spokesman for Secretary Ickes, who joined the Federal Power Commission in challenging the right of the Administration to entertain codes for public utilities.

The verbal castigation, directed expressly at the Edison Electric Institute, proponent of the code, was delivered by Henry B. Hunt, on behalf of Ickes, at a public hearing.

So vehemently did he phrase it that John E. Zimmerman, president of United Gas Improvement Co. of Philadelphia, asked the chairman to stop him. This was not done. Hunt insisted his statements were "factual" and borne out by the record of the Federal Trade Commission power investigation.

McNinch Joins Attack.

Both hunt and Frank R. McNinth, chairman of the Power Commission, assailed many provisions of the code as either intentional attempts or unguarded opportunities for the institute to seize much of the power over the industry held by the United State and the several States, and designed to weaken the Government and municipally-operated power properties.

Their chief contention, however, was that codes are authorized only for nonmonopolistic industries and that the only thing the Administration should do was obtain an agreement to improve hours and wages.

Representatives Kvale and Lundeen, both Farmer-Labor members of Congress from Minnesota, joined in the attack.

A further onslaught was made by spokesmen for workers of the New York Edison Co., who charged that concern with creating a company

Five Dixie Flyer Coaches Derailed

Nashville, Tenn., Jan. 12 (AP).—The Nashville office of the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis Railway reported five coaches of the southbound Dixie Flyer, passenger train, were derailed 23 miles north of Chattanooga today.

No deaths were reported among either passengers or trainmen. Injuries were described as minor. Officials said they believed a broken rail caused the cars to leave the track.

Health Resort Amid Arctic Ice Projected by Russian Doctors

New York, Jan. 12.—A new type of health resort in the frozen Arctic is proposed by Russian physicians and scientists.

Russians claim to have found in the frozen North, something more practical than the fabled fountain of youth in Florida, a place where even broken bones mend more easily.

A special medical commission will be sent to the Arctic next June to select a site for "the first health resort in the world beyond the Polar circle." Plans emphasize the supposed health values of the Arctic winter more than the better known Polar summers.

In the first place, says a summary of the reasons for this venture, Soviet Arctic expeditions during many years of work have failed to find any specific disease characteristic of the Arctic.

M. Kogan, a surgeon, who wintered in Spitzbergen, emphasized the easy course of healing processes in persons suffering from fractured bones.

"Complete recovery occurred in cases in which under ordinary conditions amputation would have seemed unavoidable."

The report emphasizes the observations of the senior naval surgeon of the icebreaker Krassin. In several years' experience in the Arctic there were no outbreaks of colds, bronchitis and pneumonia aboard the vessel.

"Passing the night on the snow at a temperature of 50 degrees below zero," the summary says, "never affected the health of people, who came even for the first time to the Arctic regions. This indicates the temperatures of the Arctic, in spite of their severity and duration, seem not harmful to human health."

Board Favors D. C. Alleys Elimination

Commissioners Approve Capper-Norton Bill Provisions.

Post Campaign Praised by Officials Who Desire Clean-up.

Elimination of Washington's hidden alleys, an improvement advocated in a series of articles now appearing in The Post, has the hearty approval of the District Commissioners, the Commissioners informed Representative Mary N. Norton, chairman of the House District Committee, yesterday.

The Commissioners told Representative Norton they favor the purposes of the Capper-Norton bill, which provides a revolving fund of $500,000 to be used over a period of 10 years for alley elimination. The bill was passed by the Senate at the special session and is now before the House District Committee.

The Commissioners called attention to restrictions placed by the Budget Bureau on District expenditures, which, they said, prevented them from formally asking passage of the measure.

Housing Funds Urged.

At the same time, they pointed out that the funds provided in the bill are to be appropriated from the unexpected balance of the United States Housing Corporation, formed during the war, and not from District funds.

Reporting to the House District Committee, the Commissioners said: "The Commissioners have noted that District funds are not involved and that $500,000 of the unexpended funds of the corporate funds of the United States Housing Corporation will be made available under the terms of the bill for the purposes of inaugurating the program contemplated.

Great Benefit Seen.

"The Commissioners are heartily in favor of the purposes of the bill as they believe the elimination of alley dwellings would be of great benefit to the District."

The previous Board of Commissioners, headed by Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer, expressed a similar attitude toward the bill last summer.

A complete explanation of the provisions of the Capper-Norton alley elimination bill will be printed in The Post tomorrow as the eighth of a series of articles by Felix Bruner on Washington's hidden alleys.

Rosenberg, Chicago Ward Boss, Is Dead

Fails to Rally; Indicted on Income Tax Evasion.

Chicago, Jan. 12 (AP).—Moe Rosenberg, West Side politician and wealthy junk dealer, under indictment for evasion of Federal income taxes, died in a hospital today.

Rosenberg was indicted last April for alleged failure to pay some $64,000 in income taxes for the years of 1929 and 1930. Trial of the case was delayed because of his illness.

Rosenberg, friend and political ally of the late Mayor Anton Cermak, was stricken on New Year's Eve.

23 Bodies Found In Andine Flood

Argentine Rivers Subside; High Damage Toll.

Mendoza, Argentina, Jan. 12 (AP).—Bodies of 23 persons drowned in yesterday's sudden flood were recovered today from the Mendoza River, which was known to hold other victims.

Authorities said the death total might approach 40. The river subsided as suddenly as it had risen, following thaws in the Andes and a cloudburst.

Five bridges of the Trans-Andine Railway and an unestimated amount of trackage were washed away. Shores of the river were strewn with the dead live stock, household goods and tree trunks.

Rails' Attack Of Waterway Denounced

Pittman Calls Carriers "Antiquated;" Scouts Fear of Losses.

By Franklin Waltman, Jr.

Opening the debate on the St. Lawrence Waterway Treaty, Senator Key Pittman (Democrat), Nevada, yesterday flayed the railroads as "antiquated" and guilty of inefficiency and deceiving their employes into taking a hostile attitude toward the international project.

Speaking in his capacity as chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, Senator Pittman struck at the "selfish ports" of the Atlantic and Gulf seaboard whose Senators form the basis of the bloc fighting the treaty. The Nevadan urged these members of the Senate to forget local consideration and take a National view of the project.

The Foreign Relations chairman was constantly heckled throughout his lengthy speech by opponents of the treaty; and although he struck at the heart of the opposition, there was no sign that the pact had won any more advocates. It is estimated that between 40 and 50 Senators are opposed to ratification—many more than enough to prevent the necessary two-thirds majority.

One Other Speaker.

The only other speaker was Senator John E. Erickson (Democrat), of Montana, who urged ratification to aid the "landlocked States." He said the treaty afforded the Northwest an opportunity to escape their disadvantage of being long distances from markets and industrial centers.

As he talked, Senator Pittman was challenged as to the estimate of cost of the project, several Senators suggesting that the actual cost to the United States might be two or three times the $272,000,000 estimated. The Nevadan also was faced with a running fire of questions concerning the provision surrendering sovereignty over Lake Michigan and restricting water diversion from it.

As the debate proceeds, probably for many weeks off and on, it is possible reservations may be offered to the water diversion sections of the treaty. Adoption of such reservations would lighten the opposition among the Illinois and Mississippi Valley Senators. But, at the same time, it might make the treaty unacceptable to Canada.

Senator Pittman said the opposition of New York City and other Atlantic ports was understandable, because "they will lose some freight." But, he added, "they will lose freight because it can be transported cheaper through the St. Lawrence River than by rail to these ports, or they would not lose it."

Summarizes Issue.

"So the whole issue," he continued, "comes down to whether we are going to benefit these ports by paying a higher price to ship the freight to the seaboard, or whether we are going to benefit the shipper

Liquor Bill Bans Felons As Operators

House Committee Writes Volstead Clause Into Control Measure.

The shadow of the repudiated Volstead law was thrown across post-repeal liquor control in the National Capital by the Senate District Committee yesterday.

No persons convicted of a violation of the Volstead law within the last 10 years could be licensed to handle alcoholic beverages under an amendment written into the House bill by the committee. The bill forbade licensing of persons convicted of felonies. The amendment would extend the proscription to misdemeanors.

The amendment was one of several adopted by the committee during all day executive session preparatory to a final test on the question whether a dispensary or licensing system is to be recommended for the District.

Decision on that question is to be made at another meeting called for this morning by Senator William H. King (Democrat), Utah, chairman. At the end of the session yesterday the committee was divided, 8 to 7, for the licensing system. None of the license advocates will switch, but one or more of the dispensary advocates may, giving the licensing system a majority of two or more votes.

As work of the committee approached conclusion District officials made ready to speed preparation of regulations, selection of members of the control board and preparation of estimates for the requisite appropriation.

Commissioner George E. Allen and William W. Bride, corporation counsel, who sat with the committee, said regulations would be drafted and made public by next Thursday, and members of the board would be selected by Saturday. Request for the appropriation would be made immediately the control measure was enacted, they said.

Report of the committee is to be

Bankers' Pleas Incensed Ford, Edsel Reveals

"High Command" Asked Leniency at Detroit, Examiner Says.

Edsel Ford, multimillionaire son of a multimillionaire father, shared the honors before yesterday's Senate investigation into the Detroit bank collapse with a National bank examiner, whose picturesque language made up for what he lacked in millions.

From Ford, the senators learned that his father, Henry, "very incensed" at frequent pleas for financial aid by Detroit bankers, had refused a final loan. The next day all the banks in Michigan were closed.

The bank examiner told the investigators that the "high command" in the White House and the Treasury had ordered leniency in dealing with Michigan banks, even though they received consistent reports on their unsound conditions.

Despite the Government's forbearance during 1931 and 1932 of the Hoover Administration, despite the $16,000,000 that Ford, father and son, had previously thrown into the hard-pressed Detroit-Guardian group banks, and, perhaps, as some contend, because of Ford's refusal of a last $5,000,000 the huge group system collapsed. The next day the Michigan State bank holiday was ordered, and, the day after President Roosevelt's inauguration, the National moratorium was called.

Young Ford, who made his second and last appearance before the Senate Banking Committee in a brilliant glare of Kleig lights for Movietone machines, told a quietly dramatic story of the events leading up to the State bank closing.

He said officials of the group devised a plan to ask for aid from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, in which Ford concurred. Asked if he did not know that the unit banks were already under heavy obligations, the witness replied:

"Yes. I knew they had secured

President Declares His Course Is Clear Under Law.

50-Cent Valuation May Be Objective

Important MoveBelieved Near Impounding of Gold Plan.

By Elliott Thurston.

President Roosevelt has set the stage for the most important monetary moves since the country left the gold standard and headed for his avowed goal of a managed currency.

Attorney General Cummings announced yesterday that he had delivered to the White House a formal legal opinion on the President's authority to order into the Treasury approximately $3,600,000,000 of gold held by the Federal Reserve System, and Mr. Roosevelt shortly thereafter declared that he possessed full authority to take over this gold.

Such a step foreshadows revaluation of the dollar, in gold, possibly at its present level of approximately 64 cents—especially if the Administration hopes to do it under an exchange agreement with Great Britain—or perhaps at the 50-cent level, representing the full limit of his authority under the Thomas amendment, if he is to follow the urgings of the so-called inflationist bloc in Congress, which wants the "50-cent" dollar.

Vital Moves Are Pending.

If he takes the counsel of some of his most important close advisers these steps will be followed at once by establishment of a free gold market, with the Government offering to buy or sell gold at $41.34 an ounce (in case the full limit of revaluation is decided upon). Or, it is possible that the President may elect to start out by a revaluation equivalent to the present RFC artificial price for domestic newly mined gold, $34.06 an ounce. This would approximate a "60-cent" dollar.

Whatever the exact terms may turn out to be, and irrespective of whether agreement is possible or sought with Great Britain, it is now manifest from White House, Justice Department and Treasury sources that vitally important new moves are impending, under political, inflationary pressure from Congress and to prepare the way for the heavy Treasury financing required by the budget.

The possibilities are many and varied, involving complex legal questions, but portending an end of the recent RFC gold-buying manipulations and an effort to end the monetary uncertainty which many of the President's advisers contend is standing in the way of recovery.

Danger Rife in Move.

A "50-cent dollar," representing the full limit of the President's authority to reduce the gold content of the dollar by 50 per cent, appears more probable at the moment because of the absence of any indication that the Administration has again sought agreement with the British, because of the political pressure for going "the limit" of existing authority and because of the impulse to go the limit now

Enforced Crop Control Plan Eyed by AAA

Confiscatory Tax Would Whip Recalcitrant South Into Line.

By Raymond Clapper.

(Copyright, 1934, by The Washington Post.)

After a trial season in voluntary efforts to reduce farm crops, the Administration is beginning to turn its eyes tentatively toward an experiment in compulsory resrtiction.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and his assistants are aware that a vital weakness of the AAA plan of buying cooperation in restricting acreage through benefit payments to farmers will show up increasingly as prices advance.

The plan is best adapted to a low-price period. When the farmer is getting less than cost for his wheat, cotton or hogs, he is glad to let his fields lie partly fallow and put his hogs on a birth-control schedule and take his benefit payment from the Government. But as prices advance toward a profitable level, the farmer, being human, is tempted to stay outside AAA and go it alone, raising all he can.

With a season or two of that, crop restriction would again be as badly out of control as it was under the evangelical program of the Hoover farm board.

Because of this possibility, thought in the Agriculture Department is turning more inquisitively than ever toward compulsory restriction plans.

Bankhead Plan Studied.

The first to be given careful study is that which Senator John H. Bankhead of Alabama has proposed for regimenting cotton growing. He was in conference yesterday with Agriculture Department officials over his bill. Hearings are to begin Monday before the Senate Agriculture Committee.

Secretary Wallace and Assistant Secretary Tugwell have informed Senator Bankhead that they favor the principle of the measure and will support it if sentiment in the cotton States appears to be behind it.

The one question in Secretary Wallace's mind is whether the South is ready for this long stride. Senator Bankhead admits no doubts. He flourishes a sheaf of telegrams bearing dozens of signatures. When Secretary Wallace recently addressed a State-wide farm meeting in Birmingham resolutions were adopted calling for compulsory allotments of the number of bales each producer could take to the gin.

The farmers advocated this to get "protection from producers who seek selfish advantage by declining to cooperate with their fellow farmers in a balanced cotton-production program."

Letters coming in to the Agriculture Department echo the same thought. These have in some cases given strong warning that unless some compulsory check is imposed farmers will plant every acre they have to get in on the 10 cents or better price.

Jerome Frank, counsel for AAA and one of the legal minds in the brain trust, is favorable to the object of the Bankhead bill although he has suggested a number of technical and legal difficulties which may bring about major alterations in its mechanics.

Move Is Significant.

The cotton measure is of widest significance because it will serve as a testing ground for working out what may be the next advance toward a strictly regimented economy for agriculture. It is in short a proposal to apply the more hard-boiled NRA principles to one of the largest agricultural crops.

It is a plan to crack down on the recalcitrant 10 per cent in the cotton belt, instead of an attempt to buy cooperation by paying the farmer a "rental fee."

So far no definite proposal has been made to apply the principle to other crops. However, Secretary Wallace has on several recent occasions thrown out feelers to the effect that unless the country is willing to break down its tariff barriers and admit perhaps $1,000,000,000 in foreign goods annually to pay for farm exports forced crop regimentation will be the alternative.

Some in the confidence of the mild-mannered Iowa farmer suspect just a touch of guile in this. They believe he personally would rather see a revival of foreign trade and that he hopes that the dangling prospect of compulsory crop restriction may help soften the country's stony attitude toward goods with a foreign label.

As drawn now the Bankhead bill proposes that the Secretary of Agriculture should issue licenses to gin not more than 9,000 000 bales of cotton for 1934-35. After that he would use his discretion in fixing the size of the marketable crop. Allotments would be made to counties and then down to the individual farmer. Each farmer would be given a license to produce a certain amount of cotton. Ginners would be forbidden under criminal penalties to take any cotton not accompanied by the farmer's Federal license.

Favor Confiscatory Tax.

Largely for legal reasons the Agriculture Department has suggested that the ginner's license feature be stricken out and a confiscatory tax substituted. The first buyer of cotton from the farm would be compelled to pay a prohibitive tax of, say, 10 cents a pound on cotton not covered by an allotment license. So that as a practical thing, the farmer could not sell to anyone more than the Government had authorized him to grow. Senator Bankhead probably will accept this change.

Constitutional fears regarding the measure have mostly disappeared since the Supreme Court's Minnesota mortgage law decision, so that the concern now is rather with drafting the most workable procedure.

One difficulty is that nature can't be regulated. A farmer being allotted a crop of 150 bales might run into extra seasonable weather such as last year's and grow more than he anticipated. This surplus would be dammed up on his hands and few small cotton farmers would be able to carry over any large amount in excess of their seed needs.

On the other hand, if the weather was bad and he failed to raise his authorized 150 bales, would he—and of course all of his fellow cotton farmers—not come tearing to Washington to allege that the Government was morally obligated to give him the equivalent of his allotted 150 bales? Others have collected on moral obligations before. But Senator Bankhead does not regard any of these objections as insuperable.

2-5 of Federal Relief Needed For Children

Negro Families Compose 18.4 Per Cent of Total, U. S. Figures Show.

More than two-fifths of all persons receiving relief in this country are children under 16, according to figures made public yesterday by Corrington Gill, director of research and statistics in the Federal Emergency Relief Administration.

Gill's figures showed that 35 per cent of these children were of preschool age. It was also revealed that Negro families make up 18.4 per cent of the total number of families on the relief rolls, though the total number of Negro families in the country is only 9.4 per cent of the population.

An effort to meet the problem of needy children is being put forward by the recently organized National advisory committee on emergency nursery schools. A meeting of the committee was held yesterday to discuss plans under the direction of Dr. Mary Dabney Davis, of the United States Office of Education. Among those present were Dr. Abigail Eliot, of Boston; Lois Hayden Meek, Columbia University; Edna Dean Baker, Evanston; George D. Stoddard, University of Iowa; Edna N. White, Detroit, and Ralph Bridgman.

Code for Utilities Assailed as "Grab" union to suppress collective bargaining.

Code Presented.

The code was presented yesterday morning by Preston S. Arkwright, an Atlanta utility man who is chairman of the edison Institute code committee.

Outstanding clauses were: That wherever publicly owned plants wherever publicly-owned plants failed to adopt code terms, the competing private company could drop them.

That a National survey to rationalize the industry be made jointly by private and public interests.

That "public interest" requires sale of electric appliances by utility companies, and that the Power Code Authority have a degree of joint supervision over trade practices with the Retail Code Authority.

All three were assailed vigorously. McNinch said the phrasing of the code was such as actually to attempt to compel the public-owned utilities to come under a code authority wholly in the control of the large holding companies.

Would Hit Public Plants.

He said the purpose was obviously "to check the development of public enterprises and nullify the Administration's plan to measure fairness of utility rates and services and extending the benefits of electrification to rural areas."

He attacked the power survey proposal as being in conflict with that now under way, by Presidential order, at the Power Commission.

Hunt said the Interior Department and Public Works Administration, both under Ickes, had a huge stake in the power business. The Reclamation Bureau power plants now net the Government an income of $6,500,000 a year, he said, and this is to be increased soon by production at Boulder Dam, Grand Coulee and Casper Alcova.

He demanded a code should require control of the holding companies; that hours should be shortened to 30 and wages increased to a level of "decency and comfort;" and that it should make it impossible for the Edison Institute to "control the industry and continue the nefarious practices disclosed by the Federal Trade Commission."

Argentine Swelters.

Buenos Aires, Jan. 12 (AP).—Summer's most severe heat wave struck five principal Argentine provinces today as some recovered from effects of floods. Temperatures averaged from 95 to 100 degrees, with many communities reporting the mercury above 100.

Reserve Bank Gold Seizure Plan Is Upheld

Roosevelt Moves for Devaluation of Dollar.

rather than to leave any lingering fears of further gold content cutting later.

On the other hand, close advisers have warned that revaluation without British cooperation means chaos on the exchanges, and invites competitive devaluation on both sides of the Atlantic thereafter. Whether decisions have been reached on this point, or on a free gold market, which also involves the question of the "modernized gold standard," presumably a billion system, but with gold freely available to settle international balances, is as yet unrevealed.

It is, however, evident that the Administration would not be admittedly preoccupied with the subject of seizing the reserve system's gold—which is the old gold outstanding from the Treasury save minor sums allowable under the President's executive orders—unless highly important moves were imminent.

There would be no reason to take over the Reserve system's gold save as a preliminary to revaluation, and that in turn seems inseparable from resumption of redemption of dollars in gold, in some form and at some specified rate, for otherwise the revaluation would be sterile except possibly for temporary psychological effect. The sequential steps may be taken slowly, though Treasury financing problems counsel early decisions.

If Mr. Roosevelt is still impressed with the commodity dollar theories of Prof. George F. Warren—and there are evidences that he is not—it is possible that the revaluation might be set at some point under the "50-cent" dollar, with the idea of varying the gold content from time to time, to "adjust" it to commodity price indexes.

Would Perpetuate Experiment.

But for the President to try this would perpetuate experimentation which a majority of his advisers consider the chief obstacle to recovery—and to Treasury financing. The weight of advice given to him lately by all schools save Prof. Warren's, is heavily in favor of ending uncertainty, and fixing the gold content of the dollar with a finality intended to release private capital from fears of more and more depreciation.

That some momentous new step was impending was foreshadowed by the recent, highly secret, all-day session of the Federal Reserve Board with as many governors as could get here for the hastily called consultation. It has also been indicated by the holding of the RFC gold price around the $34.06 peak, by the failure of the RFC gold buying to influence commodity prices upward with any measurable consistency, by the entire political, financial and economic situation.

Now that the Treasury has to raise from eight to ten billions—the latter being the President's budget figure—before June 30, and faces additional heavy maturities and requirements thereafter, the preponderant opinion, inside the Government and out, has been that an end of "dollar doubts" was essential—that otherwise the Treasury might have to turn to "unorthodox" means, including greenbacks, to get the money.

Single Stroke Advised.

Not only has the President been advised that he should do all of his dollar devaluaing at once and get it over with in order to facilitate this financing but he has been reminded thatp rivate capital would probably be so released from its inhibiting fears of coming depreciation that it would again enter long term investment in heavy industry, construction, &c., thereby diminishing the needs for Governmental subsfitutes, if indeed it did not produce complete, authentic recovery.

There is no official guidance available as to whether Mr. Roosevelt has been won to this conception, whether he has actually discarded monetary manipulation, including the "rubber dollar," and whether the moves to impound the reserve banks' gold lead to the suggested sequences.

Nevertheless responsible opinion within the Administration strongly indicates the course toward the end of uncertainty, toward final revaluation, rather than toward more experimentation, or seizure of the gold in order merely to pay the Government's bills.

Class Day Held At Harrisonburg

Harrisonburg, Va., Jan. 12 (Spl.). One hundred and ninety sophomores, clad in white dresses with green sailor collars and white sailor caps, dominated the campus scene at the Harrisonburg State Teachers College today.

Choosing "Sailing to Success" as their motto for the annual class day, the sophomores conducted the morning assembly exercises of the college and held a banquet and reception in the evening.

Officers of the class are Misses Elizabeth Thweatt, Petersburg, Va., president; Sylvia Kamsky, Richmond, vice president; Mary Glover, Charleston, W. Va., secretary; Frances Wells, Suffolk, Va., treasurer; Virginia Cox, Woodlawn, Va., business manager, and Marguerite Holder, Winston-Salem, N. C., sergeant at arms.

Staunton to Kill Rats for 3 Weeks

Staunton, Va., Jan 12 (Spl.).—It's war on rats in Staunton for the next three weeks. With approval of the health department here, William F. Amann, of Washington, and a crew of three men today launched a campaign to eradicate the rats.

According to Government estimates the number of rats is usually twice the population of a community. Hence, the 12,000 persons in this community are wondering if they really are harboring about 24,000 rats.

Pittman Denounces Railroads And Urges Waterway Treaty

by paying a lower cost through the canal."

Contending this "selfishness of the ports" would lead them to do everything in their power to prevent any reduction in the cost of shipment across this country and to foreign countries, Senator Pittman pointed out that the railroad interests fought the Panama Canal and every internal development of waterways and will continue to do so.

He said "there are 90 per cent of the people to be benefited on one side and 10 per cent on the other." The end, he said, would be opposition by the railroads and the various ports to every proposal for waterway development, such as the Mississippi and other ports.

"By that selfish philosophy you are driving as rapidly as you can to prevent, forever, not only further improvement of the rivers of this country, but the improvement of the harbors as well," Senator Pittman asserted.

Assails Railroads.

The Nevadan contended the railroads have gone to their employes in the brotherhoods and told them to wire their Representatives in Congress "to oppose this project because it will take some traffic away from the railroads and throw them out of employment."

"In the first place," Senator Pittman added, "they have never been able to demonstrate that that is true. Their experience with the Panama Canal has been just exactly the opposite. By furnishing a tremendous amount of heavy, small freight to the Pacific Coast, where time is not the essence of movement, they started a building boom out there.

"They started prosperity and 2 per cent of the resulting freight went to water and 98 per cent went to the railroads. The railroads of this country do not realize that they can not have traffic unless people can buy. They do not realize that they can not have traffic if the cost of transportation, plus the cost of production, eats up all the profit."

Policy "Antiquated."

Senator Pittman branded the policy of the railroads as "antiquated," adding "their very selfishness has almost destroyed them." Now they have reached the point, he asserted, when to save themselves, they have had to borrow $400,000,000 from the Government.

He compared the lack of development in railroad efficiency to the progress made by the automobile industry, and by railroads in foreign lands. He blamed railroad management for the volume of unemployment existing in that field today.

"Let these railroads modernize a four-track system across this country and make the trip in 24 hours, run their trains every hour and—instead of having the weight of the train 1,000 times the weight of the passengers—reduce the weight of their trains, run them quickly and they will get back the traffic," Senator Pittman contended.

"These are some of the modern ideas of railroad managers. Let them try them, but for Heaven's sake let them stop this absurd, dishonest policy of attempting to convince their employes that all they need to do is to dam up the Panama Canal and not build another waterway and they will have all the freight they want."

The Roreign Relations chairman cited the successful operation of German railroads paralleling the Rhine, where barge lines transport heavy materials. But in this country, he added, "we have a lot of stockbrokers in charge of the railroads"—the few railroad men being "without influence."

"Deplorable" Condition.

In approaching the conclusion of his address Senator Pittman asserted that "it is getting to a deplorable condition in this country when none of us is permitted to think nationally, when all of us have to think in the way of a State, in the way of a county, in the way of a town."

"No one has dared to deny," he added, "that making our rivers navigable would reduce the cost of transportation to every shipper who has access to the rivers. There is no argument on that.

"If any Senator desires to get on the floor and say he is opposed to reducing freight rates, I have no argument with him. I am through. If any desires to state he is more interested in the port of New York than he is in probably 35 per cent of all the industries of the country, I am willing to take issue with him."

Senator Pittman maintained the railroads must realize that "the period of meeting mismanagement and bankruptcy through raising of freight rates has ended, and they will have to meet the problem just as every other industry has had to meet it, by efficiency of operation and management and by meeting conditions as they are today and not as they were 50 years ago."

Averill Is Given 2-Year Sentence

Former Teller Admits He Took Money.

Justice Peyton Gordon of District Supreme Court yesterday sentenced Wilbur N. Averill, former teller of the Northeast Savings Bank, to 2 to 3 years for embezzlement of the bank's funds.

Averill, suspected several months after the March banking holiday, entered a plea of guilty to an indictment that charged him with taking $14,783. The actual shortage will amount to $45,000, examiners said.

Averill, a resident of Hyattsville, Md., was notified over the phone when the shortage was unearthed, that he was wanted. He readily came to Washington and surrendered. In explanation of the shortage he said that he had lost a large portion of the money in a vain attempt to pick winners in horse races.

The embezzlements occurred over seven years.

Virginia Police Open Fight On Truck Robbery Racketeers

Fredericksburg, Va., Jan. 12 (Spl.).—A racket which has been developing since construction operations on U. S. No. 1, the Washington-Richmond highway, in Stafford County north of here, last night was climaxed by the theft of 100 gallons of motor oil from a freight truck.

Edgar Drenkerly, of Dorsey, Md., reported that two men climbed aboard his moving truck 5 miles north of Stafford Courthouse and tossed off four 5-gallon tanks and ten 6-gallon cartons of motor oil. Drenkerly did not see the men board the truck, but was informed of the act by the driver of a truck following him.

Stafford authorities and State police are cooperating in an effort to halt the thefts. It is believed the thefts started when highway construction forced trucks to slow down, allowing thieves to board and throw off cargo.

House Ends Hope For Restored Pay

Puerto Rican hurricane relief commission's appropriation from $50,000 to $25,000, and this was accepted by Representative Woodrum (Democrat), Virginia, chairman of the Steering Committee.

When the bill was read, after three hours of mild debate which lacked the acrimony and fireworks of the preceding day, Representative Goss offered an amendment to Title I, which would have provided enough money to restore the Government employes' entire pay cut.

Representative Bulwinkle (Democrat), North Carolina, presiding, sustained a point of order raised by Representative Woodrum, under the gag rule, on the ground that such amendment would conflict with Title II, which provided for a restoration of only 5 per cent.

The Appropriations Committee inserted an amendment to raise from $713,340 to $735,000 the amount the Tariff Commission may expend for personal services in the District of Columbia.

Representative Hamilton Fish, jr., (Republican), New York, attacking President Roosevelt for not having dealt fairly and honestly with World War veterans who are claiming service-connected disability compensation, offered an amendment to provide an additional $41,000,000 for such veterans.

Described by Representative Woodrum as an idle and futile gesture, in that this was not the proper measure for such an appropriation, the Fish amendment was defeated, 154 to 59.

Virginia Right To Distill Rum Facing Debate

Such Power Needed to End Bootlegging, Asserts Maj. Gibson.

By Doug Warrenfels.

Richmond, Jan. 12.—Bootleggers will undersell State whisky stores unless the Virginia liquor commission is authorized to distill spirits, officials predicted today.

Maj. Edwin H. Gibson, assistant attorney general, moved to check a campaign for elimination of the manufacturing provision from the majority liquor bill now before the General Assembly. He charged a private monopoly controls existing Virginia whisky supplies.

Unless the commission has authority to manufacture, Maj. Gibson wrote Delegate H. M. Sutherland, Clintwood, it will be forced to ask from $3 a quart up for liquor, or twice the price believed necessary to kill bootlegging.

Once the commission obtains permission to go into the distilling business, Maj. Gibson argued, it would be in a position to gain reasonable prices from private manufacturers and might not find it advisable actually to make whisky.

Seeks Public Support.

He insisted State-operated dispensaries would fail to receive public support unless they could keep prices within the reach of the average individual. He declared public sentiment caused a breakdown of prohibition.

Observers believe debate over the manufacturing provision will feature legislative consideration of liquor bills. Other opponents of the majority plan will demand sale by the drink in restaurants, hotels and clubs.

At the same time, it was learned that Gov.-elect George C. Peery will ask much larger funds for public schools in his inaugural message Wednesday than were recommended recently by the retiring governor, John Garland Pollard.

Gov. Pollard suggested an educational outlay of $11,844,000 in the next biennium, or 15 per cent more than in the two-year period now drawing to a close. Mr. Peery, however, is expected to encourage a school appropriation of $16,100,000, representing an increase of 30 per cent over the present biennium and placing schools on a predepression basis.

New Revenues Needed.

It was generally conceded the Peery school recommendation would entail creation of new sources of revenue in addition to liquor income and increased taxes on public utilities contemplated by the retiring governor. Mr. Peery, however, has given no intimation of where the State would obtain the additional educational funds.

Observers also believe Mr. Peery will ask blanket authority to reduce State expenditures in the next two years in case estimates of anticipated revenue fail to materialize.

Maryland Farmers Rap High CWA Pay

Can Not Compete in Labor Needs, Says Bureau.

Baltimore, Jan. 12 (AP).—A resolution protesting the wage scale set by the Federal Government for CWA employes was adopted by delegates to the Maryland Farm Bureau convention here today. It said, in part:

"Realizing the impossibility of farmers paying wages equal to those allowed by the CWA, we recommend to the present Administration that they seriously consider the condition created in our counties in regard to labor and agriculture. The purchasing power of the farmer is still below parity with that of industry, and since the planting season is approaching farmers will be unable to secure labor in competition with the present program and wage scale of the CWA.

"It is recommended that an equalization wage scale be worked out, making it possible for farmers to secure labor to plant and harvest crops with the full assurance that they can profitably compete with wages paid by the CWA."

Sabbath Skaters Annoy Churches

Hagerstown Police Chief Declares Ban.

Hagerstown, Md., Jan. 12 (Spl.).—There are places for everything, and for roller skating in particular, and Police Capt. Clarence G. Emmert has notified skaters that the vicinity of a church when services are being held is no place to skate.

The ban was ordered after members of several churches complained that the congregations could not hear the sermons because of noise made by skaters.

Capt. Emmert has ordered his officers to seize the skates of all offenders, to be held at police headquarters until the parents of the owners call for them.

Charles Town Officers Of Lodge at Session

Charles Town, W. Va., Jan. 12 (Spl.).—H. N. Bradley, national president of the Patriotic Order Sons of America, presided today at a special session of the national camp of the order at Philadelphia.

Mr. Bradley will conduct a meeting of the order's national executive committee tomorrow at Trenton.

W. X. Arey, also of Charles Town, State secretary, also attended the Philadelphia session.

250-Pound Bear Killed.

Bruceton Mills, W. Va., Jan. 12 (Spl.).—G. M. Benson and his son Richard killed a 250-pound bear in Grant County. They chased the animal for nearly two hours before it climbed a tree. This makes three bears shot this season by the Benson family and a total of ten in three years.

As Edsel Ford Met Senate Probers

Underwood & Underwood.

Henry Ford's son, pictured at the Capitol yesterday. The top photo at the left shows him as he arrived with his lawyer and local official of the Ford company. At the upper right, he is chatting with Frank W. Blair, former president of the Guardian group of banks. He is listening to a question from a member of the Banking Committee at lower left. At the right, when the quiz was over.

Bank Aid Pleas Aroused Ford's Ire, Says Son

loans from time to time. But this further aid was simply a precaution."

He admitted he and his father had agreed to subordinate their $7,500,000 deposit in the Detroit Guardian National Bank of Commerce, if the loan were granted. Then it was suggested that they contribute the $5,000,000 necessary to establish a new mortgage corporation.

Former Undersecretary of the Treasury Arthur Ballantyne went to Detroit, called upon the two Fords and urged them to put up the additional money.

"But we said, no," recounted Edsel. "We had put up what we thought was a great amount of money, and we felt an end should come to it. We decided we couldn't do any more.

"Henry Ford felt they were asking too much. He was very incensed over this request for further help after all we had done."

Asked Same Treatment.

Edsel further testified that his father had threatened to withdraw his $25,000,000 deposit in the rival bank, the First National of Detroit, if, as he felt the authorities were planning, the Guardian alone should be closed.

"Henry Ford felt both banks should be treated just the same," said his son.

Alfred P. Leyburn, colorful and outspoken National chief bank examiner almost overshadowed the young motor executive by his blunt statement that the Republican Administration sponsored a too lenient policy toward unsound banks.

Questioned by Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel, about why the office of the Comptroller General failed to act after receiving Leyburn's frequent unfavorable reports about the Michigan banks, the witness said:

"The Comptroller was told by the higher command not to do anything to rock the boat. He was told there shouldn't be any more bank failures."

"Are you guessing at that?" demanded Senator Couzens (Republican), Michigan, at whose behest the Detroit inquiry is being held.

Edsel Sure of Self.

"No. I know that of my own knowledge. And by the high command, I mean the Secretary of the Treasury and the White House."

In Leyburn's opinion, the primary cause of the group's collapse was mismangement. He concluded his testimony by remarking that group banking, as practiced by the Guardian group, was a "vicious form of banking."

An attempt on the part of Senator Couzens to elicit from Ford an opinion on the "ethicacy" of group banking resulted in a series of vague, general statements.

"My opinion wouldn't be worth anything," said Ford. "I've never studied the question. It's very involved. There may be some good points to group banking. On the other hand, there may be definite faults.

Although Ford remembered a little more than he did on the first day of his testimony, he nevertheless aroused Pecora by his frequent answers, "I don't remember," and "I don't recall."

"Have you a good memory, Mr. Ford?" inquired the counsel in an excessively polite tone.

"I think so."

"I was just wondering. Up to the present time, you haven't recalled most of the important things I have asked you."

"I am very sorry," Ford replied just as politely, "but there were a great many things every day that I had to go through with."

Pecora introduced a series of agreements relating to loans which the Guardian group and its banks secured in 1931 and 1932, and then asked the witness, if, despite the necessity of these loans, he had been among those who sanctioned the payment of substantial dividends.

Didn't Protest Dividend.

"I don't recall sanctioning it," said Ford. "I didn't protest or criticize it, I know."

Charles A. Bryan, National bank examiner, who at one time was bank examiner for the Guardian group, told the committee that one of the unit banks in Ionia had been in bad shape in 1930, and he had been sent out to straighten it out.

Former Governor Green, of Michigan, was president of the bank at the time. When Bryan attempted to stop the borrowing by Governor Green and other bank officers, Green asked group officials to have Bryan removed, said the witness.

Abandon One Phase.

Pecora said he had abandoned further inquiry into the taxation angle of bond transactions in which the Ford Motor Co. dealt over the year-end 1932-33. On Thursday Ford revealed details of a $15,000,000 purchase of Government bonds, which, three days later, had been reconverted into cash.

Pecora, who suggested that the transacttion might have been for purposes of tax evasion, said yesterday that it involved a State tax and any further inquiry had no place in the present investigation.

The hearing adjourned until Monday.

Alleys Survive 60-Year Fight

Lack of Money, Property Problems and Slowness of Congress Block Success in Battle That Began in 1872; Reform Bill Now Pending in House.

[This is the seventh of a series of ten articles on the hidden slums of Washington.]

By Felix Bruner.

Washington alley elimination in one form or another has been almost constantly before Congress for more than 60 years. Such legislation is now pending in the House of Representatives. Alley elimination is looked upon as desirable by every one who has studied the question, but money difficulties, property problems and slowness of Congressional action on District measures have blocked success.

Since 1872 the following measures have been passed with reference to alleys:

1872—Board of Health created by Congress. Ordinance passed providing condemnation of insanitary dwellings.

1878—Board of Health abolished. Two years later ordinance condemning unfit dwellings omitted in legislation of health ordinances.

1892—Act passed prohibiting erection of dwellings in alleys less than 30 feet wide.

1894—Legislation passed authorizing Commissioners to convert inhabited alleys into minor streets (40 and 60 feet wide), but few alleys could be so converted.

1899—Inspector of buildings authorized to order demolition of unsafe structures.

1906—Board for condemnation of insanitary buildings created.

War Postponed Action.

1914—Commissioners' alley bill passed ordering all alley dwellings vacated on and after July 1, 1918. Enforcement postponed until 1923 because of the World War. After 1923 enforcement was slow.

1927—Commissioners' alley law declared unconstitutional.

These measures succeeded in reducing alley population from an estimated 25,000 in 1870 to their present population, variously estimated at from 6,000 to 13,000. It also resulted in destruction of most of the flimsy wooden and tin shacks and in extending sewers, water mains and street lights into alleys.

In 1930 efforts were made to secure funds from the United States Housing Corporation and Congress for alley clearance and conversion of property for more appropriate economic uses.

The bill provided for a $3,000,000 revolving fund to be administered by the corporation for the elimination of alley dwellings in Washington within ten years. District Commissioners filed an adverse report after the Director of the Budget stated that expenditures contemplated in the proposed legislation would not be in accord with the financial program of President Hoover.

Senate Unanimous.

The District of Columbia alley dwelling act, which was passed unanimously by the Senate last June 6 and which is now before the House, provides for the following:

Elimination of alley dwellings.

Rehousing of the alley population.

Future use of alley housing.

Public hearings were held on the bill and in making its report the District Committee of the Senate found that "public opinion in Washington is practically unanimous in favor of the alley bill." Contained in the report was a list of about 60 organizations which had urged passage of the measure.

These organizations included the citizens' associations, various church groups, welfare groups, school and educational organizations and many organizations of colored people.

High Cost of Alleys.

In a communication to Senator King Frederic A. Delano, chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, said:

"There seems to be no question in anybody's mind as to the desirability and necessity for doing something as soon as possible to eliminate the hidden communities formed by the alley dwellings in their present condition, which are costing the District a large amount for sanitary inspections, police protection and crime, and because of the large amount of sickness that inevitably follows the living conditions in the alleys among people who must be cared for at public expense.

"In return the properties involved pay relatively insignificant taxes. The elimination of the alley dwellings is, therefore, necessary for economic as well as social reasons.

"Long study of the methods for and means of progressively eliminating these inhabited alleys of the District has convinced the commission not only of the necessity of doing so, but also that, if properly administered and if the alleys are so remodeled as to put the land to its best and most valuable use, it should be possible to make the return equivalent to the expenditure and thus make the project self-liquidating.

Additional Play Space.

"While this will not be possible in the case of some alleys, it will be possible in the case of others, to obtain a sufficient profit to cover the shortage in the former. In a very few cases the best use of the land would appear to be as additions to contiguous school playgrounds which have been harmfully reduced by encroachment of additions to some of the older school buildings. In the latter cases reimbursement of the revolving fund by the District government will give needed addition to playgrounds without expense to the revolving fund established by this bill and at a minimum cost to the District.

"Investigations by commissioners show a large amount of vacant dwelling space at rents commensurate with those paid in the alleys, one-fifth to one-fourth of the alley population can be domiciled in street houses without additional expense for rent, and the presence of many of the alleys in the central sections of the city will make a more valuable commercial development than for housing.

"For instance, one alley is in a block containing four hotels fronting on the streets. The profitable development of a storage garage in this alley, therefore, seems assured; but this can not be done as a private commercial enterprise because the alley property is under several ownerships and authority for condemnation, as well as means for locating the present population elsewhere, is needed to carry out the development."

Gain by Socialists Shown in Virginia

Richmond, Jan. 12 (AP).—David George, State organizer for the Socialist party, looked at official election returns, took out his pencil and started figuring.

The figures showed that Norman Thomas, candidate for President, received only .08 per cent of the Virginia vote in 1928. He found that John J. Kafka got .17 per cent for governor in 1929. Thomas got .80 per cent in 1932.

In the 1933 election the Socialist' percentages ran from .68 per cent of the total to 2.7 per cent.

the island legislature, expires January 17.

"If the Philippine independence bill lapses," he declared, "I can't conceive of Congress taking up such legislation at this session. If it did take it up, I don't belive the Filipinos could get as good a bill."

Thus, while President Roosevelt sought to settle one insular problem, another remained in status quo. The Philippine independence mission to this country, headed by Manuel Quezon, an opponent of the Hawes-Cutting measure, has not yet submitted a substitute proposal to the President.

Gore's Letter of Resignation.

Gov. Gore, who became embroiled with the Puerto Rican minority, returned to this country in poor health more than a month ago, giving rise to rumors of his approaching resignation. In accepting this request, it was believed Mr. Roosevelt might name him to some other Government position.

The correspondence follows:

"Jan. 8, 1934.

"My dear Mr. President: As you know, the climate in Puerto Rico has not been conducive to my own health or to that of the members of my family. I have had to return to the United States on two occasions to regain my health. My family returned in November, and Mrs. Gore is now ill.

"Since my return to the States in November, my own health is much improved, and I do not want to jeopardize my physical condition by returning to Puerto Rico.

"I wish, therefore, to tender my resignation to become effective at your convenience.

"I want you to know that you will have my loyalty and cooperation as always. Sincerely yours,

"BOB GORE."

President Thanks Governor.

"January 12, 1934.

"My dear Bob:

"It is with sincere regret that I accept your resignation.

"I appreciate fully your reasons for wanting to be relieved as soon as possible and I sincerely hope that you will soon be feeling fit again.

"I want you to know how much I appreciate your loyalty and continued cooperation in the difficult times through which we have been going.

"Drop in as soon as you have fully recovered. I want to have a talk with you.

"Very sincerely,

"FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT."

Winship Won War Laurels.

A native of Macon, Ga., Gen. Winship graduated from both Mercer University and the University of Georgia before entering the Army in 1898. He served in the Spanish-American War, the Philippine Insurrection, in Cuba and in Mexico. In the World War he was staff officer and judge advocate of the First Army, and commanded in action the 110th and 112th Infantry Regiments of the Twenty-eighth Division.

Transferring early in his career to the Judge Advocate General's department he was assistant to ranking officials in Cuba, where he was a member of the advisory commission for the revision of its laws; at Vera Cruz, where he was officer in charge of civil affairs, and in the Philippines, where during 1928-31 he was legal adviser to two Governors General.

Veteran Diplomat.

After the World War he was director general of the commission to settle claims arising from operations of the U. S. Army, and later served with the Reparations Commission. He was also military aid to President Coolidge and last spring was chosen by another Chief Executive, President Hoover, as his special representative to work out a plan of assistance for Liberia as provided by the League of Nations.

Gen. Winship was named Judge Advocate General in March, 1931. Although much of his service has been that of attorney and diplomat, he has received the Distinguished Service Cross, the Distinguished Service Medal and the Silver Star Citation for extraordinary heroism and gallantry in action.

Highway Engineer Change Protested

Staunton Chamber Wants Loughborough to Stay.

Staunton, Va., Jan. 12 (Spl.).—T. F. Loughborough, State Highway Department district engineer with headquarters in Staunton, has been ordered transferred to Richmond, to be succeeded February 1 by C. W. Moyer, now Fredericksburg district resident engineer.

The Staunton Chamber of Commerce yesterday protested Loughborough's removal because his years of residence here made him thoroughly familiar with local situations.

The chamber's protest will be forwarded to Henry G. Shirley, State highway commissioner.

Dr. John L. Kable Buried in Staunton

Staunton, Va., Jan. 12 (Spl.).—The funeral of Dr. John L. Kable, who fell dead in Charleston, W. Va., Wednesday, was held at the grave in Thornrose Cemetery here yesterday.

Dr. Kable was a son of the late Capt. William Hartman Kable, founder of Staunton Military Academy, and a graduate of the medical school of the University of Virginia. He had been a resident of Charleston for 15 years, previously having practiced in Staunton.

House Committee Writes Volstead Provision Into Control Bill.

made to the Senate on Monday, and Senator King will ask unanimous consent to take the measure up at once. An objection will force the measure over a day. Several Senators said they believed consideration could not be completed in a day.

Deletion of the existing restrictions on purchase and possession of alcoholic beverages by Army and Navy personnel in uniform and on military and naval posts or vessels was voted by the committee. As first approved, the amendment would have repealed the restrictions for the entire country. It subsequently was modified to apply only to the District because it was feared the broader scope would complicate consideration in the Senate.

Provision making mandatory appointment of at least one woman as a member of the alcohol control board of three also was stricken out. Appointment of a woman is left to the discretion of the Commissioners.

Advocates of the appointment of a woman immediately interpreted this to mean no woman would be named, and prepared to insist on the requirement.

Mrs. Norton to Intervene.

Representative Mary N. Norton (Democrat), New Jersey, chairman of the House District Committee, said she would do her best to have the provision put back in conference if that was not done in the Senate.

An amendment proposed by Senator Patrick A. McCarran (Democrat), Nevada, to remove the residence qualifications for board members was voted down without much of a fight.

A new section forbidding drinking on public highways was voted into the bill to take the place of the language stricken out in the House on motion of Representative John J. O'Connor (Democrat), New York.

Other amendments voted by the committee reduced from $6,000 to a basic salary of $5,000 salaries of the alcohol board members, making the initial salary $4,200; authorized the Commissioners to remove board members at will; reduced the tax on railroad dining and club cars from $5 to $2 per month with a maximum annual fee of $20 instead of $50; eliminated the requirement that cars and vessels must purchase their supplies from District licensees, and modified label requirement so that rectifiers would not be required to certify the age of material used in modifying liquor.

Senator James J. Davis (Republican), Pennsylvania, made known his intention to propose an amendment eliminating the control board and placing its duties on the Commissioners. This is expected to be voted down.

7 Indicted on Charges Of Padding Relief Rolls

Clarksburg, W. Va., Jan. 12 (Spl.).—Nine indictments charging seven men with forgery and false pretenses in connection with the alleged padding of Federal relief pay rolls in Mingo County have been returned by the Mingo County grand jury at Williamson.

Audits of the books of relief disbursing officers and CWA purchasing agents throughout the State are to be made at once, according to J. Fred Heavner, of Charleston, chief auditor, who says a number of field auditors have been appointed for the purpose.

Assembly's Morals Committee, Long a Dry Power, Doomed

Founded by Cannon, Body Handled All Laws of Prohibition.

By a Staff Correspondent.

Richmond, Jan. 12.—Long a power in Virginia, the Moral and Social Welfare Committee of the House of Delegates is headed for the guillotine, it was learned tonight.

Originally sponsored by Bishop James Cannon, jr., nationally known dry leader and former power in Virginia politics, the committee handled all prohibition legislation from the time of its inception in 1916. Wet critics often referred to it as "creature of Bishop Cannon and the Anti-Saloon League," and positions on the committee were coveted by ambitious drys.

Present plans of House Democratic leaders mean the committee will to all intents cease to exist, for while its existence is contemplated by House rules, difficult of amendment, and it will continue on paper, no bills will be referred to the group.

House Speaker J. Sinclair Brown will announce the membership of all committees next week.

Navy Merger Protest Grows

60 in House Represented by Delegation Calling on President.

A delegation of four House members, representing some 60 other Congressmen, yesterday called on the President to express opposition to the contemplated merger of the Coast Guard with the Navy.

The four, S. O. Bland, Virginia; S. W. Gambrill, Maryland; L. C. Warren, North Carolina, and Robert L. Bacon, New York, the latter the only Republican, said they had been unable to find any economy in the proposed merger.

"The two services are entirely dissimilar," said Representative Warren. "The Coast Guard is an agency dedicated to humanity, the saving of life and enforcement of customs laws. These duties are entirely different from those of the Navy."

They said the President indicated he had reached no conclusion on the proposed merger, which has been proposed as a means to reduce duplicating expenses.

Maryland Champion Poultry and Dairy Judging Teams

This photograph shows the 4-H Club Maryland State championship poultry judging team and the 4-H Club State champion dairy judging team, all Frederick County boys. Teams representing 13 counties took part in the dairy judging contest and eight county teams participated in the poultry judging contest. $2,000 Bail Set For Trio Held In Rum Case

Marylanders Await Grand Jury on Charges of Tax Fraud.

Frederick, Md., Jan. 12 (AP). Charged with concealing liquor and carrying on a business of distilling with intent to defraud the Government of taxes, Russel Clark, Waverly C. Clark and Albert Huntzberry were under bond today of $2,000 each awaiting action of the Federal grand jury.

Bail was fixed by United States Commissioner H. Noel Haller here.

The Clark brothers live at St. James, Washington County, and Huntzberry resides in Hagerstown.

They were arrested after Russel Clark, alias Russel Bennett, and Huntzberry were reported kidnaped by a gang of men who early on December 21 hijacked a quantity of liquor at the Clark home.

Mrs. Clark, wife of Russel Clark, notified the sheriff's office of the alleged kidnaping and hijacking but later declined to go to Hagerstown to identify a suspect. The two purported kidnap victims walked into the Bethesda Police Station the same day to say they had been abducted and freed near there.

William R. Harvey and Charles E. Cushwa, Federal alcoholic beverage inspectors, testified at the arraignment they had gone to the Clark place to investigate and were ordered from the property.

They said they returned the following day with search warrants. The three surrendered a few days later.

Smothered!

Fingerprints of Thieves Hidden With Flour.

Danville, Va., Jan. 12 (Spl.).—Thieves who entered Lester Setliff's general store yesterday found a new means of obliterating finger prints. They ripped open sacks of flour and scattered the flour over the objects they touched.

They carried a 1,000-pound safe to the rear of the store, but failed to batter it open.

Neighbors who heard the noise concluded it was a traveler making a roadside motor repair.

Damage estimated at $500 was done and a quantity of cigarettes stolen.

Peery May Restore 30% School Cut

$16,100,000 Minimum to Be Asked, Is Report.

Richmond, Jan. 12 (AP).—While Gov.-elect George C. Peery has maintained silence on his recommendations to General Assembly, it was reported today the new governor would go further than Gov. Pollard and ask that the full 30 per cent cut be restored to the free public school fund.

Gov. Pollard recommended to the Assembly that half of the 30 per cent cut made in the 1932 school appropriation by executive order under authority of the budget act, be restored for the next biennium. The State Board of Education asked for considerably more.

The governor-elect will ask that the school appropriation by the State be made at least $16,100,000, the amount of the 1932-33 appropriation, it is believed.

Mrs. John H. Guy Succumbs at 84

Gray Veteran's Widow Was of Prominent Family.

Staunton, Va., Jan. 12 (Spl.).—Relatives here have been informed of the death in Radford of Mrs Mary Ranson Guy, 84, widow of Col. John H. Guy, Confederate veteran, and a sister of the late Capt. Thomas D. Ranson, of Staunton.

Burial was in Hollywood Cemetery, Richmond. Mrs. Guy was born in Jefferson County, then Virginia, now West Virginia; a daughter of James Matthew Ranson and Mrs. Mary Eleanor Baldwin Ranson, who were widely connected with prominent Virginia families. Her husband served with distinction in the Civil War and was promoted from captain of Guy's battery to lieutenant colonel.

Surviving are a son, John H. Guy, member of the Richmond bar, and a daughter, Miss Anne Wyatt Guy; also relatives in Staunton, where in years past she spent much of her time in the Ranson home, Oakenwold.

Financier Assures 1934 Trade Gains

Richmond, Jan. 12 (AP).—People have more confidence, bank deposits are increasing, and business men feel 1934 will bring marked improvement in commerce and industry, J. R. Ridgway, president of Investors Syndicate, said here today.

He was addressing the Annual Eastern Sales Conference of his organization, attended by 400 men. Ridgway added:

"During the past four years, our company has increased its assets from $32,000,000 to $54,500,000 and paid out $26,000,000 in maturing certificates without our borrowing money or converting into cash our secondary reserves. The first week in January was the largest production week in the history of our company, organized 40 years ago."

Loudoun School Term To Remain Nine Months

Purcellville, Va., Jan. 12 (Spl.). Assurance of a nine-month school term for white schools in Loudoun County was given at a meeting of the board here yesterday.

Superintendent of Schools O. L. Emerick said he had the money in sight with which to keep the schools open. He said one source of revenue not counted on in the budget set-up for the year is $4,000 received in delinquent taxes.

U. S. to Deport Roanoke Man, Recently Freed

Holdup Victim Is Awarded Damages in Suit Against Trio.

Roanoke, Va., Jan. 12 (Spl.).—Mike Bataller, who was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary here May 29, 1931, for the manslaughter of Rafael Sanchez, Roanoke restaurant operator, will be deported to Valencia, Spain, it was said here today by M. M. Hoosack, inspector of the United States Immigration and Naturalization Service. Hoosack said Bataller, a Spanish citizen, is being held at Norfolk. He was discharged recently for good behavior after serving about three years of his sentence.

A jury in law and chancery court has awarded damages of $3,304 to R. B. Overstreet against Fred Henson Miller on ground he "willfully and maliciously" wounded Overstreet. The suit asked $10,000 and was filed against Miller and R. L. Quarles, committee of Theodore H. Hackworth and Fred Thomas Cook. The cases involving Hackworth and Cook were continued to January 24.

The case followed a holdup November 26, 1932, at Overstreet's store.

A hung jury resulted in Hustings Court in the trial of Odell Jones, charged with involuntary manslaughter in the death of Thelma Palmer, colored, in an automobile accident.

Bristol, Va., Jan. 12 (Spl.).—A Bristol, Tenn., jury decided yesterday in favor of the defendant, Swift & Co., in the "weiner" suit for $2,999 damages, brought by Mrs. Otto B. Sproles, of Benhams, Va.

The case was originally heard in September, 1932, but a hung jury resulted with regard to the Swift company. A directed verdict for the F. W. Woolworth Co., codefendant, was returned, however.

An appeal may be taken, plaintiff's attorneys indicated today.

A new trial or dismissal awaits J. D. Roller, of Bristol, facing an eight-year sentence for an alleged diamond robbery in Smyth County, Va., in September, 1932.

An opinion by the State Supreme Court of Appeals at Richmond yesterday reversed the judgment and remanded the case to the Smyth County Circuit Court for further action.

Whether Roller will be tried again on the old evidence, or be freed for lack of further evidence, would depend upon the substance of the Supreme Court's opinion, which has not not yet been seen here, lawyers said.

Roller is now free under bond.

Clearbrook Couple Married 50 Years

Winchester, Va., Jan. 12 (Spl.).—Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Robinson, of Clearbrook, near here, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Wednesday, it was learned today.

They were given a surprise utility shower by 150 relatives and friends. Prior to her marriage in 1884, Mrs. Robinson was Miss Rachel Jolliffe, of Frederick County, Va. The couple has lived at Clearbrook all of their married life.

Robinson has a large apple orchard.

Union of Pulp Workers Sought in Covington

Covington, Va., Jan. 12 (Spl.). Union leaders spoke last night at a meeting of 350 persons interested in formation of a local unit of the National Pulp and Paper Workers' Union at the Covington plant of the West Virginia Pulp & Paper Co.

Activities of the railroad union in Clifton Forge and Roanoke were praised by the speakers, who urged the mill workers to continue to strive for union representation.

Fog Delays Vessels On Chesapeake Bay

Baltimore, Jan. 12 (AP).—A light fog here and a dense blanket in the vicinity of Cape Henry delayed shipping on Chesapeake Bay today, causing vessels to move with caution.

Air travel continued, however, since the fog was local over the bay and did not extend far inland.

School Project Is Under Way In Woodstock

Clarke Pay Rolls Pising; $46,370 Allotted to Clifton Forge.

Woodstock, Pa., Jan. 12 (Spl.).—Thirty men have been given employment on the CWA project here embodying excavating, grading and building of a sidewalk on the site of the new Woodstock School Building.

The men, under the foremanship of C. L. Fogal, are blasting huge limestone boulders on the Magruder lot, where the building is to be erected. It is expected the group will be employed for a month or so due to the large volume of stone to be moved before the excavation for the basement can be made.

Funds from the CWA are being used for the excavating, grading and sidewalk, but the school building proper will be erected with money to be obtained from the PWA.

CWA forces have completed one project here, erection of a bridge and street improvements on South Muhlenburg street.

Clarke Pay Rolls Increase.

Berryville, Va., Jan. 12 (Spl.).—Pay rolls of Clarke County Civil Works Administration projects have increased $1,300 during the past two weeks and 40 additional men have been given jobs.

A. B. Hummer, administrator, has announced that the CWA pay roll for Clarke County for the week ended last night approximated $1,900. There are 125 persons now employed on CWA projects. To Clarke was allotted 4,871 man-hours' labor and 1,600 man-hours of adminisrative work.

Clifton Forge Gets $46,370.

Clifton Forge, Va., Jan. 12 (Spl.). Appropriations to Clifton Forge under the CWA amount to $46,370, according to a statement made today.

Approximately $1,700 of this amount is being used to give employment to women. At the rate of $500 a day the money is being paid out to the workers who are engaged in projects which include construction of a colored playground, improvements to the new cemetery, repairs to schools, paving of streets and laying water mains.

Drive on Mosquitoes Under Way.

Portsmouth, Va., Jan. 12 (AP).—While the mosquito, bane of the summer vacationist, is in its annual retirement, a number of Virginia communities, annoyed in previous years, particularly in 1933, by its seasonal visits, are at work establishing effective barriers to its return with the summer season.

Made possible by Public Works funds, Eastern Virginia from Virginia Beach to Quantico now is witnessing squads of men digging ditches, draining breeding holes and burning underbrush which would serve to increase the pests' multiplication with the approach of warm weather.

Approximately 60 men are employed in Norfolk County alone on this work.

$23,000 For Front Royal.

Front Royal, Va., Jan. 12 (Spl.).—A CWA appropriation of $23,000 for work at the Front Royal Remount Depot was officially approved yesterday, according to an announcement by M. S. Cantor, Warren County CWA administrator.

The project, the seventh approved for the county, is estimated to furnish employment to 196 men for five weeks. The work is expected to start with about 100 men on Monday.

The number to be employed on the new project, the largest CWA fund yet allotted to the county, in addition to the number now working will make a total of 600 men employed in CWA work in the county, 1,414 having registered in the CWA office for work.

The county administrator announced the appointment of O. W. Borden as county safety supervisor.

Philip Stover Sonner Buried at Strasburg

Strasburg, Va., Jan. 12 (Spl.).—Funeral rites were conducted from the home of Mrs. Carrie Rogers here for her brother, Philip Stover Sonner, 53, who died Wednesday.

Surviving are the sister, Mrs. Rogers, and four brothers, H. M. Sonner, C. Lee Sonner and F. H. Sonner, all of Strasburg, and Dr. W. W. Sonner, of Front Royal.

Waynesboro Banks Select Officers

Better Business Shown in Two Reports.

Waynesboro, Va., Jan. 12 (Spl.).—Increased confidence in business was shown in local bank statements showing an increase of $72,587.63 in deposits last year over 1932.

The First National Bank limited the board of directors to 10 members, naming E. W. Barger, G. H. Branaman, Olaf Cas, R. H. Clemmer, L. C. Dawson, J. Frank Harper, F. W. McClung, E. M. Quillen, C. J. Wright and R. G. Vance. Officers reelected are E. W. Barger, president; R. G. Vance, executive vice president and cashier; J. Frank Harper, vice president, and C. J. Wright and W. E. Shumate, assistant cashiers.

Officers chosen by the Citizens-Waynesboro Bank & Trust Co. are Boyd Stombock, president; C. F. Maguire, C. M. Lambert, J. L. Witz and Charles Yancey, vice presidents; J. W. Wright, cashier and J. E. Taylor and Mrs. Iva Whitaker, assistant cashiers.

Henrico Board Plea Is Granted

Virginia Supreme Court to Hear Argument on Manager Fight.

Richmond, Jan. 12 (AP).—An appeal was granted today by the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals to the newly elected Henrico County Board of Supervisors from the recent decision of Judge Julien Gunn in Henrico Circuit Court that the incumbents are entitled to sit for the remainder of their terms, and to launch the county manager plan.

Granting of the writ came as a surprise, since the Supreme Court yesterday set January 18 for argument of the petition.

It now appears probable that a final decision will be forthcoming before the tribunal closes its January term.

Arguments will be heard by the court Tuesday, immediately following the argument on the petition of H. A. Haden, Albemarle County executive, for a mandamus to compel Treasurer Stuart Hamm to relinquish his office.

The question in both cases is virtually the same, namely, whether a county officer elected for a definite term of years can be forced to step out before that term has been completed with the selection of a new form of government.

"By Candlelight" Reviewed at Rialto—Opportunity Awaits Youths With Talent

A Smart Farce Smartly Acted On the Screen

Continentals Play Selves; Roach Seeks a Pair; Theater News.

Reprinted from Yesterday's Last Edition.

"BY CANDLELIGHT." Universal picturization of the stage play by Siegfried Geyer, adapted to the screen by Hans Kraly. F. Hugh Herbert and Ruth Cummings; featuring Elissa Landi, Paul Lukas, Nils Asther and Dorothy Revier, with Esther Ralston, Lawrence Grant, Lois January and Warburton Gamble. Directed by James Whale. Reviewed Thursday evening.

By Nelson B. Bell.

The intricate technique of successful philandering forms the basis of this sparkling continental farce.

Playful princes, to whom romance is a highly perfected profession; imitative butlers, who masquerade as nobility, and maids, who impersonate their mistresses; jealous husbands and wavering wives — these are the figures about whom the authors have woven the gossamer threads of their intrigue, which moves in opulent splendor and with undimished vivacity from Vienna to Monte Carlo and there perpetrates its major deceptions.

"By Candlelight" is flip and frothy pretending, with an air about it. The picture has atmosphere, verve, handsome investiture and the benefit of exceptionally deft casting. It is the sort of thing that somehow has come to be associated in the public mind with Ernst Lubitsch. Herr Lubitsch need not have been ashamed of it, had he made it. James Whale, who recently triumphed also with "The Invisible Man," should be proud that it was he who did.

Exhilarating Exercise.

For the benefit of future audiences, the story were better left untold. Not because it is in any sense offensive, but only because, being predicated largely upon the factor of doubtful identities, much of the fun would be destroyed by too minute a foreknowledge of what to expect. Particularly in the opening sequences is it part of the enjoyment to establish the correct relationships among the characters. The butlers are such gentlemen, the maids such ladies and the real ladies and gentlemen such unconscionable cads and coquettes that it is all a little confusing, but a distinctly exhilarating mental exercise.

The swift pace of the opening scenes is retarded slightly toward the middle of the film's total footage, but picks up again almost immediately and thereafter never again recedes from its breezy top speed.

Continental Actors.

Being continental in character and treatment, the picture is especially happy in having a continental cast to assume its principal burdens, all of which are carried lightly, humorously and gaily.

Elissa Landi, who has never been more unbending and vivacious than as Marie, the maid, pretending to be a lady—no, not even in "The Warrior's Husband;" Paul Lukas and Nils Asther, interchangeably cast in two of the best roles they have recently had, are actually continentals. They perform their tasks with proportionately greater naturalness and conviction than might otherwise be the case.

These pivotal players are splendidly supported by Lawrence Grant and Warburton Gamble, actors of tried capabilities on both stage and screen; Esther Ralston, who has played more abroad than at home of late; Dorothy Revier, one of the beauties of the silent films, and Lois January, a young woman who avails herself of an early opportunity in a brief scene with Mr. Lukas.

Mr. Whale has directed the piece in a brisk tempo and has mounted it impeccably.

Supplementary Features.

The supplementary attractions of the new bill include a new issue of the Universal News, with Graham McNamee performing his customary function of oracle; an "Oswald, the Rabbit," cartoon comedy; "Chicken Reel," in which a young barnyard chap of questionable lineage contrives to come out a hero, and a Sterling Holloway comedy, "Meeting Mazie," that presents Mr. Holloway as a sort of male ZaSu Pitts, with results that are at times extremely amusing and at others excessively desolate of any useful outcome.

As a literate and expert contribution to the gayety of a week given over largely to the pleasant tonic of laughter, the entire bill—but especially "By Candlelight"—is unreservedly recommended.

In the February issue of The Motion Picture, popular "fan" magazine, Maxine Doyle, former mistress of ceremonies at the Earle Theater and now a screen actress in Hollywood, is the photographic subject for a page of striking camera studies. During her three years at the Earle, thanks to the good judgment of the Messrs. John J. Payette and Guy Wonders, general manager of the Warner Brothers Washington interests and impresario of the stage shows, respectively, never so much as one of Maxine's ankles was exposed to public view. Hollywood, by the evidence of page 23 of the February Motion Picture, with its irritating and indefensible penchant for such things, has discovered that she has legs. It seems too bad to shatter an illusion so ruthlessly.

Our Reviewer's Play.

The Columbia Players will present "Second-Act Curtain," a new play with a Washington newspaper background, at Pierce Hall, Fifteenth and Harvard streets northwest, on February 6 and 7.

The play is the work of Dorothea Lewis, a Washington newspaper woman, who is also one of the most capable actresses among local amateurs. This production will be its first presentation on any stage.

The cast will include Virginia Rand, Helen Mead, Katherine Logan, Robert M. Miller, Steele Kennedy, B. A. P. Doehrer, Joe Bourne, George Edwards, Richard Stringfellow, Thomas Hall, Harold Norton, Richard Kruseberg, Euel Stone and Wayne Bobst.

Orris Holland, well known locally both as actor and director, is in charge of the production.

A Beauty From the Silent Days

A popular decoration of light comedy and drama in the seemingly remote era of the silent cinema, Dorothy Revier returns to the screen this week, with Elissa Landi, Paul Lukas and Nils Asther, in "By Candlelight," a gay continental farce. "By Candlelight" began its local engagement at the Rialto Theater yesterday.

A program composed exclusively of the most notable cartoon creations of Walt Disney will be presented at a special matinee for children on Saturday, January 20, at Loew's Palace Theater. "Three Little Pigs," most famous of short subjects, with its "Who's Afraid of the Big, Bad Wolf?"; "Lullaby Land," "Ol' King Cole," "Babes in the Woods," "Klondike Kid" and "Building a Building" will form the program. On this particular Saturday, doors will open at 9 a. m., and the performance will begin at 9:30. It will be of one hour's duration. A flat admission charge of 25 cents a ticket will be charged for all.

Fame and Fortune Await.

Fame and fortune are said to await two youngsters with ability who can measure up to the specific requirements of the roles of Alan and Contrary Ann in the never-to-be-forgotton musical extravaganza, "Babes in Toyland," shortly to be brought to the screen of Loew's Palace Theater—provided Hal Roach, the producer, is successful in his search for the necessary characters to insure the picture's completion.

Nowhere in Hollywood, so far, has Roach been able to find the desired young couple to fill the shoes of the once famous stage stars, William Morris and Amy Ricard, who portrayed the characters of Alan and Contrary Ann in the original production of the Victor Herbert classic that contains the imperishable "March of the Toys."

Besides certain acting ability, candidates for the two juvenile roles, which must be filled within the next 30 days, must possess good looks, grace, well placed talking and singing voices and, last but by no means least, the radiant spirit of genuine youth.

Among the Roach players already assigned roles in "Babes in Toyland" are Laurel and Hardy, Charlie Chase, Patsy Kelly, Baby "Spanky" and others.

If one might revert briefly to Burton Holmes' Tuesday afternoon lecture on "The Chicago World's Fair," the articulate recollection would be that the views which elicited the most immediate and heartiest audience applause were those depicting the classic beauty of the World's Columbia Exposition, held in Chicago in 1893—not the bizarre architecture and vivid colorings of the Century of Progress Exposition of last summer, and next.

About Uday Shan-Kar.

One lives and learns.

From those concerned with his appearance next Wednesday night in Constitution Hall come illuminating descriptions of the intellectual calm and placid outlook upon life of Uday Shan-Kar.

Shan-Kar, the young Hindu who brings an unique entertainment to the Capital, is stated by those who know him to be an individual curiously attuned to life and its inner meanings. When talking with him, it is said, one finds "the shining light of an inner harmony in his dark eyes; the expression of inner calm and contentment in his musical voice; about his whole personality that quality that is peculiar to one who has listened to the voice of superior forces and accepted them unquestionably. Uday Shan-Kar has no doubt, no cynicism."

Surprised by Americans.

"I am amazed by my reception in America," he himself says. "It is hard for me to understand how Americans, with a totally different outlook upon life, can understand my dancing. In these dances I aim to express the wisdom of India. They are based on rigid rules fixed from 6,000 to 8,000 years ago and as carefully observed and enforced today as when they were originated."

Shan-Kar is, indeed, the personification of the East, but, at the same time, he shows amazing insight into the theatrical values of the Occident in the building of the programs he is presenting in this country.

It is just barely possible that America does not understand the dancing of Shan-Kar and is fascinated by it for that very reason.

Yesterday's Thursday opening of "By Candlelight," at the Rialto Theater, marked the Ninth street house's definite change in policy from a Saturday to a Thursday opening day for all future bills. Under the new arrangement, the Rialto inaugurates its new programs one day earlier than any other theater in town, all of the others opening normally on Friday.

Boy Scout Deed.

We are prompted by the Rialto's action to suggest again that there are still seven downtown, first-run picture theaters in operation and still seven days in practically each and every week. To avoid all conflict, and make it as tough as possible for the dramatic desks, why not each one choose a different day to break out its new bills? That would be just ducky, I hope not!

Oyster Charge Going to State Supreme Court

Whether Illegal Dredging Is Felony or Less to Be Decided.

Fredericksburg, Va., Jan. 12 (Spl.).—A writ of error in the oyster dredging case of the State vs. Mahoney has been granted by the State Supreme Court of Appeals to which the case was appealed from a decision of the Circuit Court of King George, with Judge Frederick W. Coleman, presiding.

Mahoney was indicted on a charge of dredging oysters in the Potomac River last March, the indictment being returned as a "felony."

The defense attorney, W. W. Butzner, asked the court to dismiss the prosecution saying such offense did not lawfully constitute a felony. Mr. Butzner based his defense on the fact that two acts were passed by the 1930 General Assembly the same day, one introduced by Delegate Charles E. Stuart, of Westmoreland County, making the offense a felony, the other introduced by Senator R. O. Norris making the offense a misdemeanor.

Maryland already had passed the Norris act, repealing all acts in conflict. In 1931 Maryland passed the Stuart act. Judge Colemann overruled the contention of Mr. Butzner that dredging oysters in the Potomac River constitutes at best a misdemeanor and not a felony.

The Supreme Court of Appeals of Virginia has awarded a writ of error and supersedeas, which means that the case will next be heard by the Supreme Court of the State, and more than a dozen cases await the final decision.

Virginia Poultrymen At New York Session

Midlothian, Va., Jan. 12 (AP).—A number of Virginia poultrymen are attending the third annual meeting of the Northeastern Poultry Producers Council in New York. The council is composed of poultry interests of the 13 Northeastern States.

M. C. Kilpatrick, of Midlothian, is vice president of the council.

Estimated Population Of Cumberland, 41,000

Cumberland, Md., Jan. 12 (Spl.). Cumberland's present population is estimated at about 41,000 by the Bureau of Vital Statistics of the Maryland State Department of Health. The estimate as of July 1, 1933, was 40,255 and the estimate for next July, 41,027.

Couple Wed 50 Years.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Jan. 12 (Spl.).—Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Mathews will observe their fiftieth wedding anniversary here tomorrow. Open house will be kept during the afternoon.

Virginia Power Profits Bared To Commission

Public Service Co. Earned 6.88 Per Cent Net During 1932.

Richmond, Jan. 12 (AP).—The Allen J. Saville organization has reported to the State Corporation Commission that the Virginia Public Service Co. in 1932 earned in its electric department a net return of 6.88 per cent on its electric property valuation expressed in terms of average prices for the period 1926-32.

The report estimated that 1933 earnings would probably show a return of less than 6 per cent.

A previous report showed the Virginia Electric & Power Co. showed a 9.25 per cent net return. As a result of this report, a decrease in rates was secured.

Figures Vary With Time.

Following the establishment of the investment cost of the Virginia Public Service Co.'s electric department properties as of December 31, 1932, at $31,718,415, the report showed two reproduction costs net less depreciation; one, based on July, 1933, price figures was $28,035,503, and the other, based on average prices 1926-32, was $30,645,276.

It was the latter figures presented by Mr. Saville as the proper rate base on which the company should be allowed to earn a "fair" return.

The report points out that the utility now has no connection with any holding company, but that between 1928 and 1932 it did pay $152,229.41 to the Electric Management & Engineering Corporation, an Insull-owned organization, and also paid about $78,000 to the Seaboard Public Service Co., which owned all the common stock of the Virginia Public Service Co. from 1929 until that holding company went into bankruptcy in June 1932.

"Write-ups" Eliminated.

Summarizing its findings, the Saville group said the investment cost item was arrived at after the elimination of property value "write-ups" totaling $1,171,782.51 and the reduction of accumulated retirement reserves.

The report added that substantial increases in the operating expenses of this utility resulting from changes in Federal and State tax legislation and from compliance with the NRA will reduce the net revenues of this utility during 1933 to the point where the net return will approximate 5.75 per cent, 6.47 per cent or 5.93 per cent respectively, according to the time of valuation accepted.

Services Conducted For Mrs. Susan Hoge

Fredericksburg, Va., Jan. 12 (Spl.). Funeral services for Mrs. Susan B. Hoge, 89, were conducted by the Rev. J. E. Brittingham at Zion Methodist Church, Spotsylvania Court House.

Mrs. Hoge is survived by two sons, James L. Hoge, of Dahlgren, and Lewis N. Hoge, of Spotsylvania, and a daughter, Mrs. W. W. Scales, of Spotsylvania.

Harrisonburg City Finances Praised

Harrisonburg, Va., Jan. 12 (Spl.). Harrisonburg city finances are sound; the city tax rate is the lowest in the State, when property assessments are taken into consideration; the city's electric light plant could be sold to wipe out the municipality's bonded indebtedness and leave several hundred thousand dollars to the good, Chairman James O. Stickley, of the city council finance committee, asserted yesterday in an address before the Kiwanis Club.

The per capita bonded indebtedness of Harrisonburg was placed at $102, one of the lowest in the State.

Campbell Acree Dies On His Way to India

Danville, Va., Jan. 12 (Spl.).—Word was received here of the death in London of Campbell Acree, son of the late Alexander Acree and Mrs. Lucy Acree, of Mullins, S. C.

He died en route to India, where he had been stationed at Calcutta as representative of the British American Tobacco Co. Mr. Acree had lived in India for several years. Burial will be in Danville.

Invitation to Fox Hunt.

Waterford, Va., Jan. 12 (Spl.). The Loudoun hounds will meet here tomorrow at 11 a. m., and W. H. Lipscomb, M. F. H., has extended an invitation to the residents of the neighborhood to meet with the hunt and join in the sport. Foxes are reported to be present in large numbers in that territory.

$2,070,000 Is Issued By Richmond Banks

Institutions Conforming to Roosevelt Plan.

Richmond, Jan. 12 (AP).—Issuance of $20,000 of preferred stock in conformity with President Roosevelt's plan to strengthen the banking structure of the Nation, has been recommended by the board of directors of the Savings Bank of Richmond and will be acted upon by stockholders January 25.

This action, with approval by stockholders expected, brings the toal amount of preferred stock issued to date by Richmond financial institutions to $2,070,000. The State Planters Bank & Trust Co. stockholders have approved a $2,000,000 preferred stock issue and the Central National Bank will issue $50,000.

The board of the Virginia Trust Co. has recommended a $700,000 issue, while stockholders in the First & Merchants National Bank are to act on a proposal to issue $300,000 in preferred stock. Favorable action on these issues, which is expected, would bring the total to $3,070,000, with other local institutions probably participating to the extent of $200,000 or more.

Public Health Nurses Convene at Fairfax

Front Royal, Va., Jan. 13 (Spl.). A conference of the public health nurses of ten northern Virginia counties was held at Fairfax today. The subjects were nutrition and tuberculosis.

Mrs. R. W. Weiser, Warren County public health nurse, and Miss Sabina Neel, public health nurse of Prince William County, read papers. Mrs. Fannie Seaman, public health nurse of Fairfax, was hostess.

Miss Dougherty Hurt In Fall From Horse

Berryville, Va., Jan. 12 (Spl.). Miss Mary Dougherty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Graham Dougherty, of Woodley Hall, has been taken to Memorial Hospital, Winchester, for treatment of a broken collarbone and other injuries, suffered when thrown from her horse.

The accident occurred when Miss Dougherty was going through a riding lesson at Edward B. Jacob's Shenandoah Stud, at Boyce.

Fauquier Chapter Selects Officers

Warrenton, Va., Jan. 12 (Spl.).—The Fauquier Chapter of the American Red Cross yesterday elected the following officers:

Chapter chairman, Mrs. K. F. Bowman; first vice chairman, Mrs. R. R. Barrett; second vice chairman, Mrs. T. Turner Foster; third vice chairman, Mrs. Thomas B. Glascock; fourth vice chairman, Mrs. Ford Thompson; secretary, the Rev. Julian Lake; treasurer, William R. Rowland; assistant treasurer, Mrs. George Sloane; advisory, C. E. Tiffany; counselor, Judge John Barton Payne; chairman Junior Red Cross, P. B. Smith; secretary Junior Red Cross, Miss Katherine Bowman; chairman ex-service committee, Capt. Lew Wood; chairman disaster relief committe, W. G. Bartenstein; chairman nursing committee, Chapter chairman; chairmen first-aid and life-saving committee, Miss Harriett Turnbull and D. P. Wood; social service committee, Mrs. Bowman and Mrs. Barrett.

Red Cross Gets $1,672.

Lebanon, Va., Jan. 12 (Spl.).—The 1934 Red Cross roll call in Russell County, as reported to E. E. Tacker, Dante, treasurer, to date totals $1,672, and 1,107 members.

Clarke Horse Show Fund Shows Gain

Balance in Association's Treasury Is $1,214.

Berryville, Va., Jan. 12 (Spl.). The treasury balance of the Clarke County Horse Show Association, of Berryville, increased more than $600 during 1933, the report of A. B. Hummer, secretary treasurer, shows.

The balance of the association at this time is $1,214. The report further discloses that during the two-day exhibition last August the gate receipts for the first day were $789 and the second day, $2,195. Hummer reports that total receipts for the year were $7,323 and disbursements $6,109.

Many of Virginia's leading fairs and horse shows operated at a loss last year. In the case of the Warrenton Horse Show, rainy weather each day held down the attendance which in former years had run into the thousands.

Bridegroom Hurt Fleeing 'Rail Ride'

Luray, Va., Jan. 12 (Spl.). The old Virginia custom of "riding bridegrooms on a rail" last night came near resulting fatally to John Nichols, who a few hours before had married Miss Elsie Somers, of Marksville.

Serenading friends of Mr. Nichols who gathered at the home of R. T. Somers, the bride's father, decided to give the bridegroom the customary "rail riding." Attempting to elude the serenaders, Mr. Nichols in the darkness ran into a barbed-wire fence. His face was badly cut.

CWA Pay Rolls In Virginia City Mount to 150

Fredericksburg City Park Project Will Add More; Officials Shifted.

Fredericksburg, Va., Jan. 12 (Spl.).—To date, about 150 persons have been put to work on CWA projects here, including office personnel, Administrative workers and research assistants with the National Battlefield Park Service. Beginning of the city park beautification and improvement project today will substantially increase this figure.

The local reemployment office announced that in addition it had placed 25 applicants with private employers.

Red Cross courses of first aid have been started for safety inspectors in Civil Works District 3, working under J. E. King, safety inspector.

Red Cross school was begun here yesterday for Fredericksburg and Stafford, King George, Spotsylvania, and Caroline Counties under Herbert Thompson, first aid expert. Other schools to begin soon are in Warrenton and Tappahannock, also designated as first aid emergency centers. Other centers include Richmond, Norfolk, Newport News, Cape Charles, Charlottesville, Winchester, Staunton, Lynchburg, Danville, Roanoke and Bristol.

Harry A. Osthagen, Government investigator, attached to the Interior Department, inquired into the operation of the CWA here on a visit early in the week, but left declaring he found no circumstances here to warrant an investigation.

Miss Lillian Wade was recommended by the local reemployment committee as a research worker to replace Miss Ruby Dillard.

On recommendation of the Stafford County Reemployment committee, Mrs. Julian V. Brooks, wife of one of the county supervisors, was assigned to replace Mrs. Magnus M. Lewis, jr., who was removed to work in Fredericksburg. Mrs. Brooks will begin her work of copying old records in Falmouth tomorrow.

Charles Insco Williams, assistant CWA administrator in King George County, has replaced W. T. Allen, resigned administrator. Walter D. Purks has been named purchasing agent and assistant administrator for King George.

Mr. Allen resigned because he was already on the Government pension rolls.

La Prade S. Jones, foreman on the CWA cemetery project here, has been promoted to assistant CWA administrator for Fredericksburg. He is succeeded as foreman by Battaile Dickinson.

Police Face Tests On 'Common Sense'

Winchester School Seeks Practical Basis.

Winchester, Va., Jan. 12 (Spl.). Winchester police officers will be questioned on their present, practical knowledge of police affairs at the second annual Police School scheduled to open within the next month, rather than on the subject matter which they have acquired from textbooks, Chief of Police C. W. Hollis said today.

Hollis said the results of the examination would be studied by him, Mayor Charles R. Anderson and W. Nelson Page, chairman of the police committee of the Common Council, to determine the qualifications of the officers.

Hollis personally will conduct the school. Winchester magistrates, lawyers and others connected with the enforcement of laws here will address class meetings. Police officers in Clarke, Warren, Shenandoah and Frederick Counties were invited to the school last year, and will be invited again this year. General plans for the school were developed by the League of Virginia Municipalities.

Slayer Loses 7th Plea for Freedom

Court Not Obliged to Act on Habeas Corpus.

Baltimore, Jan. 12 (AP).—The seventh effort of Louis Berman, serving a life sentence in the Maryland penitentiary for murder, to gain his freedom, did not even reach the judge.

Harry W. Rogers, chief deputy clerk of circuit court here, where the application for a habeas corpus writ was filed yesterday, said it would be returned, as an equity court judge is not required to issue such a writ under a Maryland statute.

Berman was convicted of the murder of his attorney, Clifford S. Brown. He previously had filed petitions twice in Baltimore courts and also at Towson, Princess Anne, Oakland, and Rockville, alleging his sanity plea was not given a fair consideration.

Ocean City Assured Of Flood Protection

Protection against floods such as resulted from a hurricane that swept the Atlantic seaboard last spring is to be provided for Ocean City, Md., it was learned yesterday as the War Department awarded contract for the construction of a bulkhead along the center of South Second street. The contract was awarded to Samuel S. Jones, of Mount Vernon, N. Y., at a bid of $12,984.

Two Get Year's Terms In Hopewell Robbery

Hopewell, Va., Jan. 12 (Spl.).—Harry Savage and Burwell Dixon, of Richmond, were sentenced to one year in jail yesterday on the charge of robbing Saul's Style Shop here recently.

Thirty-one of the suits taken were found in Chesterfield County this week. Bill Talkey, third member of the robbery trio, was turned over to Richmond authorities.

Bonaparte Widow Not So Sad

Beauty Deserted by Napoleon's Brother Was Instructed to Use Wiles on Legislature to Gain Divorce, Newly Found Records Reveal.

Cambridge, Md., Jan. 12 (AP). Rummaging through a 140-year-old desk, Mrs. Sadie Harrington Bayly recently discovered the age-yellowed record of Betsy Patterson Bonaparte's divorce from Jerome Bonaparte, brother of Napoleon. The papers disproved much of the pathos with which some historians have garnished Maryland's favorite romance.

Many stories about Betsy and Jerome had her spending the last 72 years of her life—after Jerome deserted her and his son for a throne—in sorrow as she failed to reunite with the imperial family. Though there is evidence she did try to find a place near Napoleon for her son, Betsy, it now appears, was not the sorrowing sort. Mrs. Bayly's discovery shows that instead of weeping, she went before the Maryland Legislature of 1812 to "exert the blandishments of her beauty," and got a divorce.

Jerome Bonaparte came to Baltimore on a French battleship. Soon he met Betsy, the beauty of her day. Over the objection of her father and his brother, they were married in 1803, when Betsy was 18.

Two years later the Bonapartes went to France. There not only did Napoleon prohibit her from entering the country, but went to the Pope to have the marriage annulled. The Pope refusing, Napoleon annulled it himself. Soon thereafter he had Jerome marry Princess Frederick Catherine of Wurtemburg and made him King of Westphalia. Betsy returned to Baltimore with her baby son.

Attached to the divorce petition was found a memorandum by Benjamin W. LeCompte, of Annapolis, who wrote: "Mme. Bonaparte is to appear and exert the blandishments of her beauty and address to induce a favorable impression upon the Legislature."

Betsy Patterson Bonaparte died at the age of 93 in a Baltimore boarding house. Her imperial mien remained until the last, according to old newspaper clippings.

Her grandson, the late Charles J. Bonaparte, became both Secretary of the Navy and Attorney General under President Theodore Roosevelt.

West Virginia Tax Plan Again Ruled Illegal

Supreme Court Refuses to Reverse Opinion; Repeal Bill Up.

Charleston, W. Va., Jan. 12 (Spl.). By a 3-to-2 vote, the State Supreme Court today refused to reverse its recent decision that the second State property collection tax plan adopted by the Legislature was unconstitutional.

Thus was returned to a weary and puzzled Legislature for the third time a plan to collect property taxes of some $25,000,000 impounded under the tax levy-limiting amendment to the State constitution.

The tax collection act, which provided for State assumption of school and road bonds issued by local government units, had been returned to the court for reconsideration on a petition of Fred L. Fox, State tax commissioner, who asserted that 33 of the 55 counties of the State could not carry on governmental activities unless the court reversed its decision.

Judges Hatcher and Woods dissented from the court's refusal to reverse its previous decision and reserved the right to file explanatory opinions. A similar right also was reserved by the majority of the court comprising Judges Maxwell, Litz and Kenna.

Legislature Adjourns.

Both houses of the Legislature adjourned this afternoon, the House of Delegates until Monday and the Senate until Tuesday, after each gave final approval to one bill and considered pending legislation.

The House passed finally a measure authorizing county assessors to collect municipal dog taxes at the same time they collected the State tax. The Senate gave final approval to a bill reducing membership of the Tyler County Court from six to three at the expiration of present terms.

House leaders started a new drive to line up enough votes to carry the prohibition repeal measure. A roll call yesterday failed to muster the necessary 63 votes. The result was 49 for flat repeal and 26 against.

The roll call vote gave new hope to supporters of the State liquor monopoly plan advocated in the Senate by Hodges (Democrat). This plan has been held at the amendment stage for several days in the Senate.

After being thrown out a few days ago on the point of order that it was outside the governor's call, a bill to cut interest on loans of $300 and less was returned to the House in the form of a revenue raiser.

License Fees Increased.

As reintroduced by Delegate Walter E. Stout (Democrat), Wood, it raises the license fee for small loan companies from $100 to $125 annually and carries the same interest rate of 2 per cent monthly for loans of $150 or less and 1 per cent on loans between $150 and $300. Present rates are 3½ per cent.

Gov. Kump has signed a bill changing the name of the Rutherford Sanitarium at Beckley to Pinecrest Sanitarium.

The governor also signed an act authorizing the Mercer County board of education to borrow not more than $125,000 in Federal funds for construction of a high school at Athens.

A bill authorizing Parkersburg to den-Clark hospital with Federal funds has been passed by the Senate and sent to the House. It does not specify the amount to be borrowed.

Alien Smuggling Nets Year's Term

Ship Fireman Named by 2 Spanish Stowaways.

Baltimore, Jan. 12 (AP). — David Bell, a fireman on the Baton Herries, a British vessel, today was under sentence of one year in jail for conviction of smuggling an alien into the United States.

In imposing sentence yesterday, Judge W. Calvin Chesnut said he had considered the Federal Court jurys' recommendation for mercy. The judge refused two weeks ago to accept Bell's plea of guilty because of the seriousness of the charge.

Two Spanish stowaways found on the ship when it docked here from Cuba, two months ago, said the fireman assisted them to get aboard the vessel.

Cumberland Firemen Elect.

Cumberland, Md., Jan. 12 (Spl.).—James Coddington was chosen president of Cumberland Hose Company No. 1, century-old fire organization. Other officers are Ralph Gantt, secretary-treasurer; Charles L. Colley, chief; William G. Clugston, color bearer, and J. E. Dawson, Edgar Matthews, Thomas Lease and Lester Little, assistant chiefs.

Policeman Cleared Of Beating Cripple

Danville, Va., Jan. 12 (Spl.).—Police Lieut. H. A. Haraway was cleared by Magistrate Charles K. Carter of charges that he struck Lonnie Pruitt, a cripple, with his blackjack after pursuing him into his home. Haraway was also cleared of a charge of trespass.

Pruitt was fined $10 for intoxication and $10 for resisting arrest. The police sergeant said that he struck Pruitt with his hand.

Relief Office Hours.

Lexington, Va., Jan. 12 (Spl.). Mrs. Elinor Robertson, emergency relief director for Rockbridge County, has announced she will be in the emergency relief office in the First National Bank Building all day on Wednesdays and Saturdays to list relief cases.

Owners Place $50,000 Value On Park Spring

Mace Waters Have Worth as Medicine, Hearing Is Assured.

Harrisonburg, Va., Jan. 12 (Spl.). Mace Spring, located in the slopes of the Blue Ridge Mountains in East Rockingham, was valued at $50,000 by the owners yesterday before the Shenandoah National Park lands special arbitration court.

Judge H. W. Bertram, of Rockingham Circuit Court; Judge Phillip Williams, of Winchester, and Judge J. R. H. Alexander, of Leesburg, took the claim under advisement, after hearing testimony alleging high medicinal qualities of the water.

John Mace, spokesman for the estate of his father, owner of the spring, said he was willing to have the spring and a 10-acre tract surrounding excluded from the park area unless the claim were allowed. He said the park appraisers' figures for the remainder of the 900-acre tract owned by the estate were satisfactory. The appraisers, however, placed a value of only $100 on the spring.

The $50,000 claim is said to be the largest yet presented to the arbitration court.

Condemnation Sought.

Front Royal, Va., Jan. 12 (Spl.).—The State Conservation Commission is seeking condemnation of property owned by Waverly T. Dyer, C. G. Southard and B. P. Richards in three cases being tried today in the Madison County Circuit Court.

The commission seeks to acquire the property for the Shenandoah National Park. The landowners are contending for higher valuations than were allowed by the park appraisers.

S. H. Marsh, until recently State supervisor of parks and now with the National Forestry Service in Washington, returned here last night and accompanied the commission attornies to Madison today to assist in the proceedings.

Injured Deputy Expected to Live

Bodies of His Prisoners Taken by Parents.

Hagerstown, Md., Jan. 12 (Spl.). Deputy Sheriff Richard Renner, injured yesterday in a crash here in which two prisoners he was bringing to Hagerstown were killed, was given a chance to recover today although he suffered a fractured skull, broken nose, three fractured ribs and internal injuries.

Richard Mallott, Needmore, Pa., father of Clyde O. Mallot, 25, one of the two killed, today claimed the body, while the body of Orval M. Oliver, 23, was sent to the home of his father, Fred Oliver, Gloucester, Ohio.

Renner again told officers that one of the two struck him on the head, causing him to lose control of the car, which left the road and struck a pole.

Survey Started At Hagerstown

Real Estate Information Sought Through CWA.

Hagerstown, Md., Jan. 12 (Spl.). Twenty-one enumerators yesterday began a canvass of real estate here in the real property inventory, designed by the Civil Works Administration as part of a Nation-wide program to take men and women from unemployment rolls.

John W. Hoffman, district census supervisor, is in charge of the survey, assisted by William Wingert.

Included in the census will be information showing the condition of property in regard to repairs and improvements, number of vacant properties, number of families doubling up because of the depression, physical character of the structure, equipment installed, and information of a similar character. It will also show the average current rental which can then be compared with census data from 1929.

D. A. V. Convention Set at Wheeling

West Virginia Veterans Meet May 25-26.

Wheeling, W. Va., Jan. 12 (Spl.). The annual West Virginia convention of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War will be held at Wheeling Friday and Saturday, May 25 and 26, the Wheeling Chapter announces. About 800 veterans from all parts of the State are expected to attend. Fifteen posts will be represented.

The general convention committee is composed of E. F. Kratz, commander; H. C. Perrine, Walter M. Ushman, Frank V. Lally, J. M. Flatley, E. Hannig. An elaborate program is being arranged.

A county council of the D. A. V. was appointed to look after the veterans who have been registered for CWA jobs, but who have not been employed. H. C. Perrine, E. F. Kratz and J. M. Flatley compose the council.

W. H. Townshend Named To Anne Arundel Post

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 12 (AP).—William W. Townshend, of Davidsonville, today was appointed by Gov. Ritchie to fill a vacancy on the board of county commissioners of Anne Arundel County.

Townshend, who succeeds the late W. Tudor Jones, will represent the First District. His term expires next fall.

Gen. Lejeune to Speak.

Petersburg, Va., Jan. 12 (Spl.).—Maj. Gen. J. E. Lejeune, U. S. A., retired, who is now serving as superintendent of the Virginia Military Institute, will be in this city next Wednesday night to address a meeting of the Southside Virginia Club of V. M. I.

Oil Station Chain Faces Injunction

Baltimore, Jan. 12 (AP).—Herman L. Mills, operator of gasoline filling stations in Hagerstown, Frederick and Chambersburg, Pa., has been given until January 22 to show cause why he should not be enjoined from giving premiums to induce people to buy his gasoline and oil.

Injunction proceedings were started yesterday in United States District Court here against him on accusations of violation of a section of the petroleum code prohibiting premiums. Government investigators asserted Mills admitted giving away soap and other premiums and refused to stop the practice.

Arguments are to be submitted on January 24. Cornelius Mundy, assistant United States attorney, filed the petition.

Male Chorus' Concert Wins Music Lovers

Interstate Singers Include Difficult Compositions; Audience Cordial.

By Ray C. B. Brown.

An interesting program was presented Thursday evening by the Interstate Male Chorus, under direction of Clyde B. Aitchison, in the auditorium of Roosevelt High School. A cordial audience was present.

With the assistance of Auralia Beck, the 40-odd singers essayed such unhackneyed compositions as the Brahms "Rhapsody" to Goethe's text from the "Harzreise im Winter," and the lovely Schubert "Staendchen" (Opus 135) in Louis Victor Saar's arrangement. For these items alone the music lover could count the time well spent.

With no feminine voice for contrast, the tenors and basses intoned Arthur Foote's "The Farewell of Hiawatha," Eaton Faning's "Song of the Vikings," the impressive coronation chorus from "Boris Godunov," a Czechoslovakian dance song by Basil Kabalchich, the serenade from Romberg's "The Student Prince," Grechaninov's "Song of the Cherubim," a selection from Arthur Sullivan's "Ivanhoe," Ivan Servais' "The Merry Musketeers," and arrangements of music by Adolf Jensen and Pearl Curran.

This chorus, obviously, sings not with the impulse of pride or vainglory, but for the enjoyment of musical companionship. For their motto they might, with apologies to the Psalmist, alter one word in the line which F. Dominic Waedenschwiler has set to music for their closing chant, and make it read: "Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to sing together in unity."

The organization lacks professional finish in attack, tonal balance and clarity of antiphonal phrasing, but it sings with sincerity, and communicates its emotional intentions. The fact the group is entering upon its fourteenth season speaks volumes for its integrity. Vicissitudes of changing personnel have not affected the common spirit—to sing for their own pleasure and the pleasure of others.

Radio Waves and Ripples

IF loudspeakers in a large number of Washington homes tonight should blat, "Look out for Joseph J. McSquiggle . . . escaped from Gallinger Hospital . . . wanted for grand larceny," no one but Mr. McSquiggle need be alarmed.

As a sort of experiment, to try the public taste for that sort of thing, WJSV is installing a short-wave receiver for rebroadcasting announcements from Washington's police transmitter after 11 o'clock tonight.

The plan is to wire the short-wave set in some manner impossible for laymen to understand, to WJSV's transmitter. Police instructions to squad cars are repeated twice. If the control operator hears an announcement he thinks interesting, like the one about Mr. McSquiggle, all he has to do is throw a switch and the Police Department goes on the air in commercial broadcasting waves.

Mr. McSquiggle, if he likes, can take the next train for Mexico.

It took Maude Adams a few days to discover a proper name for what studio hands since the beginning of broadcasting have been calling misleadingly the "control room."

Miss Adams didn't like the sound of the word "control." No one controlled her in "Peter Pan," for instance, and she saw no reason for setting precedents.

So the glass-inclosed room in which engineers take charge of programs as they pass through the technical equipment is henceforth to be known, at N. B. C., at least, as the "studio monitoring booth."

Miss Adams is said to be pleased.

There is a fair chance that one of these days the Federal Radio Commission will be telling broadcasters how much time they may devote to advertising.

The law denies the commission the right of censorship over programs, but it also empowers that body to regulate broadcasting for the "public interest." The feeling is strong among the commissioners that certain types of radio advertising fall outside that classification. Liquor advertising is one. Patent medicines and cosmetics are others. And there are some who believe that long-winded advertising of any product on the air is not exactly beneficial. Whether or not the commission can administrate along these lines under the public interest clause is a matter for the courts ultimately to decide.

Meanwhile, the broadcasters are imposing regulations of their own, hoping to forestall Commission action, realizing somewhat that the saturation point has been reached for most kinds of advertising. N. B. C.'s recent order against spot advertising, which was made nationwide, and Columbia's pronouncement on rum ads are examples.

Postmaster General Farley speaks from a microphone twice during the week-end.

Belgians Are Silent On American Bond Ban

Brussels, Jan. 12 (AP).—Belgian foreign office officials declined today to discuss passage by the United States Senate of a bill which would prohibit Americans from buying bonds of debt-defauting nations.

Their silence was predicated largely on reports received from Washington indicating to them what was considered the improbability of the measure receiving indorsement of the House and President Roosevelt.

Japanese, Roosevelt Classmate, to Visit

Tokyo, Jan. 12 (AP).—Otoniko Matsukata, off on a three-month goodwill tour of the United States, sailed on the Empress of Asia for Vancouver today.

Matsukata, prominent Tokyo business man and a Harvard classmate of President Roosevelt, is scheduled to arrive at Vancouver, B. C., January 21.

New Deal Crowds Commerce Force From Huge Building

15-Year Expansion Plan Inadequate, So "Pent-House" Is Used.

The new $17,500,000 Department of Commerce Building, designed to take care of "normal" expansion for 15 years, has been forced by the New Deal to spill part of its personnel into another building.

It was learned yesterday that five divisions of the department's Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, including nearly 100 persons are being moved across town to the Investment Building at Fifteenth and K streets.

There is "emergency work" to be done by the Civil Works Administration, which requires the exodus of regular department workers. Thus, the Capital's building program, which aimed to bring under one roof all those members of one department who had previously been scattered around Washington, goes by the board.

But 35 girls who occupy a "penthouse" on the eighth floor of the Commerce Building, have not yet heard about the new trend toward decentralization. Theirs is not the kind of penthouse one is dazzled by in the movies. In fact, it was very recently a storeroom. It has only a small row of windows at the west side, which provide poor ventilation and make artificial lighting necessary nearly all the time. But the girls, file clerks in the Home Owners Loan Corporation, were stuffed into it because there is room for them, apparently, nowhere else.

Kansans in Capital Dance January 29

Woodring, Curtis, Helvering Among Guests.

The annual ball and banquet of the Kansas State Society will be held at the Mayflower Hotel January 29, Senator George McGill, of Kansas, president of the organization, announced yesterday. The affair will commemorate the seventy-third anniversary of the admission of Kansas to the Union.

In addition to the Congressional delegation, the society will have among its guests Assistant Secretary of War, Harry W. Woodring; Commissioner of Internal Revenue, Guy T. Helvering, and Former Vice President Charles Curtis.

Arrangements are being handled by R. C. Jones, secretary to Representative U. S. Guyer. All Kansans in Washington have been invited to attend.

Reciprocity Club Ball Tonight.

A special table has been reserved for Washington Reciprocity Club members at the first annual Reciprocity Club ball to be held tonight in the Adelphia Hotel, Philadelphia, it was announeed yesterday by Ralph Bangs, president of the local organization.

Are You A COLDS-SUSCEPTIBLE?

Do You CATCH COLD Easily?

If you have 4 or more miserable colds a year—you're what medical authorities call a "Colds-Susceptible." At that first warning sign of "catching cold," use Vicks Nose & Throat Drops, the new aid in preventing colds.

Do Your Colds Hang On AND ON?

If you have much trouble in throwing off colds, you're a Colds-Susceptible! At bedtime, apply Vicks VapoRub. Its night-long poultice-vapor action . . . proved by two generations . . . brings soothing relief. Helps to end a cold sooner.

WELCOME NEWS FOR COLDS-SUSCEPTIBLES!

In clinical tests among thousands, Vicks Plan for better Control of Colds has greatly reduced the number and duration of colds. Full details of the Plan in each Vicks package.

A BIGGER
SMOOTHER, FASTER STRAIGHT 8
featuring KNEE-ACTION WHEELS

and BENDIX BRAKES • K-Y FRAME • LARGER, FINER FISHER BODIES LONGER WHEELBASE (117-INCH) • STARTERATOR • GAS-ELECTOR • CROSS-FLOW RADIATOR • FISHER
NO DRAFT VENTILATION

GET A STRAIGHT EIGHT FOR YOUR MONEY!

GET A STRAIGHT 8 because

1 You can get a big, roomy Pontiac Straight Eight at a price that is very little more than that of the very cheapest cars. The smart, new Fisher bodies are finer and more spacious. The improved Straight Eight engine gives you greater power and speed—full 84 h. p. and a top speed of 82 actual miles an hour!

2 Here is a car that gives you the inherent smoothness, flexibility and luxury of Straight Eight transportation at a price that compares favorably with the prices of many cars with less to offer in cylinders, performance and size. The new Pontiac, remember, is definitely in the low-price field!

3 Last year's famous Pontiac was known as the Economy Straight Eight because its fuel costs were well in line with those of sixes. Today's Pontiac, thanks to further refinements in its Straight Eight engine, gives you more miles to the gallon by a generous 10 per cent. Remarkable economy!

4 The trend today is toward Straight Eights. The Pontiac Straight Eight for 1934 will depreciate more slowly, and all evidence indicates a higher resale value "at the end of the road," just because it is a Straight Eight. Another good reason why this great, new Pontiac is such a wise investment!

5 If your present car will make the down payment on a car of cheaper make, it will probably make the down payment on a big, new Pontiac. Your monthly payments, in any case, will be but a few dollars more. Why wait? See and drive the big, new Pontiac. Get a Straight Eight for your money!

The Honolulu Flight.

Lieut. Comdr. Knefler McGinnis regards the mass flight of six Navy planes from San Francisco to Honolulu as simply a routine performance. These planes were designated for patrol duty at Pearl Harbor. Instead of being shipped to their destination, they were flown by a crew of 30 men over 2,400 miles of the open Pacific. To skilled fliers this may be "just another night hop." But it is nevertheless of striking significance in the development of long-distance aviation, both commercial and military.

The stretch between the United States and Hawaii is the longest over-water hop in flying the Pacific. Between Hawaii and the Philippines or other parts of Asia a number of islands might serve as stopping-points. Gen. Balbo brought the Italian air squadron to the United States last summer without making any nonstop flight equal in distance to the one just completed by the American planes. They have set a new distance record for mass flights. Almost any part of the world may be reached without flying over more than 2,400 miles of open sea in a single stage.

Aviators have spanned the distance between our Western Coast and Honolulu a number of times. But most of these flights have been experimental solos. When six Navy planes make the trip in formation without accident or undue difficulty the range of the airplane as an instrument of destruction in war time is graphically illustrated. Even more graphic, to the thoughtful observer, is the object lesson—the necessity of insuring peace in the Pacific.

Reconsideration Desirable.

On Wednesday the Senate by a vote of 40 to 39 attached an amendment to the House liquor-tax bill providing for the imposition of penalty duties upon liquors imported from countries in default on war debt payments. After sleeping on this quaint proposal the august body agreed on Thursday to reconsider the action taken Wednesday, and finally repassed the liquor bill minus the amendment.

Thereupon Senator Hiram Johnson, most subtle of unsagacious parliamentarians, introduced a stronger measure prohibiting financial transactions with any foreign government in default, either in whole or in part, to the United States or its citizens. This proposal, which would entail a financial boycott of most of the important trading nations of the world, was approved and again a motion to reconsider was filed. Perhaps it occurred to some of the Senators that on this basis we ought to be boycotted, too.

Apparently a large number of Senators really believe that the United States can collect money from defaulting foreign nations by threatening to penalize them. Seemingly they do not realize that such punishment would immediately injure their fellow citizens while producing little impression upon offending debtors. After all, these last possess some very effective weapons with which to resist a creditor as aggressive as the Senator from California would have us be.

These senatorial flurries are thought-provoking as illustrating the difficulties which confront the Administration in its efforts to restore our foreign trade. There is absolutely no excuse for a muddled confusion of issues that should be considered independently. War debt policies should be debated as such, and tariff policies should be decided on their merits. The determination of these important issues must not be thwarted by hasty action such as the introduction of irrelevant matter into liquor tax bills or laws decreeing a financial boycott against defaulting nations, with which the Administration desires to negotiate commercial agreements. Such legislative tactics only serve to bring the Senate into ridicule. As Senator Harrison says, they "clog and disarrange our diplomatic relationships" without in any way accomplishing their avowed purpose.

What Price Economy?

Strange, indeed, are the ways in which economies are sometimes made at the expense of the District. A few years ago Congress decided that Washington should have two municipal incinerators. Accordingly these trash disposal plants were built, one in Georgetown and another in the southeastern section of the city. But last year Congress repented of its generosity in appropriating District funds for this purpose and voted to close the Southeast incinerator for the sake of economy.

Although more than $300,000 had been invested in this modern plant it was thus left idle for want of operating expenses, after it had been in use only eight and a half months. The antiquated and repulsive method of burning refuse in an open dump was revived as a means of saving money. Now comes a statement from the District's sanitary engineer to the effect that this reversion to primitive methods is as expensive as operation of the incinerator.

It is a pity that Congress is so slothful in considering ways and means of saving money for the District. The wisdom of perpetuating open dumps for the disposal of trash in the National Capital would be open to question, even if considerable savings could be effected thereby. But when an expensive plant remains idle while the District pays a high cost to maintain a malodorous and unsightly dump it may be inquired, modestly, what explanation can be vouchsafed from Capitol Hill?

Testing Party Loyalty.

Just prior to the present session of Congress Representative Buchanan, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, emphasized the desirability of eliminating legislative "riders" from appropriation bills. "In recent years," he said, "we have been using supply measures too broadly for legislation." Apparently House leaders were in agreement upon a policy of permitting "riders" only on specific requests from the President.

In spite of this attitude, all of the 1935 appropriation bills contain important legislative provisions and will be passed under one of the most drastic rules ever applied to measures of this kind in the House. The special rule adopted Thursday with respect to appropriation bills forbids amendments to the economy sections unless the proposed changes have the approval of the Appropriations Committee. For instance, members of the House will be unable to vote against the 10 per cent reduction in Federal salaries for 1935, without voting against the entire economy section.

Opponents of this rule showed surprising strength, mustering 192 votes against 197 for the majority. A large number of Democratic as well as Republican congressmen resent this instance of executive pressure. They feel that the country is not confronted with an emergency justifying extraordinary legislative technique, and that customary procedure should not be abandoned at the behest of the White House.

On the other hand, a large part of the opposition to the so-called "gag" rule comes from representatives who are anxious to upset the economy legislation passed last spring. In urging the House leaders to guard the economy measures against amendment, President Roosevelt perhaps felt that reckless appropriations could be avoided in no other way. The restoration of Federal salaries is only one of the issues involved. With the Administration planning to spend more than $10,000,000,000 this year, the importance of keeping a tight rein on appropriations for 1935 is intensified.

Uncritical adoption of legislation on executive mandate is contrary to the principles of our Government. Drastic rules to secure this procedure inevitably lead to charges that the Legislature is a mere tool of the Executive. Moreover, in the present case, congressmen who find it politically advisable to vote for extravagant measures are enabled to hide that purpose behind the claim that they are being gagged. The President would be on more secure ground if he would avoid tactics which savor of dictatorship while letting it be known in advance that he will use the veto power unsparingly when necessary to safeguard budgetary stability.

A Change Of Governors.

Regardless of the merit of the charges brought by the Puerto Ricans, the extent of hostile criticism has for some time made it apparent that President Roosevelt could not advantageously retain Robert H. Gore as governor of the island.

His successor, Maj. Gen. Blanton Winship, retiring judge advocate general of the Army, entered the service from the legal profession during the Spanish-American War. He has won medals for extraordinary heroism and gallantry in action, but his outstanding service has been in advisory and diplomatic positions.

He served as acting secretary of state and justice in Cuba during the occupation of 1906-1909, and was a member of the commission for the revision of Cuban laws. He served as judge advocate and officer in charge of civil affairs with the Funston expedition in Mexico, as aid to two Presidents and as adviser to two Governors General of the Philippines. His most recent activity, prior to his retirement a month ago, was as special commissioner to Liberia, cooperating with other commissioners from the League of Nations in effecting much needed reforms in that country.

When Gen. Winship went to the Philippines as adviser to the Governor General, there was some resentment that a military man should be sent out as legal adviser, but his tact and personality won him a warm welcome in those islands. The country will hope that the same qualities will bring him equal success in his new, and difficult, position of trust.

And The Goose Hangs High.

When Mayor Fiorella LaGuardia demanded legislation conferring upon himself virtually a free hand to reopen New York City's budget, eliminate jobs and make other radical revisions in the city's governmental structure, to meet the financial emergency, he set off verbal pyrotechnics whose glow is only now fading from the heavens.

Gov. Lehman demurred to the mayor's demand for such legislation in a document that ably protested the assumption that substitution of dictatorships for democratic methods of meeting emergencies is wise or desirable. The Governor found it necessary to differentiate between the broad powers granted the President and those asked by Mr. LaGuardia. The mayor replied, in effect, that he was setting up no dictatorship, but on the contrary was trying to break the dictatorship of Tammany and the financial dictatorship exercised by bankers under the agreement sponsored last year by Gov. Lehman. It was one of those rare political debates worth reading.

As frequently happens when reasonable men sit down together, the mayor and the governor are in accord. The governor will not support legislation granting the mayor the powers he requested, but he will support a bill conferring those powers, until October 1, 1934, upon the Board of Estimate. It so happens that the Fusionists who elected Mayor LaGuardia control 12 out of 16 votes in that board, so that it will not be difficult for him to muster the 10 votes necessary to get emergency measures through. If it passes, the bill would virtually strip the Tammany-controlled Board of Aldermen of New York City of its veto over legislation.

The governor has sustained his principle; the mayor, on the other hand, has won a victory. Another hurdle awaits him; he must get his bill through the State Legislature, but he seems to be confident he can do that. Everybody is smiling and happy except the big, bad Tammany Tiger. And who's afraid of him?

The Spirit Of Riis.

A story in yesterday's Post, recalling that it was Jacob Riis who started the fight on alley dwellings in Washington, had a happy counterpart in New York papers.

A friend of Theodore Roosevelt, Mr. Riis, already nationally known as a crusader for better social conditions, came to Washington 30 years ago and studied housing. He found people living under almost indescribably bad conditions, but his story elicited little response until he told a Senate committee that the towels used by the Senate's barber were laundered in a house with an occupant far gone in tuberculosis.

The spirit of Jacob Riis goes marching on, both here and in New York. Langdon W. Post, tenement house commissioner, is opening a drive next week for a $25,000 budget for the Jacob Riis Settlement House in Henry street, founded by Riis and now conducted by his widow. The money will be used to push the fight for slum clearance in New York; the settlement house is to be the "focal point," Commissioner Post says, in the attack upon housing conditions.

Here in Washington we have been learning recently that the campaign which Riis began must be pressed. Publicity is necessary to impress upon that part of our citizenry which lives in security and comfort that too many Washington people are living under conditions little, if any, better than those which Riis described. It is specious to argue, as some unnamed "official" is reported to have contended, that nothing can be done toward tearing down hovels and erecting modern apartments "as long as publicity and agitation laying stress on the grossness of living conditions in specific alleys and streets causes prices to skyrocket." That is no valid contention; it is a plea in abeyance. The power to condemn is always at the command of diligent public servants who desire to use it, and the power to condemn carries with it the machinery for fixing a fair price.

"Clouded By Controversy."

Next Tuesday the House Coinage Committee will begin hearings to determine the "advisability of stabilizing the dollar on a metallic basis." The committee is planning to invite representatives of all shades of opinion, both friends and foes of the Administration's monetary policy, to throw light on a situation which, as Chairman Somers says mildly, "has become clouded with controversy."

If the witnesses are selected with care and impartiality, and encouraged to present their views fully and freely, the committee hearings will meet a long-felt need. The give and take of friendly, informative discussion between legislators and monetary experts would help greatly to enlighten a public which earnestly desires to understand the merits of a controversy which concerns them so intimately. Isolated articles written by experts and group manifestoes praising or condemning our monetary experiments are more apt to confuse than to assist the average man untrained in the intricacies of monetary theory.

Obscurities can be cleared up and apparent contradictions often reconciled by the method of direct question and answer. If the House Coinage Committee regards its hearings as an occasion for open discussion of moot questions of policy, both investigators and witnesses will benefit and the general public will receive instruction while the work of enlightenment proceeds.

Letters to the Editor

The Post welcomes letters from its readers. All communications should be signed with the writer's name. Upon publication initials or pen names will be used if requested. Letters should be limited to 300 words.

A Memory of Conan Doyle.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A recent editorial in The Post mentions a statue to Sherlock Holmes that may be erected in London—of course on Baker street. This will be read with pleasure and interest. Sherlock Holmes seems very much alive. Subject and personality have alike gripped the popular imagination.

In Charles Dickens, Balzac, Thackeray, varied peaks of genius scintillate. By contrast, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, though writing indeed in a scholarly way on a number of subjects, will be remembered principally for his Sherlock Holmes, a figure, alert, attractive; a mind astute, deductive; with cultural background, a gentleman in manner and suave repression, a nature kindly, sympathetic, helpful. And the digression of dear Dr. Watson, who, according to Holmes, is always on the wrong track, giving the opportunity for much mystification and corrective talk from Holmes!

Memory reverts to London, many years ago, and the invitation received from Sir Arthur Conan Doyle to spend the day and night at his beautiful estate in Sussex.

The morning was delightful, as we sped onward through the enchanting scenery of Old England. At an isolated station the train stopped. Our host was there in greeting. Dressed in golfing tweeds, he looked the typical Britisher, fine, robust figure, courteous and hearty in manner, speech incisive, with pronounced Scotch burr—a man of action and will—plainly to be seen—with a kindly nature peeping through.

The house was soon reached, low, central entrance, extensive wings, maybe built by accretion

If Sir Arthur was direct, Lady Doyle was all graciousness, truly feminine, a charming hostess. Three of the children were present at luncheon, and, as they were real, live children, the deftly served meal had other delights, besides elegance and simplicity.

After luncheon the living room furnished comfort and diversion—an immense room, more like a public hall. Books lined the walls, and there were also trophies of hunting, German helmets and weapons. The time was just after the great war. The Doyle children were fond of pets, a dog, a pony, and, as we sat by the open fire, a huge snake crept out from under the heated grate, to welcome us. So afternoon and evening passed congenially and happily with kind friends. And at night we felt secure and protected. Sherlock Holmes was near.

In the front of the house flowers bloomed in variety and profusion. The pergolas of roses are especially remembered. To the left of the house was a large stubble-field, where the pony grazed. In the far cornor, stood a sheltered summerhouse. Weather permitting, this was Sir Arthur's place of quiet writing.

And near the summerhouse, the author of Sherlock Holmes sleeps his long sleep. It would seem fitting. OTTO TORNEY SIMON.

Government Jobs.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I often think when I read the kicks from Government workers and 90-day soldiers how they would like to change jobs with the CWA and CCC crowd; also, salaries. Really, they have no more right to those jobs than anyone else. Many got there through politics and many got let out a la Harding. If the Government workers only knew it they should thank the Lord for the jobs, even with the 15 per cent cut. They are much better off than their neighbors who have no work or CWA work, and as to some former soldiers, they never should have had the bonus as they made as much as they would have made at home. The soldier will learn we all made sacrifices and gave many days' pay while he soldiered. J. W. M.

The D. C. Liquor Question.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: If there ever was a time in the history of the world when the words of the Bible as written in Ecclesiastes, chapter 1, were entirely fulfilled, surely that time is the present time. "Vanity of vanities, saith the Preacher, the son of David, King of Jerusalem, all is vanity."

Last Saturday, January 6, I listened over the radio from 10 a. m. till after 5:30 p. m. to the open hearings of the Senate and House committees in their effort to obtain the concrete opinion of Washingtonians regarding their wishes and desires concerning a "liquor law" for the District of Columbia, which Congress is about to enact.

Was it amusing—and how! Did any part of the investigation exhibit a sincere desire to "deal justly" with everybody concerned? Did any of the propositions have any regard for our President's personal assurance "that there is to be no return of the old saloon?" Did this investigation hold out any assurance that the mandate of the people voting for repeal, under the promise of no return of the saloon, was to be observed and obeyed?

The only idea, as I got it, was to raise revenue for the Government. The question that arises in my mind is how do they figure that there will be any revenue if the Government establishes a price of $4, $6 or $8 per gallon, when any bootlegger or moonshiner can make and sell the same quality of liquor for 30 cents per gallon?

"Constructive Criticism."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Because of the standing notice in The Post that you welcome letters from readers, I take the liberty of stating the position of a reader who has lived with The Post through its adversity when the Associated Press and its exceptional editorial page alone kept it in the field of morning papers.

Now that it has been built up admirably in many ways, the outstanding feature, the editorial page, has become a page of resume of news articles. To convince myself that I am not alone in this opinion I have watched both the Literary Digest and the New York Times, both of which used frequently to quote The Post's opinion and have not seen a credit to The Post in several months.

You have eliminated the brightest column, Post Haste, published in Washington. Bargeron's semi-sarcastic column is amusing, but the intelligent, witty, good-natured comment in the Post Haste column is a great loss to your readers.

I suppose The Post welcomes letters as does President Roosevelt "constructive criticism," when it agrees with him. But as a reader of The Post for many years and feeling I have a right to ask for a feature not only I, but many of my friends have said they enjoyed. I wish The Post a successful future and hope the new year may find Post Haste restored.

Public Ownership of Utilities.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Permit the suggestion that Mr. Walter I. Priest read "The Modern Corporation and Private Property," by Berle and Means, and then write the editor again to tell us what he thinks of the status of private property.

The conventional, stereotyped notion that public ownership of utilities is a beginning in the breakdown of private property and the competitive system is seriously in error. On the contrary the domination of the Government by monopoly interests whose profits are politically and not competitively determined, stands on one of the most weighty elements in the creation of the speculative instability that periodically wrecks our monetary system and jeopardizes the security of private property, wages, employment and everything else that is essential to a healthy competitive set-up.

Representative Edward C. Eicher, of Iowa, in a recent letter to President Roosevelt, has most astutely suggested that if we wish to prevent the wrecking of our monetary system, and so, of the very basis of property and its free and fair exchange, the Government will do well to acquire the reservoir of financial control that exists in the ownership of the already noncompetitive quasi-public utility corporations. Currency laws are futile while such control is in private hands and plays so large a part in speculation on the stock exchange.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Red-Headed Daughter

By Robert Quillen.

My dear Louise: A letter like this written to a red-head, may be a waste of love's labor, like urging a game rooster to stand his ground; but I have preached at you about courtesy and unselfishness and similar virtues so long and so often that I may have overdone it.

There is a time for meekness and for generosity; but pearls are not to be cast before swine, and a whip must be used to drive money changers from the temple.

To be unselfish, tolerant and kind is the symbol and duty of the civilized who deal with their own kind, but the camel always ends by pushing you out of the tent if you let him get his head inside.

When the great war was ended, Americans assumed the duty of caring for refugees in the Near East. Among these unfortunates were proud noblemen who held their heads high and accepted help with great reluctance. That is, they acted that way in the beginning.

But after a few months of idleness and charity, they began to think the world owed them a living and thereafter refused to lift a hand to help themselves. They even began to complain of the service and feel superior to the mere commoners who fed them.

You can't be nice to some people without giving them wrong ideas. They think you are trying to soft-soap your betters.

I have seen a man whose only fault was unfailing courtesy, scorned and bullied by other members of a camp until he changed the face of one and demonstrated that good manners are no proof of weakness.

I suppose our jungle inheritance prompts us to chase those who run and cower before those who roar at us. Anyway, that's the kind of breed we are.

You can be your nicest to "real folks," rich or poor, and thus gain their liking and respect; but people not educated in such matters think common courtesy the mark of a sucker and regard good manners only as something to be imposed on.

If a monkey bites your hand the first time you offer a peanut, that's his fault; if he gets a second chance to bite, that's your fault.

Love, DAD.

Along the Potomac

With
Carlisle Bargeron

IF there is any doubt anywhere that the Republicans' plight is a most difficult one, just contemplate the air mail and ship subsidy hearing which Senator Black and his colleagues are conducting. The other day, for example, Senator Arthur Robinson got the Republicans on the first page for the first time in many moons.

BARGERON.

His was a Republican attack and, although he was unsupported by any fellow-Republicans, the fact that a Republican dared attack made it almost sensational.

But the very next day Robinson's utterances were lost in disclosures by the Black committee that air mail files of the Republican Postmaster General, Mr. Brown, had been burned before he left office. It might be said that Robinson's attack never got through the din, that he was scarcely heard.

• • • •

He is not a good one, in the first place, to be spreading the opposition cause. Most people listening to him are likely to exclaim: "Oh, let us have a dictatorship, or anything else, whatever it is." The rather widespread belief is that it is such politics as he plays that got the party into its present mess.

But in this case it is doubtful if the result would have been any different even had the Republicans put forward their ace. Even he would probably have been lost in the Democratic presentation the following day.

And there is no telling how many such cards as the Black committee Democrats have up their sleeves. There is reason to believe that they can do enough raking over of the past Administration to divert attention from themselves for a long time.

Insofar as the Black inquiry goes it is doubtful if anything it produces will come as a surprise to Washington newspapermen or anyone else closely associated with official life hereabout. Newspapermen knew all during Mr. Brown's handling of the air mail contracts that a "story" was there. The independent aviation people were frequently here beefing over their treatment. Occasionally the matter was aired in Congress.

I recall very well anent young Herbert Hoover's association with the Western air line that Mr. Franklyn Waltman, now of our staff, disclosed it and the President at a press conference feelingly resented what he described as the implication of the story. But he had his son immediately removed. As I recall it, the explanation was that young Herbert had gone on an indefinite leave of absence because of his health. Whether he ever rejoined the concern I don't know.

• • • •

One thing that made it so difficult to develop a substantial story around the handling of the air mail contracts was that Brown never made any bones about his autocratic handling of them. He took the attitude that he was given wide latitude in carrying out the purposes of the subsidy, which he interpreted to be to assist only substantial and established lines. I don't think he made any secret of the fact that the so-called independents had little or no chance with him.

The only new thing the Democrats have developed so far is that, correspondence pertaining to the contracts was burned before the Democrats came in. With that they have hit the front pages and made such attacks as Robinson's look very puny, indeed.

It won't occur to anybody reading the air mail disclosures to consider that the opportunity for like goings-on now exists a thousandfold because all business, even the dry cleaners and pressers, function at the favor of Washington. No, the people will just say: "Those Republicans were terrible."

That's what the Democrats want them to say.

Daily Talk About Books and Authors.

Pirandello.

This Italian playwright is regarded by many critics today as the leading living dramatist on the Continent of Europe, for Maeterlinck seems to have stopped writing. Nearly all his plays are founded on the question of mistaken identity—when the final curtain falls, the audience do not know whether the hero is really a king or a madman, whether the woman is really the wife or an impostor, &c. The audience do not know, the people on the stage do not know, and apparently the author does not know.

Three years ago Judith Anderson played the leading role in New York in Pirandello's play bearing the significant title, "As You Desire Me." A man had not seen his wife for a long time; and then a woman returned to his house, with the claim that she was his wife. If the husband had sprung joyfully to meet her, put his arms around her and kissed her and said, "Oh, how wonderful it is to have you here again! she would have been his wife and they would have lived happily together forever after.

But the idiot, without stopping to think how much better any woman would have been than solitude, wanted proofs, affidavits, &c., and so, of course, he lost her forever.

I asked Mr. Pirandello if the point of the play was not as I have just described it, and he said, "Why, certainly; all my plays teach that spiritual reality is the only reality. It is what you believe that makes things true."

No End of Books

Crash and Transfiguration.

I suppose we must call the depression a great plum for the fiction writers. Not, let me hastily put in, for its effect upon their voucher checks—which was sad. Judge of the magazine situation, for one thing, by the fact that in 1929 the Saturday Evening Post was printing 12 short stories and four serials in an issue, and that during the Great Deep its average in these items dropped as low as four and two, respectively. And, compared with other magazines, the S. E. P. was making a grand show of it. Nor was the depression a plum because it gave birth to an array of fresh phrases for titles, ranging from "Bank Holiday" to "The New Poor." These, by and large, were small potatoes.

But consider the depression in this light. During the brave and bygone days, a novelist had all the room in the world to let his characters wallow in gorgeous bacchanalia and gilded sin. Novelists long ago learned that there is nothing like a good wallow to please the cash customers. But when, in the course of the story, it came time for the great regeration scene—which is just as valuable a part of their stock in trade—the writers were, to put it mildly, hard pressed. How do you pluck regeneration out of an era of Amalgamated Artichokes at 650?

Then came the depression, and the novelists leaped upon it with glad cries. "We put half the story before Blue Tuesday, and tickle the rental libraries. We put the rest of the yarn after the crash and delight those readers who insist the "piper must be paid!" For three years now that has been a sur-fire formula. It still is.

But Laetitia McDonald, in "Silver Platter" (Farrar & Rinehart, $2), rings some neat changes on that old carillon. Mad money, to be sure, is there in plenty, but the heroine has a cool million in Government bonds to eke her through October, 1929. Her husband is the charming, gay fellow one would expect. But when the stress comes he shows a remarkable and by no means useless urbanity.

The father of Victoria Marie Antoinette Rupp was a plumber, the kind of a man who bought and paid for his house before he married, who lived there in the same simplicity until Superba bathtubs made him a millionaire in hand. Only then did he move to a castle. That same prudent streak ran in Victoria, however much overlaid with an expensive Paris schooling. But home in Louisville again, she soon found that she was still the daughter of a plumber, that society's shoulder was cold.

A break in her loneliness came when Carter Logan, her father's young lawyer, invited her to a party his blues-singer wife was giving. There Victoria met Philip Pyne, handsome and debonaire. Marriage soon followed.

The Pynes ancestral house on Long Island, run by Victoria's money, became the center of as cheery and carefree a life as a novelist could imagine. Polo, yachting, tiled swimming pools, eternal cocktails—the whole thing is done up brown. For a while Victoria revels in it. As Marie Pyne, she is a new person. But the solid Rupp qualities come out again and Philip's charm wears thin, and there are, in the novelese, "complications." These are swept away in the end, as Victoria, on a new footing, sees happiness ahead.

Miss McDonald's novel, for all its lightness and high-pitched entertainment, stands firm on its character-drawing. If the book is full of types, yet each one has been given a subtle twist of its own, a vitalizing from inside which makes a coarse financial wizard, his desperately unhappy and yet "sporting" young wife, an elderly Long Island play-boy, as well as the chief characters, distinctly memorable.

In private life, Miss McDonald is the wife of Wallace Irwin. With "Silver Platter," her second novel, she pegs down her tent the stronger among the writing Irwins. If ever an Englishman vaunts the writing families of his country before you, the Sitwells, Meynells and Gibbs, you can counter and confound him, in numbers at least, with Will, Wallace, Inez Haynes, Violet, Florence and Laetitia McDonald Irwin.

Book Chat.

Almost as soon as "Anthony Adverse" came out, a horde of pundits and scholasticians set upon Hervey Allen and tried to prove with chapter and verse that he had copied whole paragraphs in his novel from one printed work and another. They got pretty hot about it, and now it is Mr. Allen's turn.

In the current number of "The Saturday Review of Literature," he writes at great length on the sources of "Anthony Adverse." Beyond a doubt, he hits back well.

Although he did study a huge pile of books, taking several thousand with him to Bermuda in the autumn of 1927, that was but preparatory to the four-year creative labor of writing the novel.

"At least two-thirds of the book," he writes, "is not immediately taken from any historical or literary source material at all. It came directly from my own imagination as the result of a lifetime of experience and general reading. It took shape in thought from a thousand events, people, places and books that I can no longer trace myself, and which it is only ludicrous for me to see attributed to this or that printed source, as though everything in literature was always taken out of cold storage and nothing ever home grown."

WHY AUTOMOBILE MAKERS ARE SHOOTING THE WORKS.

(The automobile industry in America has increased its output 42 per cent, increased its prices in many cases, spent millions on new features and leads all industries in advertising by 50 per cent.—News item.)

1. Because they believe the point has been reached where the man and woman in the car they have been driving all through the depression are tired of using antiques for touring purposes.

2. Because the repair bills are now stiffer than the cost of a new car.

3. Because running around town in a battered, weather-beaten, wheezy old wash boiler is no longer regarded as a protest against the Republicans.

4. Because when you see a man driving around in an old tin can you no longer appraise him as a thrifty citizen; you just size him up as a fellow who doesn't give a darn.

5. Because it costs more to keep a 1928 roadster running than it does to buy a 1934 limousine on credit.

6. Because the public is tired of plugging up leaky radiators, mending broken windows with wrist tape and going through fences because the brakes don't work.

7. Because even a man with whom business is awful realizes there is no percentage in spending most of his time under an old peanut roaster trying to see why it is through functioning.

8. Because mice in the upholstery ceased to be amusing at least two years ago.

• • • •

9. Because the American people are realizing that getting around safely is more important than getting around cheaply.

10. Because there has been a big change in public psychology and a realization that a man in a wheezy, squeaky, rummy-looking flivver no longer can hold his audience.

11. Because the public believes recovery is on the way and anybody is under a big handicap trying to participate in it while staring blankly at a stalled motor.

12. Because business is picking up and everybody feels that both the sellers and the buyers seem unconvincing if they look at it through a busted windshield.

13. Because there are reasons to believe that at least half the Americans limping around cities, towns and villages in dilapidated buggies are doing it because they think it a sort of duty to be uncomfortable in a crisis.

• • • •

14. Because the old American craving for luxuries is nondestructible.

15. Because John Citizen, instead of being more afraid to buy things on credit, can't read his newspaper without seeing that even President Roosevelt thinks the thing to do is to get in debt first and worry afterward.

16. Because there are few things a 100 per cent American misses in his life more than the opportunity to make time payments.

ALPHABETICAL CHANGE.

They say the President has adopted another set of initials since that Supreme Court decision. It is I. O. Hughes.

Sir Oliver Lodge is to make a radio speech on psychic phenomena. He probably has a ghost writer.

Congress is expected to pass a liberal liquor bill for the District of Columbia, determined that under repeal there will be as many places to buy liquor in Washington as before.

Mr. Lawson, a member of the board of managers of the Washington Y. M. C. A. for several years, has taken a leading part in activities to coordinate work of the organization in the tri-State area.

Representing the District at the committee meeting were Mr. Lawson, Hugh A. Thrift, Leonard W. DeGast, George A. Lewis and Page McK. Etchison of the Central Y. M. C. A.; Campbell Johnson and Dr. Emmett J. Scott, of the Twelfth street colored branch, and Dean William B. West of Howard University branch.

New Deal Test Near, Says Davis

Trade Must Heed Danger Signals, He Asserts.

St. Louis, Jan. 12 (AP).—William H. Davis, National compliance director of the NRA, said today the real test of the New Deal will come "when industry next runs into a period of danger, whether it is another period of expansion or another period of depression."

Speaking before the St. Louis NRA committee, Davis said that "heretofore, on such occasions the danger signals have been out, and people have talked about them, but did nothing about them.

"If, when the danger signals next go out, American industry is sufficiently well organized under its codes to heed the signals and do something about them, then the success of the National recovery program will be fully demonstrated."

Lecture on Accounting Set.

Henry P. Seidmann, a certified public accountant, will give a public lecture on "Municipal Accounting" in the assembly hall of the Y. M. C. A. Monday evening.

Dr. Joseph M. Gray to Preach At Hamline Methodist.

The Rev. Dr. Joseph M. Gray, newly elected chancellor of American University, will preach at 11 o'clock tomorrow at Hamline Methodist Episcopal Church, Sixteenth and Allison streets northwest, of which the Rev. H. W. Burgan is pastor. Dr. Gray was pastor of Hamline Church for three years when it was at Ninth and P streets northwest. Today marks the final services in the eighth anniversary program of the church in its present location.

Dr. Taylor Announces Topics At Central Presbyterian.

Tomorrow morning at the Central Presbyterian Church, Dr. James H. Taylor will preach on "Forgetting God," and at night on "Old Testament Characters—the Character of Jacob."

At night there will be a social hour for young people. Members of the Westminster League and the Christian Endeavor Societies will participate. The Young People's Friday night class will continue the study of "The Life of Christ" under the instruction of Dr. Taylor.

Dr. Taylor will attend the session of an ad interim committee of the General Assembly of the Southern Presbyterian Church, which convenes in Richmond Tuesday.

"Courteous Living" Subject Of Dr. Ulysses G. B. Pierce.

"Courteous Living" is the subject on which Dr. Ulysses G. B. Pierce, minister of All Saints' Church (Unitarian), will preach at the 11 a. m. service. This is the second of a series for January on the general subject "Toward Gracious Living." The church school meets at 9:45. At the adult class in current religious thought, Gen. H. C. Newcomer will continue a review of Reinhold Neibuhr's "Moral Man and Immoral Society." The organist, Lewis Corning Atwater, will play a half-hour program of Bach music at 5 p. m. This will be followed at 5:30 by the Book Chat, at which Miss Ethel Summy, of Wilson Teachers College, will review "Christina of Sweden" by Margaret Goldsmith. Supper is served from 6 to 7 by a committee of the Business and Professional Women's Club. The Fireside Circle meets at 6:30. At 7 o'clock, the Little Symphony Orchestra will play a brief program in Pierce Hall, followed at 7:30 by the motion picture hour, at which the feature will be "Adorable" with Janet Gaynor.

Grace Episcopal Church Arranges "Service of Lights."

The Epiphany season will be marked by a "Service of Lights" in Grace Episcopal Church at 8 p. m., with the Rev. H. Waldo Manley, rector of the Church of the Holy Communion, Congress Heights, as the preacher. This will be the sixteenth annual service of this character arranged by the rector of Grace Church, the Rev. Meade Bolton MacBryde.

St. Alban's Church to Hear Dr. Arthur Carlisle Christie.

Dr. Arthur Carlisle Christie, chairman of the board of trustees of American University and former president of the Medical Society of the District of Columbia, will speak on "What Christianity Means to Me" in the second of a series of special Sunday evening services in St. Alban's Parish Church tomorrow at 8 o'clock. The service will be conducted by Edwin N. Lewis. These services, conducted by laymen with laymen delivering the addresses, are sponsored by the Brotherhood of St. Andrew Chapter in St. Alban's with the cooperation of other parish organizations.

"Sacrament" Subject in All Churches of Christ, Scientist.

"Sacrament" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all the Churches of Christ, Scientist, tomorrow. The Golden Text is from I Corinthians, 5:8: "Let us keep the feast, not with old leaven, neither with the leaven of malice and wickedness; but with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth." Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "I will take the cup of salvation, and call upon the name of the Lord. I will pay my vows unto the Lord now in the presence of all his people." (Psalms 116:13-14.)

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science Text Book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "If all who ever partook of the sacrament had really commemorated the sufferings of Jesus and drunk of his cup, they would have revolutionized the world. If all who seek his commemoration through material symbols will take up the cross, heal the sick, cast out evils and preach Christ, or Truth, to the poor—the receptive thought—they will bring in the millennium." (Page 34.)

Bishop James E. Freeman To Preach at Cathedral.

The sermon at the people's evensong service in the great choir of Washington Cathedral at 4 p. m. tomorrow will be delivered by the Bishop of Washington, the Rt. Rev. James E. Freeman, D. D., LL. D. The service will be conducted by Canon Raymond L. Wolven.

The Rev. Dr. Duncan H. Browne, rector of St. James' Church in Chicago, will be the preacher at the 11 a. m. service of prayer and holy communion. This service was formerly held at 10:30 a. m.

Bishop Freeman will visit Chicago January 21 to deliver his annual address before the Sunday Night Club there. He announces that the Rt. Rev. James DeWolf Perry, D. D., LL. D., presiding bishop of the Episcopal Church and canon of Washington Cathedral, will make an important pronouncement from Mount St. Alban at the evensong service on January 21 concerning "a reaffirmation of the church's faith and purpose."

Dr. R. H. Miller's Sermon Introductory to Installation.

At the National City Christian Church tomorrow morning, Dr. Raphael Harwood Miller will deliver a sermon introductory to the installation service of next week. The evening sermon topic is "The Great Hunger."

The formal installation service of Dr. Miller as minister of the church will be held Tuesday, at 7:45 p. m., at the church. Among those taking part in the program will be Dr. George A. Campbell, of the Union Avenue Christian Church, St. Louis; Dr. A. E. Cory, executive secretary of the minister's pension fund of the Disciples of Christ; Dr. F. W. Burnham, minister of the Seventh Street Christian Church, Richmond, and R. A. Long, prominent layman of the Disciples of Kansas City. Also, it is expected that W. Palmer Clarkson and Oreon E. Scott, members of the national board of the church, will be present.

Washington ministers who will participate are the Rev. C. N. Williams, the Rev. Clifford Jope and Dr. W. S. Abernethy. Dr. W. H. Pinkerton will preside. Felicitations will be offered by representatives of denominational groups and religious organizations.

On Wednesday afternoon from 3 to 6 a reception and tea will be given in honor of Mrs. Miller at the home of Mrs. E. V. Pugh, 6901 Glenbrook road, Edgemoor.

Thursday at 6:30 p. m. at the Vermont Avenue Christian Church there will be a reception and banquet in honor of Dr. and Mrs. Miller and their son, Raphael, jr. Wade H. Ellis will preside. Among the speakers announced are Representative Ralph F. Lozier, Green H. Hackworth, Dr. and Mrs. Earle Wilfley, Dr. W. H. Pinkerton, Dr. Carl C. Rasmussen, Dr. Joseph Sizoo, Dr. Allen A. Stockdale, Dr. William Darby, Dr. George A. Campbell, R. A. Long, Palmer Clarkson and Oreon E. Scott.

New Year's Service Arranged By Vaughn Class of Calvary.

The Vaughn Class of Calvary Baptist Church, Eighth and H streets northwest, will hold a special New Year's service at 9:30 a. m. with a program consisting of solos by Randall Myers, membership secretary of the Y. M. C. A., accompanied by T. Carlisle Crump, editor of the class paper. Charles Cooke, president, will give a talk and reading on the subject, "A Promise for the New Year." Linn C. A play, "New Melodies," directed by Mrs. C. M. Beaty, will be given at a mission circle meeting Tuesday. The scenes are laid in India and America at the present time. Mrs. Arthur Wiley has the principal part.

Opinion About Devil Shifts

Modern Ideas in Conflict With Traditional Views; Light on Subject From Experience of Jesus; Ellis Writes of Temptation of Savior.

By William T. Ellis.

One of the great changes that have come over the life of Jerusalem since the war is the absence of Russian pilgrims. They used to be present every year by thousands, especially at Eastertide. My memory is indelible of those singing companies of peasants, as warmly clad as on their native steppes, trudging afoot up the steep ascent from the hot Jordan Valley, waving reeds and carrying bottles of Jordan water. They were ecstatic over their meritorious pilgrimage to the banks of the river where John the Forerunner had preached and Jesus had been baptized.

Nowadays visitors to the Holy Land make the trip by car over a new-made road in a few hours. Automobiles are both the blessing and the curse of the Holy Land for pious pilgrims—a blessing, because they carry one quickly and far; a curse, because their speed precludes entering into the place spirit. So easy is motor travel in Palestine that even the cruise tourists, many of whom scarcely know what it is all about, make the trip down to Jericho and to the muddy Jordan. Probably the actual scene of John's preaching and of the baptism of Jesus was higher up the stream, midway between the Dead Sea and the Sea of Galilee.

Stage of the Drama.

This Jordan Depression is one of the wonder spots of the world, and a fit setting for the sublime drama of the baptism of and temptation of Jesus. From the Sea of Galilee—itself below sea level—the river rushes down through gorges, a turbulent stream, until it is lost in the Dead Sea, which is 1,300 feet below sea level, and itself has no outlet.

Grim and awesome is the region. It was an appropriate setting for the work of the hairy and ascetic prophet, John the Baptist, whose stern voice broke the prophetic silence that for the space of 400 years had settled upon the Jews.

This wilderness-reared prophet—a cousin of Jesus—announced himself as the forerunner of the Messiah. His message was a virile and uncompromising one of repentance. Fearlessly, he arraigned high and low. And because he was a real voice crying in the wilderness, people thronged from cities and villages to hear him. John was the sensation of his day.

Lining Up With the Best.

It was rather dangerous to join John's crowd, for his enemies were many and powerful. Eventually, they cut off his head. He represented the best in the Israel of his day.

One day there appeared in the throng at the riverside seeking baptism, Jesus of Nazareth. He sought baptism; for He wanted to line up with the best there was. Some supercilious folk think they have done their part when they criticize and pick flaws in the movements for righteousness. Jesus was a cooperator rather than a critic. Nobody knew so well as He the inadequacy of John's church; but He joined it. By public baptism He cast in His lot with all seekers after God's will.

This act was the inauguration of the public ministry of Jesus. It was attended by a wonder—the descent of the Holy Spirit upon Him, and the voice of God, "This is My Beloved Son." As commentators seldom fail to point out, the Trinity—Father, Son and Spirit—participated in this majestic egent.

Thrilled, enrapt and in need of complete detachment from His fellows for the full contemplation and realization of what this turning point meant in His life, Jesus retired to the wilderness of Judea—probably the desolate hill district between the Jordan and Bethlehem, where He had been born. Forty days He fasted and prayed in preparation for His mission.

What About the Devil?

Matthew's record runs directly contrary to present-day thought. He narrates how Jesus, spent by the long ordeal in the wilderness, was cunningly tempted by Satan. But our times—at least our "popular" and vocal writers—do not believe in either temptation or the devil. Temptation they call "experience" to be welcomed. The devil, they say, is an impossibility, a relic of dark ages of superstition. Instead of "Resist the devil," their slogan is "Obey that impulse."

It is not so easy to dismiss airily the diabolical realities of our time. There is undeniably much in life that is not born of goodness or of love. Our crime-besmirched generation can not deny the existence of a deal of devilishness.

So we are forced into a choice of alternatives. There either must be in the world an agency that makes for unrighteousness, turning men from good deeds to bad, or else human nature itself must have such Satanic potentialities that man is his own devil. Between a real devil, a spiritual prince of darkness, ever at war with the divine nature of mortals, and a human nature that breeds of itself all the evil that blights the world, most of us elect to believe in the devil, aside altogether from the clear teachings of the Bible concerning his existence and nature.

When Worst Assails Best.

Even those whose desires and disposition are toward goodness find themselves assailed by the tempter. Martin Luther once threw an inkpot at the devil — who apparently retained it, to judge by the quality of much that has been written since. Jesus Himself was not immune from Satan's assaults. The worst ever attacks the best.

Threefold was the temptation of Jesus; and all three were enticements to short cuts. Turn these stones into bread and prove your power; leap from the temple tower and vindicate Your Messiahship; make terms with me and rule the world, thus escaping the dreary road of misrepresentation, persecution and Calvary. In a word, take the short cut to the fulfillment of Your work. The end justifies the means. So said Satan.

All the multitudes of get-rich-quick business men; all the host who would be cultured, without undergoing the stiff ordeal of real education; all who would have life turned into "a good time," without respect to their desserts—in fact, all of us, when we grow serious, can see in the temptation of Jesus something akin to our own condition. Not all of us, though, are able to perceive that such short-cuts are temptations of the devil.

Paying Friendship's Price.

Even a Milton, a Dore, a Dante, have been unable to do justice to this sublime wilderness conflict between Jesus and the great adversary of mankind. But the central teaching is clear. Jesus underwent all the ordeals that beset the normal man, and resisted triumphantly by the same power which is at the command of everybody. "In that He Himself hath suffered being tempted, He is able to succor them that are tempted."

For us ordinary folks, the story of the temptation has one central meaning. It is that Jesus Christ understands us, having shared our lot to the full. He knows all about temptation. He has paid the price of friendship, which is sympathy—and that word "sympathy" really means "to suffer with." In darkest hours He stands by. Our Lord is not a distant Deity, dwelling apart and aloof, beyond the edge of the farthest nebulae, but a close, comprehending, compassionate Companion, ever near to share His experience and His power with every friend in need.

Army Riders Exhibit Skill at Fort Myer

Mrs. Roosevelt Attends First Demonstration of Winter Series and Receives Military Salute With the Assistant Secretary of War, Mr. Woodring.

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

The first of the exhibition rides held at Fort Myer throughout the winter, was held yesterday afternoon in the riding hall of the post.

Before an audience which virtually filled the hall the events followed with professional snap, as riders of the Third Cavalry and Sixteenth Field Artillery executed amazing feats in the tanbark ring.

Mrs. Roosevelt attended the ride as the guest of the Commandant of the Post and Mrs. Kenyon Joyce, and after witnessing the drills returned to the White House to be hostess at tea to a group of members of Washington society.

To the accompaniment of martial music and occasional jazz tunes played by the Army Band, the participants in the drill lined up before the box where the First Lady sat, to stand at attention and to receive the commendation of Mrs. Roosevelt.

Col. and Mrs. Joyce entertained at luncheon yesterday preceding the drill when their guests were Mrs. George H. Dern, wife of the Secretary of War; the Assistant Secretary of War and Mrs. Harry H. Woodring, the former United States Ambassador to London and Mrs. Alanson B. Houghton, Capt. and Mrs. William Galbraith, Mrs. Harry Baxter, daughter of the Secretary of War and Mrs. Dern, and Mrs. Sidney A. Cloman.

Mr. Woodring was the honor guest at the drill and with Mrs. Roosevelt received the salute of Maj. A. D. Surles, commander of the second squadron of the cavalry, in the opening number of the program, when the National and regimental colors, field music and three troops of cavalry were presented.

Tuckermans Honor Mrs. R. H. Chapman

Mrs. King and Mrs. McNary Luncheon Guests.

Mrs. King, wife of Senator William H. King, and Mrs. McNary, wife of Senator Charles L. McNary, were the ranking guests at a luncheon given yesterday by Mrs. Walter Tuckerman at the National Woman's Country Club, in honor of Mrs. Robert Hollister Chapman. Also in the company was Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, sister of former Vice President Curtis.

Mr. and Mrs. Tuckerman entertained at dinner last evening at the club in honor of their highnesses, Prince and Princess Christian of Hesse, who arrived in Washington from New York yesterday and are staying at the club. Also stopping at the club are Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Gordon, the latter formerly Mrs. J. Wilmer Biddle, and Mrs. James Francis Sullivan, of Philadelphia, who came to Washington for the dinner.

Mr. Waggaman And Miss Mellor Are Married

Altar Service Performed at Daniel Residence; Reception Held.

The wedding of Miss Caroline Moorhead Mellor, daughter of Mrs. Moorhead Mellor, to Mr. Ennalls Waggaman, jr., son of Maj. and Mrs. Ennalls Waggaman, took place last evening at 8 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Kensett Daniel. The drawing rooms were artistically decorated with ferns, palms and spring flowers. The Rev. James Murdock performed the ceremony before an improvised altar.

The bride wore a gown of white lace made on fitted lines with a slight train and long sleeves that ended in points at the wrists. Her tulle veil was caught, held in place by a coronet of rose-point lace and seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. Her only attendant was Miss Elizabeth Beall, who wore a gown of wine-colored velvet, and carried a bouquet of sunset roses.

Mr. Floyd Waggaman served as his nephew's best man.

Following the ceremony a reception was held. The bride and bridegroom were assisted in receiving by Mrs. Mellor, mother of the bride, who wore a gown of black lace and a shoulder corsage of purple orchids. Mrs. Waggaman, mother of the bridegroom, was wearing a gown of ecru lace and with a corsage of yellow and green orchids.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Waggaman left by motor on a wedding trip. The bride was wearing a brown ensemble trimmed with mink and matching accessories. They will make their home at Tyrone, N. Mex.

Lower Waist Line Is Shown

Silhouettes Are Revealing of the Figure; Green and Blue in Favor.

New York (AP).—Lower waistlines, figure-revealing silhouettes, suits with three-quarter-length coats or hip-length jackets, and dresses with jackets or capes to give a suit effect are among the fashion ideas revealed as New York designers, thinking and talking of spring, bring forth new models.

Simplicity will be an important fashion virtue, it appears, and dark blues and greens will be popular colors for spring wear, along with soft grays and browns.

Collars and high necklines still are favored, artificial flowers will be seen again on suits and one designer invites use of metal "paper clips" for fasteners and dress trimming—to mention just a few of the new style details.

There will be more than a touch of white in hat trimming, neck treatment and the like to accent dark street dresses. Light weight woolens will be a popular dress material, and loosely woven woolens and tweeds are expected to take the lead in suit fabrics. Coats will have no set rule for length.

Evening gowns, it seems agreed, are to have long, molded lines with some designers suggesting a train. Shoulder straps will be jeweled, or of a contrasting color, and necklines will vary considerably.

The simplicity theme will be expressed in daytime frocks, which will be molded to the figure, with small waists, slim, circular skirts and close-fitting sleeves receiving marked attention from the style dictators.

Club Federation Entertains Today

Mrs. S. Blair Luckie Will Speak at Luncheon.

Mrs. S. Blair Luckie, chairman of the department of legislation of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, will be the guest of honor and principal speaker at a luncheon to be given by the local department of legislation of which Mrs. Horace J. Phelps is chairman, at the Iron Gate Inn at 1:30 p. m. today.

Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, president of the District of Columbia Federation; Mrs. Edgar B. Meritt, District director to the General Federation; Mrs. Phelps, and Mrs. William M. Collins, chairman of the division of civil service, will also speak.

Additional guests include Mrs. Ruth H. Snodgrass, publicity chairman; Mrs. Homer N. Link, Mrs. James A. Robertson, Mrs. W. W. Husband, Mrs. Jason Waterman, Mrs. B. N. Burleyson, Mrs. D. N. Tice, Mrs. R. A. Joncher, Mrs. Maurice Smith, Mrs. Arja Morgan, Mrs. Louis J. Smith, Mrs. F. G. Awalt, Mrs. Edward Stevens, Mrs. N. M. Pollock, Mrs. Robert J. Bates, Mrs. J. Edwin Reid, Mrs. Oscar N. Longstreet served as commissioner of Pacific Railroads. She became a great favorite with Mrs. McKinley.

Misses Howry Will Entertain Guest at Tea

Mrs. Emerson Howe Due From London Today; Party Tomorrow.

Miss Elizabeth Howry and Miss Mary Howry will have as their guest at their home in Georgetown Mrs. Emerson Howe, of London, formerly of Washington, who will arrive today from New York. They will entertain at tea tomorrow afternoon for Mrs. Howe.

Mrs. Howe, accompanied by her son-in-law and daughter, Senor and Senora de Gonzalez Prada, arrived in New York some time ago from Europe. Senor and Senora de Prada will leave New York today for Palm Beach, where they will spend several weeks, and will then go to California, visiting Washington on their return from the West. Senor Prada formerly was Peruvian Minister to London, and before that served as Counselor of the Peruvian Embassy here, when he and Senora de Prada were among the popular members of the younger diplomatic set.

Fairmont Girl Wears Eighteenth Century Dress

Clarksburg, W. V., Jan. 12 (Spl.).—Sallie Ann Knight, 6 years old, of Fairmont, has a dress with a history that reaches back into the eighteenth century. Originally it was owned and worn as a wedding dress by her great-great-great-grandmother, Ann Prickett Dragoo, born in 1771. Other owners of the dress, in order, have been:

Jamima Dragoo, born in 1804; Rosa Pitzer Boor, born in 1829; Mary Poe, of Scottsville, Va., born in 1856; Naomi Knight, of Fairmont, born in 1907.

J. E. Wright, at 80, Remembers All Presidents Since Lincoln

Officer of Association of Old Inhabitants Reminisces.

J. Eliot Wright, recording secretary of the Association of Oldest Inhabitants of Washington, brought the Washington of a past century up to date in an interview yesterday.

A reporter for The Post sought him out in his home at 1354 Columbia road to inquire about the association of the Capital's patriarchs.

"I'm 80 years old, and a native-born Washingtonian," said Mr. Wright. "I can remember the Civil War, though I was only a boy then—and I remember all the Presidents from Lincoln on up. I've met most of them, too.

"At one time the association used to call on the Presidents, though we don't do that any more.

Oldest Patriotic Group.

"We're the oldest patriotic group in Washington. We celebrate New Year's Day, Washington's birthday and the Fourth of July. On Washington's birthday we have a congressman come to our meeting house, the old engine house at Nineteenth and H streets, and talk. Someone reads Washington's Farewell Address. On Independence Day we get another congressman to talk, and the Declaration of Independence is read.

"The association is for oldest men only. We decided not to have any ladies when we organized in 1865, because in those days men drank their beer and smoked their cigars, and, as one man said, 'I want my drinks and smokes—and we can't have any petticoats around!'

"We have reminiscences at the meetings. I've just finished writing mine. It took 40 pages, and I left out a lot of things I thought of afterward.

Hand-Drawn Fire Engine.

"I remember when I was a boy I used to hear the big bell in the engine house ring—that meant fire! All of the boys and men in the neighborhood would rush to the engine house and help the volunteer firemen drag the hook and ladder to the fire. There weren't any horses then. In order to spot the location of the fire a man would go up in the tower of the engine house with a spy glass, and take a look all over the city to find the smoke or blaze.

"I guess the oldest men in our association are over 90 years old. Christian Heurich and E. D. Godfrey are both 91. We lost our very oldest about two months ago. He was 104 years. We lost 25 members last year. I think we have about 460 members at present.

"Qualifications for membership are that a man must be 50 years old and a resident of Washington 35 years.

"The old engine house belongs to us—we got it through an act of Congress."

Mr. Frank Polk, Miss Salvage To Be Married

Engagement of Grandson of President Polk Announced.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Agar Salvage, of Rynwood, Glen Head, Long Island, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Katherine Hoppin Salvage, to Mr. Frank Lyon Polk, jr., a great-grandson of James Knox Polk, eleventh President of the United States.

Miss Salvage is a member of the Hoppin family of New York and Providence, R. I. She is a granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. David Richmond, of Flushing, Long Island. Miss Salvage attended the Fermata School in Aiken, S. C., and completed her studies under Mlle. Millet in Paris. She made her debut in New York in September, 1932, with her cousin, Miss Elizabeth Richmond, and she is a member of the Junior League.

Mr. Polk is the second son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lyon Polk, of New York and Syonset, Long Island. The father was a counselor in the State Department in the World War, and later head of the American delegation to the Peace Conference in Paris.

Mr. Polk attended Groton School and is a senior at Yale University. He is a member of the Psi Upsilon, Scroll and Keys, and the Racquet and Tennis Club of New York.

Buns Flavored With Rum Lure Repeat Orders

Restaurant Permits Sale of Kitchen Specialty at Retail.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

There's a particularly nice restaurant in town whose breads are made in its own kitchen. Perhaps the most delicious of these are the little rum-flavored buns that are served. They are so good that you cry for more, and best of all, you can cry for a dozen of them to take home to serve on your own table. The buns are only 25 cents a dozen. They would make any party grander, and would send the most fussy guest home happy.

The problem of making cocktail or tea sandwiches! Many a housewife has sacrificed her peace of mind and a lot of valuable energy trying to make those stubborn slices of bread look as if they came from a caterer. Why bother? Because one store will make them up for 60 cents a dozen, dainty sandwiches in delicate pastel shades, cut in fancy shapes. They'll help you out in a predicament, and if you don't tell, your guests will exclaim about your artistic ability in the art of making sandwiches.

Haven for Shoppers.

How many times have you stopped in the middle of the shopping section and wondered just where you could stop in for a cheap bite of lunch? This place is too expensive, or this place has slow service—what to do? There's a G street cafe where you can get a good lunch of a meat and a vegetable, rolls and butter, beverage and dessert for 25 cents. Either push your tray around the line of delicious things, or, if you would rather have service, climb the stairs into the charming second floor dining room, and get it. The broad windows of the dining room are hung with sheer coral curtains that cast a soft light on the cream-colored walls, the bottom of which are wood-paneled. Here the service is good, luncheons are 25 and 35 cents—and a full five-course dinner only 55 cents. Just the place to take a friend, when you want a cozy midday chat.

One housewife casts a frantic eye over her pantry shelf. Company for dinner—the husband's boss and his wife, and there's no time to make a company dessert. But the frantic eye suddenly softened with relief, and a grateful hand reached out and grasped a little bottle of sundae sauce. A matter of minutes to call for some vanilla ice cream, to twist the lid of the bottle and pour the contents, and there was the dessert—a pecan sundae that would make the husband's boss and his wife sit up and take notice.

The little bottles of pecan, raspberry, strawberry or pineapple put up in syrup sell at two for 25 cents. Clever entertainers will keep a supply of them on the pantry shelf for emergencies.

Cocktail Sausages.

Sausages have risen late, and instead of appearing for breakfast, they now appear with the dinner cocktails. They are smaller than the breakfast variety, being only about an inch long. They are served with a toothpick stuck in one side—one picks up the toothpick with two fingers and pops the sausage into one's mouth. No greasy fingers. The sausages come in cans containing about 30 of them, all for 42 cents.

The most swanky salad will droop with despair if its accessories are not the best. For salad experts, like fashion experts, know that the accessories can make or ruin the final effect. Every good salad maker knows and approves cheese straws, and every good housewife will see that her salad is excellent or the dinner will be ruined. Pale, flaky cheese straws that melt in your mouth are 40 cents a dozen.

Stable Refectory.

You go through a big stone archway, down a stone driveway, into a quaint little door, and there you are in the stable! But the stable has been made over into a dining room, tables are set in the stalls, old bridles hang from the rafters. After your lunch, a little old lady will tell your fortune in the tea leaves. There is an atmosphere of mysticism and charming antiquity about the place that is sure to appeal.

Do you want something particularly delicious to serve with your afternoon tea? Not only delicious, but unusual as well? The Japanese imagination has created a wafer that will answer the requirements. It is made of rice flour, and is slightly sweetened. The wafers are paper thin, round as a demitasse saucer, and at the first crunch they dissolve into melting lusciousness. They come in a tin container, the price is 40 cents.

Ham has been all over sandwiches for years and years. Nothing new in a ham spread—but how about the lobster? This delicacy has descended from its a la king perch to become mashed and blended into a spread that would make a ham sandwich justly jealous. If you would like a lobster flavor between slices of bread, get a can of this spread. It's only 17 cents.

Artist's Brush Blots Out Memories of Hard Times

Lean Depression Years Recede With Opening of CWA Job.

Hiatus in Career Ends for Margaret Austin, Capital Painter.

The door of a small room in a Washington rooming house stood open. The glaring electric lights revealed a brown-haired girl in a pink smock. She was standing on the bed, a paint brush in her hand, working intently on a huge canvas hanging on the wall. She turned and smiled brightly.

"Come right in," said Margaret Austin, getting down off the bed, "and sit anywhere you can find. This is just a workship."

Miss Austin is one of the artists who have been selected to work for the Civil Works Administration. She does frescoes. At present she is working on some movable panels for Eastern High School.

"Were you surprised to find me on the bed?" she asked. "You see, you can't paint a mural by drawing a small sketch and then enlarging it. The proportions will be all wrong. The art gallery closes at 4:30, so I work here in my room at night."

Praise as Payment.

She is one of the few people of today who has studied the art of making frescoes as the old masters made them. She studied in Paris under Paul Boudoin and was most successful. While there she and another American artist were selected to decorate a French government school, and received high honors.

"Honor was all we did get," she laughed, "we had our hands kissed by notable French gentlemen, and received many flattering speeches. Honors evidently mean a great deal to the French."

"I first became interested in frescoes because I got so disgusted with the Bohemian artists I met in parts of Paris. Of course, later I found that the real artists were not in those Bohemian quarters. Then I didn't know that, so I left and went to work with Paul Boudoin. I'm glad I did, too. Because I think in this work I have a personal opportunity to do something creative and important. You see, we work with sand. Put it on the walls and then stain it the colors we want before we paint the pictures. In that the colors will last forever, and will never fade as oil murals do.

Gymnastics in Art.

"The work is physical as well as creative. We have to climb up and down scaffolds, and carry huge buckets of sand with us. In fact we are sort of combination artists, piano movers and tight rope walkers. But I love it.

"How did I happen to work for the C. W. A.? Because I was just plain broke. You know what the last few years have been like. I had never earned my living in my life, but I had to begin three years ago. There are heaps of educated, professional people and artists, who can tell you similar stories.

"I worked in a department store, from 8 in the morning until 8 at night, for $12 a week. I got a job in a cafeteria, where I was supposed to be assistant dietician, and where I bought food, cooked pies and salads, and served food from the steam table.

Depression Tribulations.

"Like it? Heavens! No one will ever know how I used to hate having those doors open and that hungry hoard descend upon me. I dreaded every day. I finally got a job as governess and art teacher to some adorable children, which wasn't bad.

"Sometimes I think I hate these years that have just passed, and then I realize that I have not been really unhappy. Discouraged, yes, I was, and often miserable, but I have gained much in understanding, and I don't think I would wish to have them erased from my life.

"And at present everything is lovely. I have to work fast and hard, but I like that. I'm not very interested in money. I like to work for the joy of doing something creative. Besides," she concluded, smiling, "when I think of some of the jobs I have had lately this looks like a princely salary."

They're United Co-Stars.

Gary Cooper's studio already is attempting to get his and his wife's consent to its plan to have them together in a picture. Gary has not indicated so far what his answer will be. A similar idea got a negative response from Joel McCrea and Frances Dee, but neither the Bruce Cabots (Adrienne Ames) nor the George Brents (Ruth Chatterton) object to co-featuring.

Margaret Austin, talented young fresco painter of the Capital, says her work is a combination of art, piano-moving and tight-rope walking. And just to keep herself in fine trim, she does a little practice work standing on her bed at night and painting on the bedroom wall.

Weekly Prize Won by Recipe For Raisin Pie

Mrs. J. N. Simms Captures Award in Cookery Contest.

California produces enormous quantities of grapes every year which are cured by drying the clusters on especially prepared floors. Dried grapes, in other words raisins, make a most appetizing pie.

The $5.00 weekly prize has been awarded to Mrs. J. N. Simms, of 817 E street southeast, for her De Luxe Raisin Pie recipe. The recipe follows:

De Luxe Raisin Pie.

1½ cups seeded raisins
2½ cups milk
¾ cup sugar (brown)
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 eggs
1 tablespoon butter
4 tablespoons cornstarch

Scald two cups of milk in a double boiler. Mix sugar with cornstarch, moisten with one-half cup milk. Add egg yolks and blend well. Pour into hot milk and stir cornstarch until thick and smooth, then add raisins and butter. Cook a few minutes longer, remove from fire, add vanilla and pour into a baked pastry shell. Cover with meringue and bake in a slow oven from 20 to 30 minutes to brown meringue nicely.

What Today Means

"Capricorn."

If January 13 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7:45 to 8:45 a. m., from 12 noon to 1:30 p. m. and from 5 to 6:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 9 to 10 a. m., from 2:15 to 3:15 p. m. and from 7:30 to 9:30 p. m.

If you were born on January 13, it will be remarkable if you are not suffering from a superiority complex, for this is the outstanding characteristic of people born on this date.

Your future success will greatly depend on how much you will exercise your will power, of which you have an unlimited supply, to overcome your habit of overestimating your abilities. There is no question but you have capacity, and it is a fine thing you have so much self-assurance, but the people you come in contact with would prefer discovering your admirable qualities themselves. This date will prove to be very propitious for you, as every legitimate thing you undertake will turn out satisfactorily.

If you are a woman and born on January 13, you are entirely too unemotional and cold. You will find it advisable to evince more interest in the welfare of both family and friends. You have many lovable qualities, that are fully appreciated by all who know you. You will be very successful in any line requiring a public demonstration, especially if you have to appear on the lecture platform, for you have the "gift of gab."

Men born on January 13 are well qualified to be leaders, but are rather dictatorial, and inclined to be too strict as disciplinarians. Overcome these two faults and nothing can stop your advancement. The fields of finance, education, and engineering offer you marvelous opportunities. Cupid will direct your footsteps in the right path.

Successful Pople Born on January 13:

Hugh Orr, inventor.
Samuel Woodworth, poet.
John Davis, politician.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. W. A. Evans.

It may be that we have found, or are on the point of finding, a way to cure diabetes. Using the language of childhood on the playground and in the adventure called hiding the switch, we appear to be getting "hot." The insulin treatment of diabetes was a very great advance over the simple dietetic treatment, just as that treatment in turn was a great advance over what preceded it.

But the combination of insulin treatment with proper dieting leaves much to be desired. Physicians generally regard it as a crutch and not as a cure. By making use of it consistently and persistently the patient is kept in a fair state of nutrition, has good working capacity, is comfortable, and should be happy; and his life is greatly prolonged. But he is not cured. The few cures, using the word properly, that have resulted from this treatment are not important. Physicians are nearly of one opinion that, invaluable remedy as it is in caring for the diabetic, it leaves us under the necessity of searching further for a cure.

Dr. J. H. Hutton thinks we may find one in treatment of the pituitary gland and the adrenals. We are to continue using insulin and dieting as we are now doing. In addition, he suggests that the pituitary be treated by proper dosage of X-rays. There may be a proper place also for the use of X-rays in proper doses over the adrenals. In course of time we may find some pituitary extract that will have the desired effect on the pituitary and through it on diabetes.

He has used a combination of X-raying the pituitary and treatment by insulin and by dieting in handling a considerable number of cases of diabetes with better results than by any other method employed.

The theory on which this treatment is based is that there is normally a balance between the pancreas, the anterior pituitary and the adrenals. Under the control of this balance the digestive apparatus and the machinery of absorption, on the one hand, and the pancreas and the other machinery of destruction on the other, keep the level of blood sugar just where it needs to be kept. If these three organs get out of balance either the blood sugar rises or it falls until severe symptoms of sugar hunger result.

Of these three organs the master is the anterior pituitary. Our old treatment of diabetes was aimed solely at repairing the deficiencies of the pancreas. This was done by giving insulin to help it out and by dieting to lessen its load. The Hutton theory is that it is even more important to go after the pituitary and the adrenals—one or both—but without stopping the help that is being given the pancreas.

In his presentation he cites many illustrations of relationship between pituitary disorders and diabetes and quotes a case reported by Cushing in which X-raying the pituitary cured a glycosuria as a side product not anticipated. He considers that the combination of methods should eventually cure such cases of diabetets as are not due to tumors or advanced organic disease.

Unknown Rupture.

C. S. writes:

1. Could a person be ruptured without knowing it?

2. If a rupture were not attended to, might it result in cancer of the intestine?

REPLY.

1. Yes. Hernias may occur in inaccessible parts of the body. Small hernias in inaccessible locations may cause no symptoms and be overlooked.

2. No.

Meringues Give a Festive Air to Desserts With Ice Cream and Whipped Cream Trimmings

By Ann Barrett.

Whether you know them as kisses or meringues, the effect is the same—airy-fairy-festive. In fact, when you stand two of these egg-and-air concoctions up on edge, with ice cream between and whipped cream on top, you have one of the dressiest desserts in the world. It's called Meringue Glacee. And writer Will Irwin (who loves whipped cream and every other kind of food that's mostly dessert) goes for it strong.

Strong is the way you'll have to go for your meringues, too, if you make them at home. (You can buy them from the baker, you know.) For strong on the egg-beater and easy on the oven is the secret of making meringues successfully.

Otherwise, here's how: First put 4 fresh, cold egg-whites into deep, cold bowl—absolutely dry and free from grease. Then (with rotary beater) beat strong and steady till eggs come up in peaks when you lift beater out. Then (just a little at a time) beat in 2-3 cup sifted powdered or fine granulated sugar. Next (with folding motion of spoon, so as not to let air out) mix in 1-3 cup more of same kind of sugar, and ¼ teaspoon vanilla.

Baking Important.

Then get out good-sized piece plain white paper (not greased or oiled). Drop 8 mounds of egg mixture (using it all) onto this paper, about 2 inches apart. Then (with a spoon) shape these mounds into smooth rounds or ovals (as pictured) 3 to 4 inches across. Next lift this paper of meringues onto a wet board and put the whole thing into a very slow oven (not hotter than 275 F.) Bake slowly till surface of meringues is dry and crisp (about 50 minutes). Meringues should brown very little, if at all.

Filling Meringues.

Then remove meringues from paper while warm, by slipping spatula under then. (If they stick, dampen underside of paper). Next, scoop out soft inside of meringue (there won't be much of this soft part) breaking into meringues from bottom. Then put them back into oven (hollow-side up) to dry out thoroughly. Let cool.

A few minutes before serving, divide and shape 1 pint firm vanilla ice cream into 4 balls. Put 1 ball into the hollow between each of 2 meringues and stand each of these sets up on edge on one of your very best individual dessert plates. Then whip ¾ cup heavy cream, add 2 tablespoons confectioner's sugar, put this into your pastry bag (using star-shaped tube) and pipe it over the seam on top of each dessert where 2 meringues come together. Finally, decorate with Maraschino cherries cut in tiny fancy shapes, and set in refrigerator to chill. That, as you see, makes 4 individual desserts.

Nut Kisses.

For an easier confection, slick to serve at bridge or tea (along with fancy little cakes) do this: Fold any of the following into some egg finished beating it: 1 cup finely chopped nuts or 1 cup fresh-grated or canned (moist) coconut or ½ cup finely chopped nuts. Then drop mixture off tip of teaspoon onto plain white paper. Put paper onto cold, ungreased baking sheet. Bake in slow oven (not hotter than 275 F.) about 30 minutes.

Send for Corn Meal Recipes.

Not quite so delicate, but very satisfying are all the ways of using corn meal as told in my newest bulletin, "Favorite Dishes From Corn Meal." Recipes such as spider bread, spoon bread, cracklin' bread, corn pone, hoe cakes, Indian pudding, hasty pudding, fried mush and many others. Hoping to Lose a Finesse.

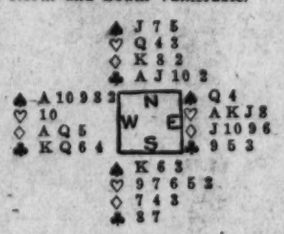
One of the earliest lessons taught to the Bridge player is the principle of the finesse, an encircling movement designed to reduce the trick-taking power of the opposition and capture an adverse honor. The finesse is in its essence entirely a maneuver for a favorable position and as a general rule, when a player takes a finesse, he hopes to see it win and hopes that by the repeated process of leading through an honor, enough guards may be removed so that the honor may be captured. This is not always true, however. Sometimes a player finds himself in a situation in which he makes a finesse that he hopes to see lose.

This exact situation occurred in a recent team-of-four match where a player at a contract of three notrump breathed a sigh of relief when his finesse failed. The reason why he was anxious to lose was not that he desired to give his opponents an extra trick, but that he wanted to establish an additional entry into his own hand, which had only one certain entry remaining in it. The hand and bidding were:

South, Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	1♠	Pass	2♡
Pass	3♣	Pass	3NT
Pass	Pass	Pass

The bidding requires no particular comment. West has a hand containing 3½ honor-tricks but does not wish to undertake a contract of three notrump with a singleton in his partner's suit. The bid of three clubs is, of course, a show of further strength and makes easier a bid of three notrump by East provided he has any values in diamonds or spades. East's bid of three notrump follows as a matter of course.

Despite West's bid of clubs South decided upon the Opening lead of the doubleton in that suit. The Queen was played from Dummy and North won with the Ace and immediately returned the Knave. This was won with Dummy's King, and East now noted with satisfaction that as both the eight and seven had dropped, he could establish another trick in the club suit and leave neither opponent with a long card in it. He therefore returned the four of clubs, which North, not anxious to lead, ducked. East now led the diamond 6 and finessed the Queen in Dummy. The play, while a finesse, was based as much upon the hope of losing as of winning, as, if the finesse failed, and North cashed the diamond King, an additional entry was provided to the East hand so that the heart finesse might be taken with safety later. North won the diamond, then cashed his remaining club, and now mistakenly returned a small spade. This forced South's King, and the Ace in Dummy won the trick. Now the Declarer was sure of his contract as he had discarded the heart 8 on the fourth club. The heart finesse could now be taken with perfect certainty as the diamond 5 assured a re-entry. When this finesse won, Declarer won the remaining tricks, losing only two clubs and one diamond.

It must be admitted that had North instead of returning a spade when he won the diamond, returned that suit, then North and South must have cashed one more trick and held the Declarer to his contract. This is an important consideration in Duplicate, and North, no doubt, took it into consideration, but he hoped against hope that, as East had failed to attack the spade suit, his partner held both the King and Queen. Equally, North might have furthered the interests of the defending partnership had he refused to win the Queen of diamonds with the King and waited until the second round of the suit.

The Girl Who Cut Capers at School Cut Clothes That Astonished Even Flo Ziegfeld

Woman Starts Voyage at 84 For Adventure

Crossing Ocean Seventh Time, She Hopes to Visit Africa.

New York, Jan. 12 (AP).—The way to keep young, chuckled Mrs. Lydia A. Hodgkin, who at 84 started on her seventh ocean crossing today, is to "work outdoors, have children, keep interested, and don't just sit in a rocking-chair and be old."

Mrs. Hodgkin, who lives in Russell, Minn., sailed on the Ascania, bound for Palestine, and perhaps the west coast of Africa if the captain will let her change her booking.

She is the widow of a sailor. Her husband used to urge her to cross the ocean and "see something." Now she's keeping it up because she has such a good time.

"I've been to Rome, and France, and goodness knows where I haven't been," Mrs. Hodgkin said. "I was in Palestine before but didn't stay long enough. I want to go to Syria and lots of other places.

"Then I want to go to the west coast of Africa because my husband was a sailor there as a boy."

A View on Mr. Hoover.

A rose-cheeked little woman with twinkling eyes, Mrs. Hodgkin greeted a reporter with a request to thread a needle for her, and with the question, "What do you think of our President?"

"Hoover didn't do much good, but he didn't do much harm, either," she said.

Her third-class cabin was the center of so much attention before sailing that it might have been that of the ship's belle. Officers and fellow-passengers gathered around.

In a sweater and an apron, with a lard pail containing "a little bit of vittles" beside her, Mrs. Hodgkin received their attention with poise and chuckles. She is a good sailor, and the only time she ever got seasick, she says, was when she was "foolish enough to put vinegar in my soup."

She goes to all the ship's parties, "and I usually win a prize as the healthiest woman as well as the oldest." People are always nice to her, and "only now and then do I run across what I call a fool."

Her Own Housekeeper.

Mrs. Hodgkin does not live with her married daughter, Mrs. John McColgan, of St. Paul, because she says the daughter worries too much about her wish to travel. She lives alone, does her own housework, keeps her garden, and is out and around every day even in 20 below zero weather.

She has outlived three other children, as well as her husband. She attributes her robust energy to her ocean-crossing as well as her gardening.

"Lots of people," she said, "die because they haven't the means to get on a ship and keep on sailing."

She plans to stay aboard several months—until just before her passport expires.

Poor Deer Likes Beer, Not Mirrors

He's a Film Star, but He Also Can't Get Used to Chorines.

The Al Jolson film "Wonder Bar" is costing a few dollars more than Warners expected it would on account of a trained deer.

There is a Busby Berkeley-conceived "number" staged within a mirror-encircled stage. A score of chorines in this inclosure appear, when photographed, to be several hundred girls. The trained deer has something to do with this sequence.

He wouldn't perform the first day he was put into the mirrored compound. He just stood still and stared and stared. He seemed to be wondering why there were so many of him. Then the scared deer fell down and stayed in that position until his keeper rescued him.

Whereupon it was discovered that he wasn't exactly scared. He'd been drinking. Just beer, but enough of it had been given to him to make him a little goofy when he discovered there were hundreds of him where only one should have been.

The following day the scene was shot—with a sobered-up trained deer.

Just Folks

By Edgar A. Guest.

The Mothers.

They never seem to mind at all
The endless ache of dusting chairs
And making clothes for children small
Or running up and down the stairs.

They wash the dishes thrice a day.
They make the beds and sweep the floors
And from their tasks are called away
To talk with salesmen at the doors.

They launder little garments white
And seldom pause to rest awhile,
Yet when the men come home at night
They greet them with a happy smile.

Not able to understand,
Who see it from man's point of view,
How the sweet mothers of the land
Contrive to do the things they do.

So many cares from day to day
Await the mothers, near and far,
I wonder how it is they stay
So brave and patient as they are.

The big ones in the sky.

Fit Your Frock To Your Lines, Say Stylists

It's Not Your Height, Nor Slimness, But How You Dress That Counts.

It's not so much a girl's height as how she dresses it that counts in making her dashingly smart: a figure that every one will turn to admire.

True, the girl whom judges recently titled, "Miss Universe," described as having "the world's most perfect figure," was 5 feet 5½ inches tall. True, too, that the average mannequin is tall and willowy or tall and statuesque; that the average designer seems wholly engrossed in creating clothes for women of average height or more.

But there are other designers, a famous Hollywood stylist among them, who urge the little woman to "know her lines." With special consideration to her type and her shortcomings, the petite woman of 5 feet or less can be really lovely and graceful in her clothing.

The secret is to carry the eye up and down, and not across. She must avoid horizontal lines at shoulder or waist or hip. The padded shoulders of the past winter were not for her. If she insists upon tailored suits, they must be of the type in which the coat ends only a few inches above the skirt hem line. The three-quarter length coat, or the hip-length jacket is not for her.

Sharp or scanty or angular lines must be eschewed by the little woman. Round necklines, high necklines and the "Peter Pan" type of collar are flattering and friendly to her.

Flat furs, long and simple sleeves, quite long skirts with floating hemlines, give flowing lines that carry the eye along and promote the illusion of average proportions.

Two-tone ensembles such as light blouse and dark skirt are best avoided, as are heavy costume jewelry, extravagant long-haired furs, heavy fur coats or striking figured materials.

If the little woman is inclined to be plump, long necklaces and slender dangling earrings will give the precious illusion of height. Up-and-down seamings will also help, adding height and lessening width.

McGuffey's Cabin Being Dismantled

Ford May Remove Shrine of Schoolbook Author.

Washington, Pa., Jan. 12 (AP).—Workmen today began removing weather-worn logs from a crumbling hillside cabin—the boyhood home of William Holmes McGuffey, whose "McGuffey's Readers" were studied by a generation of vanishing Americans in "the little red schoolhouse."

A bit of mystery surrounded the activities on the old Holmes farm, but the fact that Henry Ford spent several hours there last week exploring the ruins, led residents to fear he is planning to remove the logs to his early American village in Dearborn. They hope he will rebuild the house on the site.

The Detroit automobile man is known to have accumulated one of the best sets of original McGuffey Readers in existence, while spending millions in constructing his village.

Clubwomen Hear of Defeat in Germany

Back-to-Kitchen Movement in Full Swing There, Speaker Says.

The back-to-the-kitchen movement of women in Germany is in full swing and is rapidly sweeping away anything liberal in the public attitude toward careers for women in that country, Miss Emily Cuyler Hammond, speaker before the General Federation of Women's Clubs, in executive session in Washington, told the clubwomen yesterday.

Miss Hammond has just returned from Europe, where she has made an extensive study of labor conditions and methods of unemployment relief. Speaking of the future of German women, she said:

"The liberal and pacifist schools have been discontinued. The trade unions have been broken up.

"The women's organizations, for the most part liberal in tendencies, have been disbanded and the back-to-the-kitchen movement is very strong."

Describing the causes which have contributed to the state of affairs by which German women have lost the ground they had gained in the last few years, Miss Hammond said:

"The country has been suffering from an inferiority complex as a result of the Versailles Treaty and because of the poverty and suffering of the people. Hitler offered a new faith, a new hope. He convinced them that it was not necessary for them to starve, to be inferior."

Curious Contrast.

Curiously contrasted with this somber picture of women's rights and privileges in modern Germany was the speech before the clubwomen of Mrs. Edward M. Land, who told of the increasing influence of the American woman in public and National life.

"In this period of reconstruction the young women of America will undoubtedly play a significant part," Mrs. Land declared. "When we are in the grip of situations that are Nation-wide in scope we need the strong force and compelling influence of women's organization behind us. In our present crisis we clubwomen have an opportunity to draw into our ranks the young women who are ready and eager to make their contribution of service.

"A review of their activities is really inspiring. Every phase of welfare work has had their support. It has been their delight to bring a measure of joy to those who must always sit in darkness and to care for the neglected and the handicapped child. Perhaps next to philanthropy the younger woman is most interested in the arts. You find them writing and producing their own plays, staging pageants, entering poetry contests.

"During this uncertain period of our National life, women's activities have grown by leaps and bounds. Scarcely a State has failed to report new clubs and increased memberships."

International Attitude.

Nor are women of America content with a strictly nationalistic program in working for improvement of world economic conditions, the meeting was told.

Next year, the Federation will sponsor its second World Friendship Tour, when the president, Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, will conduct a party of women to Havana, Jamaica, Panama, Honolulu, the Philippines, Japan and China.

The State Department last year congratulated the Federation's members for splendid work done in cementing international friendship and understanding between this and European countries, during the course of a first World Friendship Tour of the continent and the British Isles.

Dr. Josephine L. Pierce, chairman of the federation's standardization committee, was praised for work with the Bureau of Standards in drafting specifications for manufacture of staple articles used by women. The ultimate objective is a label, issued jointly by the federation and the Bureau of Standards, for articles manufactured according to specifications recommended by these two bodies.

Another speaker, Miss Emily Louise Plumley, chairman of the federation's department of citizenship, called attention to the fact that the Chief Executive of the United States, while elected by the vote of the people, yet has vested in his official person more power under the Constitution than was ever given any king.

Dared Tyranny.

"It would seem," Miss Plumley said, "that the framers of the Constitution took a great chance with tyranny. But in the entire line of our Presidents, not one has consciously or intentionally betrayed his great trust. No dynasty can afford to match comparison with the Presidential average in ability and character. It is this early history of our American citizenship that I should like to see carefully studied as a part of adult as well as youthful education."

She discussed the problem of distribution now perplexing economists, declaring its solution must be found through providing purchasing power.

Miss Emily Hammond Tells of German Clubs Disbanded.

"We are a Nation today with unlimited resources, yet sinking steadily into deeper distress during the past few years," she said. "We have vast stores of food, huge stores of clothing, immense reservoirs of coal and oil, and yet, millions living in rags, perishing in the cold. The soap-box orator thinks the solution simple: 'Here is the food. Here are the hungry. Open the doors and let them in.'

One Problem Solved.

"That, of course, would settle nothing. The warehouses would quickly be emptied. There is no way to get that food transported from the warehouse to the people who need it save by the mechanism of sale and purchase. The problem of production we have solved. What we must do now is to solve the problem of distribution. This in the capitalistic system must be through solving the problem of purchasing power."

C. H. Collingwood, of the American Forestry Association, told club women that the Administration's forest conservation program had effectively furnished work for millions of otherwise unemployed, and cited the fact that over 190,000,000 acres of forest lands are yet unprotected in the country.

Woman Judge Thinks Bench Needs More Womanly Wisdom

Vice Offenders and Child Delinquents Would Get More Humane Handling, Declares Magistrate Anna Kross.

New York, Jan. 12 (AP).—Magistrate Anna Kross, serving her second week on the city court bench, hopes an increasing number of women will win judgeships.

"We should have more women judges," she said today, "in the woman's court, in children's court, in fact, in all the courts, a woman's point of view is valuable.

"I want to acquire a reputation as a judge, notwithstanding the fact that I'm a woman, so that the way will be opened for more women on the bench."

Women should have a greater part in the study of many cases, she believes.

"I'm surprised that in the case of the 12-year-old girl arrested for murder recently in Westchester County no woman or group of women protested against a young girl's being questioned entirely by men," she said.

Magistrate Kross, formerly assistant corporation counsel and active in women's club crime prevention work, is sitting in woman's court, an institution she wants to abolish.

For women arrested on vice charges, she said, should be dealt with, not by policemen and judges, but by doctors and socially trained investigators, both men and women.

"This whole matter," she said, "should be taken out of the criminal code and made the subject of a new social code. The cases should be heard by a commission. On it should be a well-qualified medical man, a psychologist, a psychoanalyst and a trained social worker."

Maybelle Manning's Designs Triumphed by Originality

The Young Woman From Virginia Made Good in New York as a Writer, a Dressmaker and Even as a Creator of Wonderful Stage Settings.

Beautiful frocks are woman's firmest ally in the business of making herself alluring to the opposite sex. Since time immemorial she has depended upon them to augment her charms. That is why dressmaking has been raised to the level of a fine art across the centuries. And today that art has reached its highest level of perfection.

This is the twelfth of a series of articles telling the stories of the great dressmakers of our time.

By Virginia Lee Warren.

When Irvin S. Cobb's daughter, Buff, and some of her pals wanted to know the proper costume for roller skating after a formal theater party, they turned to Maybelle Manning for this vital information. Miss Manning, designer of clothes for social registerites and darlings of the stage and screen, hesitated the barest second and then said that skaters should be roughly—and ruthlessly—divided into two classes. The amateurs should be equipped with S O S sending sets, wind deflectors, bumpers, and special upholstery. The accomplished ones could simply yank up the trains of their formal gowns and go merrily whooping around corners, nonchalantly cutting fancy figures on the sidewalk.

To prove that she belongs to the accomplished class of skaters, Miss Manning, soon after giving this sage counsel to Miss Cobb and her friends, tried yanking up her own train and cutting a few fantastic curlicues on her own account. She won her point. The thing can be done. But she claims that detachable trains would simplify matters a great deal. And she insists that the audience that viewed her midnight demonstration had more fun than she did.

Finishing School.

It's a long way from studying English composition in a quiet, dignified girls' finishing school in Virginia to performing didoes on the sidewalks of New York. But Maybelle Manning made the transition in not so very many years.

A Southerner by birth, she attended Hollins College, Hollins, Va. Her professors told her that if she would reduce her mischevious pranks by about 90 per cent and would take a look at her books now and then, they might be able to make a literary person out of her.

Miss Manning sat down and thought about all the literary persons she knew. The net result was bigger and better pranks while she was at Hollins. Next she went to the Gardner School in New York City which draws young women from families who are pretty much in the social swim.

After she left Gardner, Miss Manning began designing clothes for wholesale houses in New York. She had always had a flair for clothes but she never thought that this flair would be the means by which she should earn her living. Says she has forgotten how she got her first job or why she even went looking for one. But it isn't hard to imagine that another Southern fortune had folded up like an accordion and that the daughter of the house, young and beautiful, took it upon herself to spring to the rescue.

A Big Success.

She was a sensation in the wholesale houses—or rather, her clothes were a sensation. Soon Maybelle Manning designs were being exhibited in smart shops throughout America. After a few years of exhilarating success the young designer opened an establishment of her own.

In addition to a private clientele, she attracted the attention of the late Flo Ziegfeld, who engaged her to make costumes for several editions of "The Follies." Her costumes pleased him so much that he consented to look at some scenic designs she had made.

Mr. Ziegfeld also bought the scenic designs and Miss Manning had the pleasure of seeing her costumes placed in settings of her own choosing.

One day she happened to remember that she was supposed to have a talent for writing. She thought it would be jolly to combine this with clothes and her interest in the theater, so she paid a call upon Theater Magazine, now defunct. The editors of the magazine were easily convinced that she knew clothes. It was a bit harder to convince them that she could write. Finally they consented to let her describe the costumes of some of the most popular actresses. Incidentally, many of the costumes had been designed by Miss Manning, herself.

This venture turned out very nicely, so nicely, in fact, that the designer became fashion editor of Theater Magazine, a position that she held for several years. She occupied a similar place on the staff of Screenland. Today she contributes witty and bright articles to newspapers and to various smart magazines.

On Park Avenue.

Recently she opened a brand-new establishment at 443 Park avenue, New York, in conjunction with N. Gibson Clark, who makes hats. According to their best friends and most enthusiastic customers the two are running a sort of de luxe madhouse in a beautifully chaste, all-white setting. Miss Manning has made some exciting new creations which have such strange names as the "play safe" dress, the airplane silhouette, "never caught short" costumes, and "all for him" clothes.

Miss Manning firmly believes that this is the time for the American designer to climb up on the band wagon and pick off a great big seat. In explaining this she says, "as we enter post-gin 1934, we realize that those of us who have escaped completely dying on the vine during the black days, are going to have a lot of fun speeding up the new era, and, since no one understands a situation quite as well as the follow on the spot, the American designer will have her innings."

The streamline silhouette figures prominently in Miss Manning's newest collection. This silhouette is achieved by the elimination of projections, angles and gadgets, and by having everything blown to the back. The correct streamline costume balances so perfectly that the wearer may slide smoothly through every feminine gathering.

Play-Safe Dress.

When asked to describe the terms she uses for some of her things, the designer explained that the "play-safe" dress is for the nights when the wearer hasn't the slightest idea how anyone else will be dressed. In bright print, it has a very low back, which may be covered with a gay little jacket. "Never-caught-short costumes" are for those women who run into town in the morning and then are invited to stay over for luncheon. "All-for-him" clothes were frankly designed for masculine approval, which is really the fundamental principle of dressing, according to Miss Manning.

Recently this sparkling and beautiful couturiere designed the costumes for two plays, "The Day Victory" and "The Divine Moment." But clothes do not occupy all her time. In private life she is the wife of Lee E. Olwell, publisher and vice president of the New York Evening Journal and formerly executive vice president of the National City Bank of New York. The Olwells have a luxurious house in Seventy-ninth street, New York, and a summer home in fashionable Easthampton, L. I. As Mrs. Olwell, the designer is one of Manhattan's most brilliant hostesses. But that doesn't keep her from roller-skating on the sidewalk at midnight when she feels like it.

Paris at Work Designing New Repeal Gowns

They're Meant for Champagne Suppers and Night Club Doings.

Paris (AP).—Repeal styles—ready for champagne suppers and other post-prohibition festivities in America—are the latest news here.

With the idea that night life in the United States will become dressier as a result of repeal, some designers are getting elaborate costumes ready.

The jeweled accessories and occasionally low cut decolletes of these costumes recall the elaborate toilets which appeared at wine course dinners and champagne suppers in the days of "Diamond Jim" Brady, Lillian Russell and Rector's.

Shoulders Revealed.

In the midst of all the high front evening gowns appear other frocks slashed to reveal neck and shoulders as did the belles of another day.

White and silver lame crinkled crepes and shimmering gold lames make some of the most striking gowns. Others of plainer stuffs have sparkling jewels added to their decolletes, one of the most stunning being a black crepe model with an absolutely bare back finished only with flashing straps of sunlight yellow strass.

Capes in Vogue.

Little jackets or capes are draped about bare shoulders when their owners are dining or supping in restaurants. Dilkusha (the Princess de Rohan) shows a new evening gown of black blue faille worn with a snug "Beau Brummel" jacket of blue and white checked silk and wool.

Evening bags are larger. They have begun to approach the size in vogue in the days when every bag had to be large enough to hold a pair of opera glasses. Most of them are made in pouch shape of elastic velvet, plain velvet or brocade and are large enough to hold all the make-up their owners may wish to carry.

More Natural Make-up.

Make-up itself is less obvious and more natural, suggesting the soft, unroughed skin of the belle of the gay nineties. Eyes are shadowed, however, and lips brilliantly rouged.

Jeweled combs, sparkling stars for the hair and bandeau, worn again by the smartest women, recall the days when tiaras flashed from nearly every box in the opera's "golden horseshoe."

Greta Garbo Wears "Jockey Clothes"

She Shops in Trousers and Cap With Huge White Peak.

Hollywood.—The disguise that the elusive Greta Garbo adopts for shopping is so obvious that she deceives very few. Here's what she was wearing the other day in a Wilshire boulevard store: Low-heeled sports shoes, bluish-gray trousers, a shaggy tweed coat of brown, dark glasses and a "jockey cap" with a white celluloid peak fully six inches long.

To 12-year-old Marybeth Luddy, to whom I was showing the stars and sights, Miss Garbo said when asked for her signature:

"I never do that." And without a smile.

I fear Miss Garbo has lost a very enthusiastic fan.

Mrs. Greenway Wears Pale, Green-Blue Crepe

(Associated Press.)

Mrs. Isabella Greenway, the new congresswoman from Arizona, attended a recent White House reception in an evening dress of pale, green-blue crepe made with a long skirt that flared in back to a short train, and with a graceful cape edged with fine pleating.

Spring Hats Are Here Again!

A hat to suit every type of face is the rule for spring. Polka-dotted alpaca straw makes the blown-to-the-front model by Molyneux (upper left). Lily 'Dache's saucy Breton sailor of black toyo is faced with striped silk and has a matching scarf (upper right.)

Cooper Again Is Indicted With Warren

Six of 8 Counts Charge Pair With $455,000 Conspiracy.

Commercial Bank Office Misapplied $90,550, Second Charge.

A second indictment against Col. Wade H. Cooper, president, and Bates Warren, general counsel, of the Commercial National Bank, outlining additional charges in connection with alleged irregularities, was handed down yesterday by a District grand jury.

The new indictment is in eight counts. The first six charge that Cooper and Warren conspired to misapply $455,000 of the funds of the Commercial Bank. The last two allege they actually misapplied a total of $90,550.

United States Attorney Leo A. Rover announced afterward he would probably drop the prior indictment, containing only one count.

The dates of the alleged illegal acts were fixed as being between January 18, 1930, and February 27, 1933, just a few days prior to the National bank holiday.

"Fictitious Items" Charged.

Crediting of "false and fictitious" items to the account of the Continental Trust Co. on the books of the Commercial Bank is the basis of the first six counts. The accusation is also made that the board of directors of the trust company was influenced by Cooper and Warren to declare dividends on its stock. The dividends were paid out of the credits on the Commercial's books, it was alleged.

The making of loans, on which no security was obtained, to the Continental from the Commercial is traced in the indictment to the two men. Both were large stockholders in the Continental, which was absorbed by the Commercial. The proceeds of these loans went to the purchase of "large numbers" of shares of stock of both the Commercial and Continental by the accused men, it is set forth.

Cooper is on bond of $10,000 under the first indictment. Warren, confined to his home by illness, has not yet posted bond.

Cooper Seeks Reopening.

The Commercial National Bank is now in the hands of Receiver Robert C. Baldwin, who was appointed by the Comptroller of the Currency when an examination of the bank's accounts last March showed, the Treasury said, that it should not be allowed to reopen. Cooper, as president of the United States Savings Bank, which also has not been allowed to reopen, has been engaged in the acrimonious debate with Treasury officials over the rejection of his plans for opening the savings bank.

Only recently, Justice Jennings Bailey, District Supreme Court, refused to issue an order requiring the Treasury to accede to Cooper's plan for reopening. The banker is now perfecting an appeal from that decision.

Defrees Will Inspect Navy Air Port Today

For the first time since he assumed command of the Washington Navy Yard last month, Rear Admiral Joseph R. Defrees, commandant and superintendent, will pay an official visit of inspection today to the Naval Air Station at Anacostia.

The review of personnel and inspection of planes and equipment will be under personal direction of Lieut. Comdr. William K. Harrill, commander of the station.

Allen Predicts $1.50 Will Buy "Good" Quart

D. C. Control Regulations Will Be Drafted Next Week.

Commissioner George E. Allen yesterday predicted that with legalization of liquor in the District, "a good quart of liquor" can be bought for $1.50, and a superior grade for $2.

He also said municipal officials will begin drafting regulations for liquor control the first of next week, or immediately after the Senate District Committee reports on the District bill. Auditor Daniel J. Donovan also will begin preparing an urgency deficiency estimate calling for an appropriation of $35,000 or $40,000 to finance the administration of the alcohol beverage control board until the end of the fiscal year.

Melvin C. Hazen, chairman of the Board of Commissioners, announced the District heads have assured the new United States Attorney, Leslie C. Garnett, that they would cooperate fully in a campaign to rid the Capital of bootleggers and gamblers.

Hazen, administrative chief of the police department, said he would confer with Maj. E. Brown, superintendent, within the next few days regarding police cooperation.

Both Allen and Hazen said they saw no reason for tolerating or patronizing the bootlegger after the District liquor bill becomes a law, because good liquor will be available at reasonable prices.

"We expect to have the cooperation of the public in this drive," Hazen said.

The Commissioner said the details of the drive against gambling would be left to the police department, and the United States Attorney's office.

Taxi Driver Found Dead in Parked Car

Willard S. Upright, 60, 1933 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, taxicab driver, died yesterday in his cab while it was parked in the rear of an apartment house at 59 I street northwest.

He was found in the rear seat by John Middleton, janitor at the apartment house. A heart attack was held cause of the death.

Swindler Gets 1-3 Year Term

Plea to Free Wife Fails, and She Is Held for Trial.

A plea that his wife be released from a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses was made in District Supreme Court yesterday by Albert Best, to Justice Peyton Gordon to receive sentence.

Best and his wife, Thea, were indicted for obtaining travelers' checks worth $800 on a bad check. They were arrested.

The husband pleaded guilty and explained his wife knew nothing of the transaction. Yesterday he admitted he was guilty but insisted "an innocent woman" was being held without justification. The wife was bound over for trial later, and Best was sentenced to from 1 to 3 years.

Before pronouncing sentence, Justice Gordon asked Best if he was "not an international swindler." Best replied that there were a few European countries he had missed. Police records indicate that he has traveled extensively and carried on widespread operations.

Only Verbal

"Shooting at Capital" Was Greatly Exaggerated.

"There's been a shooting at the Capitol!"

This message given over the phone to police headquarters sent squad cars and newspapermen scurrying to the hill yesterday afternoon.

All they could find was the Senate and House in session as usual.

And that wasn't news—to a police reporter.

Extended CWA Program Here To Be Mapped

Officials Believe Nation's Work Will Go On, and Will Be Ready.

District department heads and other agencies which have been providing work for CWA workers will be asked next week for tentative schedules of projects for submission to the Federal Civil Works Administration, if the National civil works program is extended from February 15 until May 1, Capt. Howard F. Clark, chairman of the District CWA planning committee, announced yesterday.

District officials believe the work will be continued and they want to be prepared to carry on activities without a pause.

The planning committee yesterday authorized Leroy A. Halbert, director of emergency relief to assign 96 men to assist the delivering of food for the midday lunches for school children. As the District quota of jobs has been filled, Halbert will have to take 96 women off civil works service domestic activities and place them on the direct relief roll in order to transfer the men to civil works service status.

A photographer will be employed to make progress pictures of CWA projects for submission to the Federal Administration.

Purchase of 325 safety kits was authorized, and plans were made to train foreman clerks, 100 at a time, in safety methods at a training school conducted by the Red Cross.

Utah Man Chosen Morgenthau Aid

Secretary Morgenthau announced yesterday the appointment of Marriner S. Eccles, of Ogden, Utah, to be Assistant to the Secretary, with a field of duty including financial and banking problems.

Mr. Eccles, member of a pioneer Utah family, is president of the First Security Corporation, which owns 28 banks in Utah, Wyoming and Idaho, including the First National Bank of Salt Lake City; is president of the Utah Construction Co., and is also interested in the sugar, lumber and milk industries in the Southwest. He is chairman of the Civil Works Administration for Utah.

Mr. Eccles will take up his duties in the Treasury Department within the next two weeks and will establish residence here.

Elusive

Prisoner Hobbles Out of Gallinger, Officer Near.

When it comes to getting away from policemen, William Ferebee, 24, colored, improves with experience.

Several weeks ago he was shot in the foot attempting to elude arrest on a grand larceny charge.

Yesterday, clad in a bathrobe, he hobbled out of Gallinger Hospital on crutches, hailed a taxicab and was free.

Patrolman T. Arthur Lusby, his guard, was inclined to attribute Ferebee's success to luck more than anything else.

Lusby had six prisoners in two rooms to watch. Painters were working in the corridor. Ferebee couldn't pass up that opportunity.

Seek Additions To D. C. Budget

Board Expected to Ask $397,000 More for Bridge and Schools.

Addition of several more school items and $15,000 for plans for a new Pennsylvania Avenue Bridge to the supplemental estimates which will be submitted to the Budget Bureau was indicated yesterday by the District Commissioners.

Engineer Commissioner Gotwals said that $160,000 probably will be asked for a 10-room addition and a gymnasium at the Alice Deal Junior High School, near Fessenden street and Nebraska avenue.

Garnet C. Wilkinson, assistant superintendent of schools in charge of the colored division, submitted a list of projects which he asked to be included in the supplemental estimates. Maj. Gotwals indicated that some of them would be accepted.

The total list, calling for a total appropriation of $397,000, in order of preference, follows:

Additional land for the Phelps Vocational School, $67,000.

Four-room addition to Phelps School, $65,000.

Extend auto repair shop and build gymnasium at Armstrong High School, $70,000.

Connect old and new Armstrong buildings with a corridor and remodel girls' gymnasium, $45,000.

Draw plans for new senior high school in northeast, $30,000.

Additions to Young Platoon School, $120,000.

Murder Trio Put to Death In Mess Hall

Scene of Executions Quickly Converted for Noon-Day Meal.

Policeman's Slayers Pay With Lives for Crime in Record Time.

Three men died in the District Jail mess hall yesterday.

One by one, as the cheerless light of a dismal winter morning lent to the atmosphere of tension, they paid with their lives—in a hastily placed electric chair—for the murder of a United States park policeman.

As on occasions of its kind in years past, tables and chairs in the jail dining room were pushed aside long enough to permit the execution of condemned prisoners.

Only a few hours before the triple execution, second in the District's history, approximately 198 men filed into the chamber for breakfast. Less than 40 minutes after the third man was pronounced dead and guards dismantled the electric chair the same number sat down to their noonday meal.

Trace of Chair Remains.

Many of those who ate were within 15 feet of the spot where a few minutes before the three condemned prisoners were executed. In plain sight, on the wall overhead, remained electric connections into which power lines to the chair were plugged.

The first man to die was Irving Murray, 27. He was followed immediately by Joseph Jackson, 21, and Ralph Holmes 27. All were colored.

In November, 1932, they were convicted of first degree murder in the slaying of Park Policeman Milo J. Kennedy. He was beaten to death in a gang fight at Logan Circle August 7, 1932.

Guard Bidden Good-by.

Murray walked quickly to the chair, accompanied by Rev. Joseph Pinn, colored Baptist minister. As he passed a guard in the long walk through the dining hall he hesitated a moment, looked up and smiled.

"Good-by" he said.

Jackson walked beside Father R. P. Nuttall, of the Dominican House of Studies. He chewed gum and hummed to himself. In his right hand he held a crucifix, and as he sat in the chair asked that a Bible be placed in his lap.

He started to speak as the current was applied and a chilling scream resounded through the makeshift death chamber.

Chanting spirituals as he walked the final steps, Holmes sat in the chair, removed his own slippers and settled back. It required exactly 27 minutes to put the trio to death.

The chamber itself presented an eerie appearance. Piled against the walls were row after row of tables and chairs, covered with white cloth.

Tables Hurriedly Replaced.

Guards worked fast to dismantle the chair, replace dining equipment and prepare for the seating of prisoners for lunch.

Even before use of the electric chair, Thomas M. Rives, superintendent of the jail, declared, the mess hall has been the District's only execution chamber. Gallows, he said, were erected in the same room.

"It is not proper or fitting," Rives said, "to execute condemned prisoners in the same room where their fellow inmates are rquired to eat. But what can we do? There is no other place."

Four other prisoners are awaiting electrocution. Two of them are scheduled to die in February, the others in March.

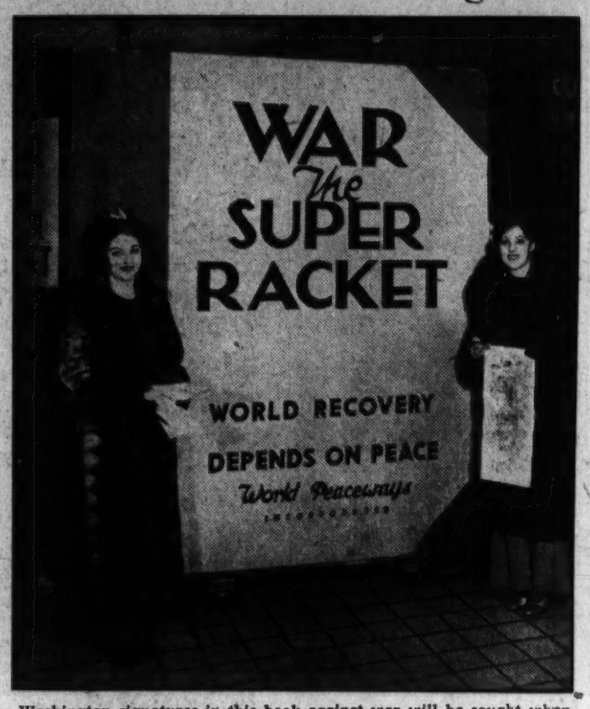
Meanwhile, the mess hall remains the official execution chamber, and fully aware of this, hundreds of men daily take their places around long rows of tables and attempt to enjoy eating.

Miss Harrison, Nurse, Dies From Dress Burns

Mrs. Ada Harrison, 69, a nurse, of 4910 Georgia avenue, died at Gallinger Hospital yesterday from burns received Wednesday, when her dress caught fire from an electric heater at 4908 Georgia avenue.

The flames were extinguished by Norville Stearns with a blanket, but she already had been critically burned.

Giant Book Portesting War To Be at Peace Meeting Here



Washington signatures in this book against war will be sought when it arrives here Wednesday on a Nation-wide tour under the auspices of the World Peaceways organization. More than 200,000 New Yorkers have put their names in it. The volume weighs more than a ton and is 7½ feet high.

Signatures Will Be Added to 200,000 Already Obtained.

Mutely functioning as heavy artillery in the war against war, an enormous book, which weighs more than a ton and is believed to be the largest in the world, will arrive here next Wednesday on the first leg of its Nation-wide tour under the auspices of the World Peaceways organization.

Inside the volume, which is 7½ feet high, 7¼ feet wide and 3½ feet thick, are signatures of 200,000 "peace-minded" New Yorkers, obtained when it was on exhibition in Manhattan.

The big book is being brought here for the conference of the National Committee on the Cause and Cure of War, at the Washington Hotel, from Tuesday until Friday next week. Its sponsors hope to add many more signatures here.

Atop the first few pages are grim war pictures. A French officer lies dead in a shell-torn trench after a gas attack. Blind soldiers follow one another past a registration table. Bayonets are fixed before a regiment goes "over the top."

Beneath these pictures are signatures. When the World Peaceways workers obtain 1,000,000 names in the book, they intend to send it to Geneva, where it will be placed in the archives of the World Peace Conference.

Theresa M. Durlach, of New York City, is president of the Peaceways organization. Its campaign committee is headed by Roseamond Pinchot, daughter of the Governor of Pennsylvania, and includes Senator Gerald P. Nye, of North Dakota, and Representatives Edward A. Kenny, of New Jersey; Herman P. Koppelmann, of Connecticut; A. J. Sabath, of Illinois, and Knut Hill, of Washington.

Book to Be Shown.

The volume will be escorted to the Capitol by a special guard of honor. An open peace meeting will be held at Woodward & Lothrop's department store, where it will be placed on exhibition after its arrival.

Mrs. Minna Adams, prominent Washington clubwoman, is in charge of ceremonies here. Her committee includes Miss Dorothy Alden, Mrs. Charles S. Hamlin, president of the Women's National Democratic Club; Mrs. Lowell Mellett, Miss Dorothy Detzer, Mrs. Jack B. Tate, Mrs. Florence Boeckel, of the National Council for the Prevention of War; Mrs. Charles Edward Russell and Mrs. Lola Horton.

Brown's Aid Stricken En Route to Office

Stricken with a heart attack on his way to work, Joseph B. Hansen, 50, secretary to Maj. and Supt. of Police Ernest W. Brown, was taken to Casualty Hospital yesterday. Hansen collapsed at Fifth and D streets northwest and was taken to the hospital in a taxicab. He is said to have suffered chronic heart trouble.

Cummings in Court Monday

Attorney General to Take Stand in Jesse Duke Disbarment Trial.

Attorney General Homer S. Cummings yesterday announced he would appear at District Supreme Court Monday afternoon to testify in the Jesse C. Duke disbarment trial.

For two days Duke has been laboring to bring Cummings into the courtroom. Thursday he was refused an attachment for the Attorney General when he declined to tell what he expected to prove by him.

Duke's trial ended its third week yesterday with the defendant on the stand detailing the reasons that prompted him to charge District Supreme Court Justice F. D. Letts and United States Attorney Leo A. Rover with sending to the Court of Appeals a false and inaccurate bill of exceptions.

Duke intimated last night he might be able to conclude Monday. There are numerous other witnesses under subpena by Duke.

10 Dead, 401 Hurt Here, December Traffic Toll

Ten persons were killed and 401 injured in traffic accidents here in December, L. I. H. Edwards, assistant superintendent of police, reported yesterday.

There were 741 accidents here during the month, as compared with 658 last December, and 869 in December, 1931. Property damage was caused in 392 of the accidents taking place this December. On Saturday, December 23, 41 accidents took place, more than on any other day.

Police Batter Entry in Raid On Gamblers

Break Into De Luxe G St. Place With Axes to Start Drive.

Bookmaking Retreat Is Found Empty; Inside Tip Blamed.

The first blow of a drive to close the numerous gaming establishments of the city was struck yesterday by Lieut. George M. Little and his newly formed police vice squad when they smashed their way into a de luxe bookmaking retreat at 1409 G street northwest.

The detectives made no arrests. Neither employes nor customers were present when the headquarters men crashed in. It is believed that the owner, a well-known member of the Washington racehorse syndicate, had received advance information of the raid and closed for the day.

Entrance was gained by breaking a second floor showcase window which was reached by ladders brought from headquarters. Operations of the squad attracted a large crowd who watched the police wield their axes.

Doors Barred.

The raid revealed the first bookmaking place of any magnitude to feel the police ax within several months. Within was a 50 foot blackboard comparable in size to a stock broker's board. Other gaming equipment found included a blackjack table, a dice table and telephone equipment for taking of racing bets. There were rows of benches on which patrons could watch the race result board.

Police were forced to resort to the window method of entrance because two doors at the head and foot of the staircase which led to the room were barred. Beside these doors, a heavy four-inch trapdoor designed to cover the entire staircase was an additional fortification. It was rigged with ropes and pulleys so it could be dropped into position in a second.

A roof door which was evidently designed as a means of escape was also a feature of the establishment. A ladder by which it was reached stood in place.

Equipment Confiscated.

Police did not leave empty handed. Every piece of equipment which could be chopped or pried free was removed from the room. Police also took the doors to headquarters.

Authorities said the place had been in operation about eight months. They were armed with a warrant obtained after an undercover member of the squad had placed bets there. Lieut. Little said that he thought someone had recognized the agent after he had made the bet with the result that the place was closed.

It was learned that the raid was the first of a drive planned against the downtown gaming places of the city. These establishments have enjoyed apparent freedom from police interference for several months and recently have been flourishing more openly.

Ruth's Rapid Signing for $35,000 Hints at Managerial Job in '36

Pact Reached Quickly With Ruppert

Babe Satisfied With '34 Terms; Saw no Use to Prolong Matter.

Seen as Successor to McCarthy at End of Latter's Contract.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 (AP).—Two months ahead of the usual schedule and minus all the customary fanfare associated with this momentous event, Babe Ruth and his baseball employer, Col. Jacob Ruppert, came to terms today on the 40-year-old slugger's 1934 salary.

By mutual agreement they withheld details, pending the actual ceremony of signing the contract next Monday morning in Ruppert's brewery, but it was learned that a compromise was reached at or close to $35,000 after the shortest and most harmonious salary conference Babe and the colonel have had in a dozen years.

Seen as 1936 Manager.

The dispatch of the salary business was regarded in baseball circles as a possible indication Ruth has an understanding with Ruppert that he will get a chance to manage the Yankees in 1936, after the present contract of Joe McCarthy expires.

The Babe turned down a proposal by his employer to manage the Newark Bears of the International League this year. Neither Ruth nor Ruppert, however, would comment on what the future holds for the famous home run hitter beyond 1934.

The figure mentioned, which Ruth himself indicated was close to the mark, is the Babe's lowest salary since 1921, but still makes him the highest salaried performer in either major league. It is his third "cut" in as many years and represents a total drop of approximately 55 per cent in salary since he received his peak pay of $80,000 for the 1930 and 1931 seasons.

On One-year Basis.

The Yankee slugger since then has been signed only on a one-year basis, receiving $75,000 in 1932 and $52,000 last year.

In the aggregate, over a period of 15 years, including 1934, Ruth's salary checks from the Yankees reach the staggering sum of nearly $850,000. This will be his twenty-first season in the American League.

The rapidity with which the Babe and the Colonel came to terms, this early in the winter, was more surprising than the latest reduction in the veteran's salary, which he had himself said he expected to accept without much if any argument. It was a sharp contrast to the annual verbal warfare usually begun in New York and carried on well into the training camp season in St. Petersburg, Fla., where the climax of signing has been an established winter ceremony. Ruth has never before signed any of his big contracts with the Yankees before March.

Satisfied, Says Babe.

"The colonel and I simply decided there was no use prolonging the matter this time," explained Ruth. "We got together quickly. I gave him my figure and he gave me his. We reached an agreement and I am satisfied. The colonel has always been fair with me. I can't tell you the exact figure now, because they asked me not to say anything about that until Monday. Yes, it's under $40,000."

At the Yankee offices, it was specifically denied by Secretary Ed Barrow that the figure is $37,500, a compromise between the Babe's request for $40,000 and the colonel's offer of $35,000. It was suggested Ruppert's offer more likely was $30,000 and the compromise figure $35,000.

Ruth has already begun daily workouts at McGovern's gymnasium and expects to be in shape to play at least 100 games as a regular with the Yankees this year. He played in 137 games last year. He will not leave for Florida until about the middle of February.

Stanford Not to Send Its Track Team East

Stanford University, Calif., Jan. 12 (AP).—The board of athletic control announced today Stanford will not send a team East this year to compete in the I. C. A. A. A. A. track meet. Instead, the squad will go to the National Collegiate Athletic Association's competition at Los Angeles.

Graduate Manager Al Masters said financial reasons and Stanford's desire to support California contests prompted the decision.

Berkeley, Calif., Jan. 12 (AP).—The University of California has not decided definitely whether to enter the I. C. A. A. A. A. meet at Philadelphia.

"We are not inclined to send a full team, but we have not reached a definite decision," Graduate Manager W. W. Monohan stated.

Sherwood Five Last-Minute Winner

Beats Silver Spring, 16-15; Bethesda Quint Routs Rockville, 23-4.

A THRILLER and a one-sided victory were highlights of yesterday's play in the Montgomery County series, with Sherwood and Bethesda the respective winners.

The Sherwood victory over Silver Spring on the former's court was a bitterly fought battle, with the lead changing hands no less than six times. The Sandy Springers finally won, 16-15. The home team led, 3-0, at the first quarter, but trailed, 7-6, at the half, due to some accurate shooting by Wolfe, of the Takomans. The teams were deadlocked at 15-all with 5 minutes left to play. Both teams then concentrated on the defense and the ball was kept in midcourt until Vandervoort, of the losers, fouled Turner with but 30 seconds to play and he converted the free toss for the victory. Turner also led the Sherwood rally in the second half and his valuable points all came in the last minutes of play. Clark and Wolfe were the sparkplugs in the Takomans' attack.

Gets One Field Goal.

Bethesda limited the Rockville dribblers to one field goal in trouncing the county seat team, 23-4, on the losers' court. The league leaders jumped to an early lead and the result was never in doubt after the first basket by Johnson. Royers' four goals from the court were featured, followed by Johnson with 7 counters.

Eli Squad Reorted Favoring Outsider

Captain-Elect Confers With Farmer, Paper Says.

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 12 (AP).—Reports that Yale football players had plunged into the coaching mixup were published today, with the New Haven Register saying members of the 1933 squad had signed a petition favoring the appointment of an "outsider" to replace their erstwhile chief, Reggie Root.

"Yale football players," said the Register, "want a 'New Deal.' And the players favor an 'outsider' as coach and do not want Reg Root to return as the chief mentor."

The paper said Capt.-elect Clare Curtin conferred on the coaching situation last night with Malcolm Farmer, director of athletics.

"Clipper" Smith States He Won't Go to Auburn

Palo Alto, Calif., Jan. 12 (AP).—Maurice "Clipper" Smith, University of Santa Clara football coach, who recently announced himself as considering an offer to coach at Alabama Poly, said here today he planned to remain at Santa Clara.

"I am writing today that my setup with Santa Clara precludes discussion of other possibilities at this time," Smith said.

Central Beats Roosevelt, 40 to 27

Halts Winning Streak of Foe, Drawing Away in Second Half.

Tech Overcomes 19-7 Lead and Conquers Western, 40-21.

ROOSEVELT HIGH SCHOOL'S Rough Riders came a cropper in their scholastic basket ball series debut yesterday, the victims of the leading Central quintet, 40-27, in a game that punctured the belief that Roosevelt would be a serious threat in the series.

Advertised as the feature of the twin program at the Tech gymnasium, the Roosevelt-Central game gave way to the Tech-Western engagement as the thrill provider, with the lowly Western team amassing a 19-7 lead before succumbing to a last-half attack that brought the Technicians a 40-21 triumph.

Starting from scratch, the Georgetown five piled up a 9-5 lead at the quarter, brushed aside the five-man defense that so skillfully frustrated the strong Eastern team and went off the hardwoods at the half, the probable winner for the usual series' weekly upset.

Billings Leads Attack.

But Tech came back strong at the start of the third period, and with Josh Billings, lean tip-off man, leading the assault with five field goals, staged a rally that wound up the period with his team holding a 23-22 lead.

In the final stanza the Techmen continued the rapid fire on the Western basket, with Al Gillem, Bubba Wiles and Reds Daly penetrating the weary Georgetowners' defense, to put the game in the rout class.

Jimmy Corcoran, Fred Frank and Green, a newcomer to the series, were the heavy scorers in Western's early attack.

Game Deadlocked.

It was a peculiar battle, this Roosevelt-Central tiff, with the Ruf Riders holding the Mount Pleasant outfit to nary a field goal in the first quarter. Four foul flings in six attempts by the Coggin's coached crew deadlocked the count at 4-all.

Buddy Nau, handicapped by sickness throughout the early part of the season, proved to be the outstanding performer on the court for the day. The ace guard of the Central team, besides playing a spectacular guarding brand of ball, carried off the scoring honors with 18 points.

Buddy started the bombardment on the Presidents' basket at the start of the second period, flipping the leather through the hoop five times, to give his team a commanding lead at the half, 19 to 8.

Ball Leaps Out.

Coggin's crew continued to peck away at the Roosevelt basket, but the barrage was occasionally broken by fancy shots by Jesse Black and Huck Cavanaugh. Several times these two sunk the ball only to have the heavy coat of English whip it back out of the basket.

At times the game took on the aspect of a football scrimmage with player pileups, mostly under the baskets and an accasional slide across the floor. As the game progressed, the Ruf Riders threw all caution aside, as far as guarding was concerned, which resulted in easy Central scores and a flock of fouls that were converted into Central points.

Arm-Locks, Neck-Locks End Wedlock of Rassler and Wife

CHICAGO, Jan. 12 (A.P.).—To Mrs. Estelle Cabel, Boston and Smith College bred, married life for the first six months was just a course in applied wrestling, catch-as-catch-can.

She had admired Carl Cabel's tactics as a wrestler for good old Chicago U.—but after they took the vows, she said, he practiced on her. Arm-locks, neck-holds, with unorthodox kicks and chokes thrown in were too much for the 21-year-old bride and she obtained a divorce today on grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment, uncontested.

The former Estelle Cohen is the daughter of a Boston physician, member of Phi Beta Kappa and now a social worker here. They were married April 21, 1933, and separated October 4. Gabel captained the University of Chicago wrestling team last year.

Invading Penn Athletic Club Swimmers Who Meet Capital Girls Tonight

Aligned on the spring board is the Penn A. C. team which will seek to repeat an earlier victory over the Shoreham Club team tonight. Left to right, Florence Peck, Connie Renninger, Jane Flannagan, Evelyn Pangborne and Dorothy Campbell. At right is Betty O'Toole, the Shoreham Club's relay star who may also race in the breaststroke.

Capital Teams Out of City Tonight

G. U. Faces West Virginia; C. U. at Baltimore; Terps vs. V. M. I.

THREE-FOURTHS of the local college basket ball talent will go into action tonight on widely separated courts. Georgetown continues its western swing in the Eastern Intercollegiate Conference, at Morgantown, where it stacks up against West Virginia. Catholic University has an engagement with Loyola, at Baltimore, and Maryland's basketers and boxers will be at Lexington, Va., for a twin bill with V. M. I.

Loyola has a well-rounded ball club that has four wins to its credit, but none of them against teams of Catholic's caliber. The Brooklanders have been hitting a merry pace since the start of the campaign and there is no reason why they should suddenly capsize at Baltimore. Gallaudet and Western Maryland gave the lads the opportunity of ridding themselves of whatever bad basket ball they had in their systems, and the future outlook is rosy for the Cotton Pickers.

Frosh in Preliminary.

Loyola and C. U. freshman teams will meet in a preliminary game, and after seeing the young Cards nose out the Maryland yearlings, it looks like a good night for the Red and Black.

Maryland was given a rest yesterday after its thrilling but gruelling game with Duke. It may be just the thing to put the boys on edge for the Cadets. Chase, Vincent, the Buscher boys, Yowell and Snyder burned up plenty of energy in collecting 13 points in 3½ minutes, and another such performance tonight will spell curtains for the Virginians.

Although they do not play again until next week, Coach Ted O'Leary had the G. W. squad out working yesterday. O'Leary was well pleased with the team's showing against St. John's—a game which all of the players feel they should have won. McGuinnis, supposedly suffering from a broken finger, turned the tide of victory for St. John's after the Colonials had led most of the way. Long Island simply overwhelmed the downtown school with a steady barrage of pot shots that found their mark with uncanny consistency.

Warrenton Teams Score.

Warrenton, Va., Jan. 12 (Spl.).—Warrenton A. C. basket ball team defeated Marshall A. C. on the latter's floor, 54 to 33. The Warrenton girls defeated the Marshall girls, 20 to 17.

Dempsey, Garden Head Talk; Baer-Carnera Match Is Seen

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 (AP).—Negotiations for a world heavyweight championship match in New York next June between Primo Carnera, Italian holder of the title, and Max Baer, his leading American challenger, progressed "amicably" late today at a conference attended by Col. John Reed Kilpatrick, president of Madison Square Garden, Jack Dempsey and Ancil Hoffman, Baer's manager.

The possibility of an agreement "within 24 hours" was indicated in a brief statement from the Garden.

Carnera is already under contract with the Garden to box Tommy Loughran in Miami, Fla., February 22, and the Italian's part in the agreement would hinge upon the outcome of this contest.

Baer and his manager have had a working agreement with Dempsey, in the role of promoter, and this has previously been a barrier to reaching an agreement with the Garden, which has Carnera tied up for 1934. Only a few days ago Dempsey launched a blast of criticism at the Garden's conduct of boxing.

O'Farrell, Reds Pilot, May Let Bottomley Go

Waukegan, Ill., Jan. 12 (AP).—Bob O'Farrell, newly appointed manager of the Cincinnati Reds, forgot his bowling alleys long enough today to tell baseball writers that he was glad to get another chance to manage a major club; that Chick Hafey would stick with the Reds, and that he was confident of improving the team's position in the 1934 National League pennant race.

But when the discussion drifted to Jim Bottomley, the new Red manager didn't have much to say, giving added strength to rumors that "Sunny Jim" was ticketed for a job on some other ball club.

O'Farrell said he hoped to catch at least 100 games unless Lombardi shows enough stuff.

Court, Swim Meets On W. & M. Program

Williamsburg, Va., Jan. 12 (AP).—Tomorrow will provide a full program in Blow gymnasium at William and Mary.

In the afternoon, the Indian swimmers will launch their schedule in a meet with the Generals of Washington and Lee.

At night, the scene of action will swing to the basket ball court where the Indians will meet the Roanoke Maroons in the third and final game of the Salemites, invasion of eastern Virginia.

Helen Jacobs Foregoes National Indoor Play

Boston, Jan. 12 (U.P.).—Helen Jacobs, women's tennis champion, sketched her plans for the 1934 season today, disclosing that she will not compete in the women's National indoor championships at New York in February.

The successor to Mrs. Helen Wills Moody as queen of America's courts women revealed that she will compete in tournament play for the first time this year in the French championships to be held in Paris in May.

Bethesda Girls Win.

Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School girls team chalked up its fourth victory of the season yesterday, swamping Rockville High School, 46-9, at Rockville. The winners rolled up an 18-3 lead in the first half. Lee and Winkler, with 16 and 18 points respectively, led the scoring.

Old Line Ringmen Clash With V. M. I.

Go to Lexington Tonight for Second Match.

Another blow—quite a few of them, in fact—will be struck for the athletic honor of Maryland tonight at Lexington, Va., where the Old Line boxing team steps into the ring for a session of fistcuffing with Virginia Military Academy. It is Maryland's second match of the season. The Terps conquered a stubbron Richmond squad, 3½ to 4½, intheir debut.

Almost a month has elapsed since Maryland fought its firnt fight, while tonight's bouts will be the first taste of competition for the Cadets. On paper, the teams appear to be evenly matched, though there is a tendency to favor V. M. I. Each team has three letter men, Capt. George Bain, 155; Meyer Koteen, 115, and Jim Trout, 145, for the Cadets, and Lyman McAboy, 155; Stewart McCall, 175, and Harry Carroll, 125, for Maryland.

Representing Maryland otnight will be Joe Harris, 115; Harry Carroll, 125; Dick Babcock, 135; Johnny Evans, 145; Lyman McAboy, 155; Frnak Hawkins, 165; Stewart McCall, 175, and Carl Stalford, heavyweight.

St. Alban's Is Winner In Extra Period, 29-28

St. Alban's nosed out Woodward School, 29-28, yesterday, in a thrilling court battle decided only after an extra five-minute period. The teams finished the regulation game deadlocked at 23-23, though the eventual winners boasted a 15-12 margin at the half.

Adams and Bowie contributed the winning points, though Jones, with a brace of pot shots, just failed of tying up the issue again.

Ossie Bluege First Nat to Sign for '34

First in the fold for 1934 is Tihrd Baseman Ossie Bluege, who signed his contract with the Washington Club yesterday and brought it in person to Griffith Stadium.

No debate attended the signing of Bluege, who proffered the contract a few days ago. Taking refuge in what he says is the Washington Club's policy, President Clark Griffith would not divulge Bluege's 1934 salary or whether the veteran third baseman received a reduction. Bluege is believed to have drawn $8,500 last season.

Shoreham Girl Swimmers Face Penn

Rita Augusterfer, Marie Duval Head Locals Seeking Revenge.

MUSTERED to full strength, the Shoreham girls' swimming team is prepared to withstand tonight, at the Venetian Pool, the onslaught of the Penn Athletic Club team which in December marked up the first victory against the Shorehamites since 1931. Headed by Rita Augusterfer and Marie Duval, the Shoreham roster also will include Lois Bates, Annabelle Whaler, Betty Thompson, Leonora Taube and Betty Kline, among others.

Great interest centers in the 200-yard and 100-yard free style swims, which bring into active competition Florence Peck, captain of the Penn team, and Rita Augusterfer, outstanding free-style swimmer in the District. In the recent Philadelphia meet Miss Augusterfer won the 100-yard event, but lost the 200 to Miss Peck by a tenth of a second.

Lois Bates in Duel.

In the 100-yard back stroke, Lois Bates, holder of the District indoor and outdoor championship for this event, will thresh it out with Dorothy Campbell, Middle Atlantic scintillant, who also holds the District record for this particular swim.

Marie Duval, holder of the District high-board titles, and Miss Bates, who holds the outdoor low-board championship, will dive it out with Connie Renninger, Penn springboard star, and Evelyn Pangborne, a newcomer to Middle Atlantic circles.

The meet is scheduled to start at 8:30 p. m. and admission to the Shoreham's Venetian Pool, scene of the contests, is free.

Grant Beats Shields; To Face Lott

Diminutive Atlanta Star Scores 4-Set Upset in Miami Play.

Lott Gains Finals With Victory Over Sutter, 6-1, 6-8, 6-4, 6-4.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 12 (AP).—Forcing their opponents to defeat themselves by masterful strategy, George M. Lott, jr., of Chicago, defending champion, and Bryan M. Grant, jr., of Atlanta, today battled to the finals in the Miami Biltmore tennis championships.

Frank X. Shields, of New York, the United States No. 1 player, lost to Grant, 6—3, 2—6, 6—1, 6—4, principally because of errors which the crafty Atlantan, thoroughly at home on the clay court, forced the New Yorker to make.

Lott Worn Down.

Cliff Sutter, of New Orleans, ranked fourth by the U. S. L. T. A., earned many points with a sparkling back hand, but Lott wore him down with cross-court forehanders that unsteadied the Louisiana ace and caused him to lose, 6—1, 6—8, 6—4, 6—4.

Lott, who has more clay courts titles than any other amateur now in the game, rushed through the first set, winning five games in a row, but the sixth was a tense battle.

Sutter Loses Lead.

The fourth set found Sutter with a promising lead at 4—2, but with forced errors he lost his own service and Lott evened the score at 4-all. In the ninth game he propelled deep cross-court forehanders past Sutter to win after it had gone to deuce.

In the final game Sutter's backhand betrayed him and he netted 3 points in a row.

"Bitsy" Grant, who humbled the defending champion, Ellsworth Vines, in the last National championship, conquered another 6-footer when he upset Shields.

Makes Long Rallies.

Grant, an indefatigable court coverer and master of the clay game, forced Shields to play his brand of tennis, keeping the ball in play by long rallies until the New Yorker missed.

Shields' base-line game lacked sting. Grant romped through the top-ranker in the third set, not a game going to deuce. At 3—1 he took three games in a row to lead at 4—3.

Grant won the last three games without a break. In the final game, Grant had match point five times before Shields netted the last return.

Navy Five to Oppose Duke Quintet Tonight

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 12 (Spl.).—Holding a victory over Western Maryland College in the season's opener last Saturday, the Navy basket ball team plays its second game here tomorrow afternoon against Duke, which bids fair to be one of the big home contests of the season.

The Blue Devils will invade Annapolis after dropping a thrilling contest to Maryland last night, but with a victory over the West Point Cadets a few days ago. By reason of the latter, the Middies will be on their toes as the battle should serve as a test of relative strength of the rival service quints. The Soldiers and Sailors will meet late in February.

Tenney Seeking Job As Martinsburg Pro

Cumberland, Md., Jan. 12 (Spl.).—Martin D. Tenney, jr., Cumberland's outstanding amateur golfer over a period of six years, who turned professional last season, has made application for the post of professional golfer at Opequon Golf Club, Martinsburg, W. Va.

Tenney visited Martinsburg a few days ago and was taken on a tour of the Opequon Club course. He was informed his application would be considered at a meeting of the board of goverhors of the club next week.

Tenney is 21 years old and started playing golf when he was 14.

Friends Bows, 28-21, To Georgetown Prep

The Georgetown Prep five defeated Friends, 28-21, in a hard-fought basket ball contest at Friends yesterday. Friends led, 7-6, at the end of the first three minutes of play, but the Garrett Parkers jumped into the lead and from then on held a narrow margin.

Scream Wins Tropical Park Feature After Delayed Start to Return $44.70

Victor Beats Ridgeview Length

Moane Keala Runs Well for 6 Furlongs, But Falters at End.

Playful Martha Takes First; General A. Is Nose Winner.

TROPICAL PARK, Jan. 12 (AP). A bad start played a big part in the result of the featured Lantana Purse of 1 mile here today. F. H. Carpenter's Scream, one of the lucky contenders that got away well, and proved a rather easy victor by a length at the long odds of $44.70 for a $2 ticket, running the 8 furlongs in 1:39 2-5. H. H. Battle's Ridgeview, a bad post actor drew most of the play, had to overcome a tardy beginning to gain the place, two lengths before Moane Keala.

Ridgeview and Fleet Flag, the latter a well-backed second choice, caused most of the delay at the post and they both were finally placed outside. Fleet Flag, on the extreme outside, was unprepared for the start and was as good as eliminated right there.

Moane Keala Falters.

Moane Keala had the early foot of the field and for 6 furlongs it appeared as if the elderly mare had the purse at her mercy. However, she faltered when Scream challenged around the final bend and the latter gradually drew into a daylight advantage in the stretch. Ridgeview, meanwhile, had been rushed up to a contending position on the backstretch.

Francis Maschek, the little Louisiana apprentice, who recently won a race here with the second mount of his career, put up a capable ride on the $16.70-for-$2 shot, Playful Martha, which took the opening purse by a length from Cabochon. The latter made up a world of ground to head the long shot, Miss Donovan, for the place after the latter had held a long lead to the stretch. Playful Martha was rated second from the start, but gained command at the eighth pole and drew away. Barkantine again was a disappointment with no excuse.

Bickering Is Victor.

The powerful B. B.-Jacobs-Porter trio clicked again when Bickering, $3.80 favorite, easily asserted his superiority over seven other platers in the 6 furlongs of the second race. Porter pushed Bickering right to the front at the break, and the gelding, smoothly handled, held his field safe all the way. Knight's Hope tired chasing the winner and was beaten a length for the place by The Bailiff.

Davoc, under a strong ride by Apprentice J. Mayer, provided a mild suprise in winning the third by a head over prize package. Texas Tommy, the early leader, faltered and lost the place by a length and a half. Mayer rated Davoc nicely and kept his mount going after getting to the front in the final drive, outfinishing Gilbert on Prize Package. The winner returned $14.30.

General A by a Nose.

One of the closest finishes of the meeting came about in the fourth contest, with General A nosing out Zorana in the last stride. Longford was a distanced third. Zorana, slight favorite over the winner, which was held at 3 to 1, cut out the running, followed by Happy Scot and General A. The latter gradually caught up with Zorana under Coucci's hard urging and the result was in doubt until the official numbers were hoisted.

Bichloride, paying $55.70, added to the discomfiture of form players in the sixth race. Apprentice Ruder lifted him home in a blanket finish, with Trek and Pencader right alongside as named, all heads apart. Pencader and Drusus ran themselves into the ground, while Bichloride was rated close up. He had just enough left to make the grade in the final strides.

By guiding Bub McFarland to a neck victory in the finale, Earl Porter earned a double. Incidentally, the solemn-visaged Illinois lad was up on the only two favorites to score. High Socks beat Come On by a length for the place. Bub McFarland returned $5.40.

Strange as It Seems —By John Hix

For further proof address the author, inclosing a stamped envelope for reply. Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

Strange as it seems, 3,960,000 feet of refrigerating pipe—750 miles of it—will be laid in the concrete of Boulder Dam. The dam itself will be the biggest refrigerator in the world—and once the intricate system of cooling pipes has done its one job of cooling, the pipes will be plugged up forever.

The giant refrigerating system is necessary to hasten the cooling process of the setting concrete so that work can be carried on at top speed. Concrete, such as is used in the dam, develops a temperature of 121 to 130 degrees because of chemical reactions which take place in the mixing and setting. Slow cooling is practical in smaller jobs, but in Boulder Dam, which will be made up of 7,000,000 tons of concrete, it would take 200 years for the concrete to cool off without artificial refrigeration.

The piping is set into the fresh concrete in coils at intervals of 5 feet as the concrete is poured. Through this 750 miles of cooling pipes river water at about 80 degrees will be pumped for a month, bringing the temperature of the concrete down to about 85 degrees. To further cool it, water near freezing will be pumped through the pipes for another period. This will cool the concrete down to 40 degrees.

By this process any cracks which may develop during the setting and cooling can be detected before they are buried under new concrete.

After the 750 miles of pipes have done their work they, too, will be pumped full of concrete—a special mixture—adding that much more strength to the entire structure.

Colors give added realism to strange things and happenings illustrated by John Hix on a full page in The Sunday Post.

Washington-Lee High Adds Boxing, Wrestling to Card

BOXING and wrestling are creeping into the athletic curricula of the high schools. The first scholastic institution in this section to go in for the manly sports of leather-pushing and flying mares is Washington-Lee High School, of Ballston, Va.

For the last six weeks, Coach Edward Frack has been developing the teams in the rudiments of the new sports, starting with a squad of 20 raw but enthusiastic students, which now has been augmented to 35.

The athletic association, through Frack, will issue a challenge shortly to the Washington public high and prep schools.

Most Promising.

Outstanding grapplers now taking part in the daily workouts are Clarence Welch, 145-pound class; Buck Gayne, 165-pound class, and Rolf Hohwer, in the heavyweight division, who also will be a member of the boxing team.

Of the boxers, those with best showings to date in their individual weights are Dick Strickler, 165-pound class; Hyme Scherer, 145-pound class; Jack Beaman, 135-pound class, and the Harris brothers, both performing in the 125-pound class.

The first public demonstration of the boxing and wrestling teams' athletic circus night, will take place on January 23, in the Washington-Lee High School gym. Wrestling matches, boxing bouts, fencing match, a basket ball game between the varsity and faculty team and a rope-climbing contest will be staged simultaneously.

Coach Frack, who is handling the boxers and wrestlers, attended the United States Military Academy and earned his master's degree at Bucknell University last June.

Duke Boxing Team Host to Clemson

Champs of Two Carolinas to Battle Tonight.

Durham, N. C., Jan. 12 (Spl.).—Last year's State champions of the two Carolinas will be brought together when the boxing teams of Duke and Clemson meet in Duke gym tomorrow night at 8;15 o'clock. The Duke frosh and Charlotte High's team will stage a preliminary match beginning at 7 o'clock.

The Tigers were Palmetto State champs last year while Duke won the North Carolina Big Five title. Both have several members of their championship teams back and their match should be one of the best offered in the State this season.

Getting the spotlight for tomorrow night is the welterweight battle between Duke's captain, Leroy Sides, and the pride of the Clemson team, "Chocolate" Fudge. Fudge, an aggressive two-fisted scrapper, will face a real assignment in the Blue Devils' leader, who has been recognized as one of the most scientific boxers in the conference for the past two years.

King College Quintet Is Host to Tusculum

Bristol, Va., Jan. 12 (Spl.).—King College cagemen open their regular season tomorrow night, playing the Tusculum College quintet here. The game will be the first scheduled encounter for the Kingmen, as well as the first Smoky Mountain Conference game of the year.

The game probably will see Con Davis at one forward, Homer Harris or Tony Mazza at the other, Carl "Short" Pettigrew at center, and Capt. Francis Cash and Howard Miller at guards. Pettigrew, who stands six feet, four inches in his bare feet, is one of the tallest players in the Appalachian region.

Kingsport Has Taken 39 of Last 40 Games

Kingsport, Tenn., Jan. 12 (Spl.).—Kingsport high school's basket ball team, by defeating Erwin Tenn., this week, registered its 205th triumph in 13 seasons. During the same period the team has lost but 65 games.

Thirty-nine victories have been scored in the last 40 games played. The team, coached by Leroy Sprankle, but recently returned from a Florida tour, on which it met and defeated a number of the leading high school teams of that State.

West Virginia League To Reorganize Feb. 4

Clarksburg, W. Va., Jan. 12 (Spl.).—Reorganization of the West Virginia State Baseball League is to be effected at the annual winter meeting, which has been called for February 4 here.

Officers will be elected and a schedule adopted provided all the league franchises are taken up by that time. Weston, Pensboro, Clarksburg and Fairmont, all in the league last year, are expected to enter teams this year. Weston won the championship last season after taking the second half and winning the playoff from Clarksburg.

Sponsorship of the Weston, Pennsboro, Salem and Elkins Clubs is as yet indefinite.

Red Lucas Under Knife.

Nashville, Tenn., Jan. 12 (AP).—Charles (Red) Lucas, ace of the Cincinnati mound staff, who was traded to the Pittsburgh Pirates, today underwent an operation for removal of his tonsils. Lucas has telegraphed the Pittsburgh Club officials that he will accept terms offered in his contract for the 1934 season.

Gallaudet Lists 7 Grid Foes For 1934

Another Opponent Sought; Only Three Men Lost by Graduation.

GALLAUDET'S 1934 football team will play seven games, five of them away from home, it was announced yesterday. Coach Teddy Hughes is negotiating for an eighth game to be played October 6, when the Blues will open their season.

Washington College, Loyola of Baltimore, American U., and Randolph-Macon are the outstanding opponents listed. Shepherd, with whom Gallaudet usually closes its season; Upsula, and St. John's of Annapolis, all of whom the Kendall Greeners met last season, have been dropped from the schedule.

'33 Season Disastrous.

Gallaudet's 1933 season was one of the most disastrous in its history. It lost five games, but came through with a smashing 35-0 triumph over American U. in the last part of the campaign, partially atoning for its poor showing. Next year's squad should be much stronger as only three men, Heimo Antila, Speed Brown and Bob Baughman, will be lost by graduation.

The schedule follows:

October 6, open; 13, Washington College, away; 20, Bridgewater, away; 27, Loyola College, away.
November 3, American U., away; 9, Apprentice School*, away; 17, Randolph-Macon, home; 24, Shenandoah, home.
*Denotes night game.

Girls' Team Elects.

Cumberland, Md., Jan. 12 (Spl.). At a meeting and banquet of the Central Y. M. C. A. business girls' basket ball team, Miss Beatrice "Bee" Ritter was elected captain for the 1934 season. Others elected were Eleanor Andrews, assistant captain; Margaret Sullivan, business manager; Emily Lapp, treasurer, and Elizabeth Hoover, publicity agent.

Virginia Boxers Defy Jinxes; Face Harvard, Seek 13th Win

Virginia Tech Ringmen Oppose Tarheels; V. M. I. Mittmen Clash With Maryland; W. & L.-N. C. U. in Basket Ball Feature.

UNIVERSITY, Va., Jan. 12 (AP). Defying all the jinxes, the University of Virginia boxers open their thirteenth boxing season against Harvard tomorrow night, seeking their thirteenth victory without a defeat on the thirteenth day of January.

Boxing, a comparative newcomer to Virginia collegiate sports, will steal the sports show in the Old Dominion, despite an impressive basket ball card that lists six games on Virginia courts, two of them Southern Conference battles.

The Cavaliers, facing their toughest task in many a moon, will attempt to show that three experienced men and five newcomers have learned enough boxing from Coach Johnny Larowe to make a threat of holding the Southern Conference championship for four years in a row.

Coached by Lamar.

Harvard's Crimson ringmen, five of them veterans, are coached by Henry Lamar, a former Virginia boxer and pupil of Larowe. They demonstrated their ability the other day by whipping Boston Tech, 7 to 1.

Capt. Marshall Lamb, one of the Crimson aces, will be matched with Gordon Rainey, runner-up in last year's Southern Conference tournament, in the featherweight scrap. Bradford Simmons, Harvard heavy, who has not been defeated in three years of boxing, is expected to score for the visitors.

Rainey, Capt. Harold Stuart in the middleweight class, and Archie Hahn, conference bantamweight champion, are the veterans of the university team that will uphold one of the finest records ever compiled by any athletic team in the Old Dominion. Since losing to Duke in 1930 the Cavalier boxers have lost no dual engagements while winning 12 and tying 1.

While Virginia is attempting its tremendous task, Virginia Tech's ring men, pronounced underdogs, will be down at Chapel Hill battling the University of North Carolina mittmen. The Gobblers, envisioning a successful season with a wealth of material expected, saw their hopes break when injuries and absences from college all but wrecked the team.

V. M. I.'s mittmen, under the tutelage of 24-year-old Al Martin, will take on Maryland's team, with the Cadets favored to start their season auspiciously against the visiting Old Liners.

W. and L. Meets Tarheels.

The basket ball headliner will pit Washington and Lee's ambitious quintet against the North Carolina University team, with a nip-and-tuck battle forecast. Coach Cy Young's brigade demonstrated its prowess by whipping a smart University of Virginia quint.

Other basket ball games will match Virginia Tech at Blacksburg against the powerful Maryland team that whipped Duke; William and Mary against Roanoke at Williamsburg; Hampden-Sydney against Bridgewater at Hampden-Sydney; Lynchburg against the Medical College at Lynchburg, and Randolph-Macon against Galluadet at Ashland.

V. M. I. and Davidson will wrestle at Lexington, and Washington and Lee swimmers will meet the William and Mary tankmen at Williamsburg to add variety to the week-end program.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PLAYFUL MARTHA, $16.70, $8.80, $6.30; CABOCHON, $7.70, $4.70; MISS DONOVAN, $15.60.

PLAYFUL MARTHA got away well, was rated along in second place to the middle of the upper turn, then shot to the front and, drawing away, held on gamely. CABOCHON ran a winning race from where he got off. He broke last and, in a tangle, went up very fast, came to the inside in stretch and finished with a rush. MISS DONOVAN opened a wide lead going into first turn, but tired suddenly in final furlong. CUSTOMER was interfered with in early running, closed gamely in stretch. BARKANTINE broke running, but could not hold his position and stopped badly. PATRICE RUNYON is very much overrated. She had no excuse.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:32. Off at 2:33½. Winner, B. B. Stable's br. g. (3), by Masked Marvel II—Virginia B. Trained by H. Jacobson. Value to winner, $360; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $15. Time, 1:11 3-5.

RIPLEAN	109	8	4	6½	8	8	8	Stout	26.00

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BICKERING, $3.80, $2.80, $2.20; THE BAILIFF, $4.30, 2.90; KNIGHT'S HOPE, $2.60.

BICKERING broke very fast, was sent to the front and, nicely rated along to stretch, drew out and won in hand. THE BAILIFF was a bit slow in breaking, but went up very fast, came to the outside in stretch and finished with a rush. KNIGHT'S HOPE, well up from the start, had no excuse. MIXED PARTY was outrun in early part, finished very fast and should improve over this effort. BERNIE K. displayed good speed for half a mile, then tired. FORCEFUL was well up in early running.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:01½. Off at 3:02. Winner, Everglade Stable's b. c. (3), by Monk's Way—Azurita. Trained by S. W. Ward. Value to winner, $360; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $15. Time, 1:12.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DAVOC, $14.30, $7.50, $3.90; PRIZE PACKAGE, $5.30, $3.20; TEXAS TOMMY, $2.60.

DAVOC got away well, followed pace to the top of the turn, where he ran into lead, drew away, but tired and just lasted to win. PRIZE PACKAGE was probably best, but was weakly handled. He closed with good courage on the outside. TEXAS TOMMY ran into a long lead, but tired fast in the final furlong. EVEN PLAY, slow to get going, finished very fast. BRAMBLE BROOM had speed for three furlongs, then dropped back.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward, Start good. Won driving; place, easily. Went to post at 3:31½. Off at 3:31½. Winner, J. Kelley's br. g. Stocks Yield On Drive of Profit-Taking Low-Priced Issues Gain in Trading; Sales Drop to 1,615,370 Shares.

New York, Jan. 12 (AP).—Low-priced shares did rather well on the whole, but profit-taking and other offerings bore down a bit on the so-called leaders and the result was a fractional net decline for the averages.

Gains for Treasury securities about duplicated yesterday's recovery, but did not restore values that existed prior to the recent decline.

Financial quarters were naturally interested in the widely publicized intimations of pending monetary developments at Washington.

Gold Recapture News.

During market hours nothing definite was heard along this line, though Washington dispatches told of the consideration being given to recapture of gold held by the Federal Reserve banks, preliminary to or accompanying dollar devaluation.

Later it was learned that the President believed the gold could be acquired for the Treasury by Executive order, although no decision as to the time for such a step had been reached.

In stocks, considerable attention was paid to amusement issues, Paramount certificates and Fox rising a point. Chain Store preferred issues also rallied, in many instances, while a number of ordinarily inactive issues traded with fair briskness at higher levels. These included Warren Brothers, American Writing Paper, Snider Packing, Schulte, Electric Boat, Foundation Co. and Brown Shoe, gains ranging from fractions to around 2 points.

Easiness Among Favorites.

Some easiness cropped out among favorites which usually do the leading. This was especially true in the final dealings which saw United States Steel, American Telephone, New York Central, Du Pont, General Motors, Westinghouse, Consolidated Gas, Corn Proucts, United Aircraft and Santa Fe sag for net losses of fractions to approximately a point.

Chrysler, again under pressure, lost 2. On the other hand, metals improved, United States Smelting rising 2 and American Smelting 1. Farm implements also finished steady to firm. Volume was slightly reduced from Thursday at 1,615,370 shares.

Many in Wall street continued to regard dollar devaluation as something that would not be immediately attempted, especially since there has been no indication that international stabilization efforts seemed practicable at this time.

Value in Gold.

The dollar's indicated gold value in terms of the French franc has hovered in the neighborhood of 63 or 64 cents for some time, which represents the greatest degree of stability yet attained.

Conjecture is heard from time to time as to whether the gold purchase policy is to be altered or even laid aside.

Trade news included word that freight traffic last week had risen 10.9 per cent from the Christmas period and nearly 14 per cent above a year ago, the later rise being a bit more than seasonal. The increased movement of freight is viewed as one of the most encouraging sign posts of business recovery. Weekly mercantile summaries said retail and wholesale trade were still gaining.

Robey's Review

Assumption That Devaluation of Our Currency Would Mean Stabilization Is Wrong—Two Actions May Be Kept Entirely Separate.

By Ralph West Robey.

For some days the news dispatches have been using "devaluation" and "stabilization" in connection with our monetary policy as though the two terms were synonymous. In other words they have reflected an assumption, or so it has seemed to me, that should there be devaluation to, say 60 cents, this would mean a stabilization of our currency. The two actions as a matter of fact, however, do not necessarily have any such relationship. It would be quite possible, aside from legal difficulties, to have a 40 cent devaluation of the dollar and still be just as far removed from a stabilization of our currency as we are today.

This confusion in the newspaper accounts probably is the result of the fact that—I think I am right in this—in every earlier case in history official devaluation and stabilization have been simultaneous. This has been true because the question at issue in each instance was to determine the point at which the currency could be stabilized. Once this was determined, devaluation was automatic—the mere result of the country returning to the gold, or some other—fixed, monetary standard.

Suspension of Gold Has Led to Currency Depreciation.

More specifically, what has happened in earlier instances is that for one reason or another a country found it necessary to suspend convertibility of its currency into, say, gold. Following this, granting that the suspension was justified because of pressure on the monetary system, the currency would go to a discount. The extent of the depreciation rested followed within the country in upon the kind of financial policies question and the consequent relation of its price level to that of the rest of the world. Ultimately, in every case before the present depression, however, it has been decided that the country should return to a fixed standard.

At this point the Government would step in and fix a new value for the currency. It would do this by declaring that henceforth each unit of currency would be worth so many grains of gold. To make this declaration effective—and it is the only way that such a declaration can be made effective—it would agree to restore the convertibility of the currency into gold at this new rate. It is this convertibility that constitutes stabilization. The term means, then, a restoration of a fixed standard. Devaluation is simply the official writing-down of the gold content.

Devaluation Merely Sets An Official Gold Value.

Now, obviously, there may be—granting a Government wants to do such a thing — devaluation without stabilization. The Administration, for example, might say that henceforth the gold content of the dollar will be only 15 grains of gold as against the 23.22 now provided by statute. The mere fact that it did this, however, would not mean that it has to restore convertibility of our currency into gold at this new rate. Rather, all that it would mean is an assurance, and even this would not be binding, that once convertibility is restored it will be at a rate of not more than 15 grains to the dollar.

It follows, therefore, that the Administration might make such a devaluation and then go ahead with policies which would depreciate our dollar still further. Later there could be another devaluation. And then still another, &c. Such an action, in other words, would have no necessary relation whatever to a stabilization of our currency. It merely would give formal notice of the value which the Administration wants to place on our gold stock as a basis of currency issue—or more accurately as a basis for what actually would be "greenbacks" being issued and described as "gold certificates."

Goods Market.

New York, Jan. 12 (A.P.).—Buying continues active in primary textile markets. Gray goods in the cotton division are being bought more generally at the new high prices. Wash fabrics are more active. In the wool goods division dress fabrics are in good call, and a fair amount of new spring business is coming in on men's wear. Much of the buying is in the lower-priced ranges. Burlap markets are steady. Considerable shipment business has been done this month. Silk prints are active. Novelty and staple rayon fabrics are being ordered more freely from mills.

Foreign Markets.

London, Jan. 12 (A.P.).—Although the undertone was good, recessions occurred in British issues and other active favorites owing to profit taking and slackened demand. Home rails and Kaffirs recovered later. The market closed steady.

Paris—Trading on the bourse was hesitant awaiting the results of the Stavisky debate in Parliament. Rentes were slightly lower, but otherwise prices were fairly resistant. The closing was irregular.

Berlin—Cessation of activity in the bond section caused general dullness on the boerse. Despite a momentary spurt in the afternoon, prices closed weaker.

Federal Bonds Lead Market In Advances

Rails and Utilities Aid List; Sales Total $18,160,000.

New York, Jan. 12 (AP).—U. S. Government securities, together with various rails and utilities, again moved up in today's bond market as new reports of imminent currency revaluation apparently found credence among traders and investors.

Sales totaled $18,160,000, par value, of which only about $2,200,000 was accounted for by the Federals.

The average for 60 domestic corporate loans pushed ahead one-half point.

News on Dollar.

Advices from Washington that Attorney General Cummings had submitted an opinion to the President on the legality of impounding some $3,600,000,000 in gold held by the Federal Reserve system indicated to bond circles that a formal reduction of the dollar's gold content was apparently being considered.

Recoveries in the Federal list ranged from 3-32ds to 27-32ds with the widest gains being recorded by the Treasuries.

Only the Liberty first 4¼s and the called fourth 4¼s were slightly lower.

On Advancing List.

Among the more active rails, with advances of 1 to 2 or more points, were some liens of Alleghany Corporation, Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake & Ohio, Burlington, St. Paul, Chicago & North Western, Rock Island, K. C. Southern, Missouri Pacific, N. Y. Central, Nickel Plate, Northern Pacific, Pennsylvania, Southern Pacific and Frisco.

The best utilities, up 1 to more than 3, included bonds of American Waterworks, Consolidated Gas, Denver Gas, Milwaukee Electric, New Orleans Public Service, North American, North American Edison, Philadelphia Co., Tennessee Electric Power and Utilities Power & Light. Issues of Warner Bros., Paramount, United Drug, Richfield Oil and American Smelting were among the firmer industrials.

Foreign obligations were mixed. Loans of Brazil and Finland were up 1 to 3, but similar losses were suffered by the German group.

Kent Quits Reserve Exchange Division

New York, Jan. 12 (AP).—Resignation of Fred I. Kent as head of the special foreign exchange division of the New York Federal Reserve Bank was announced today. It is effective January 15.

Mr. Kent has been known as the foreign exchange "czar," inasmuch as he has had control of dealings in foreign currencies since the banking holiday.

The bank's announcement said that he undertook this work for a temporary period last March "because of the emergency then existing" and that he had now asked to be relieved of his duties "since the work of the foreign exchange division is now organized so as not to require the continuation of his services and since he desired to devote his entire time to his other activities."

Mr. Kent, a dircetor of the Bankers' Trust Co. and former acting chancellor of New York University, held a similar foreign exchange position during the World War.

Auto Supply Declares Extra $1 Dividends

Alabama Great Southern Road Votes Regular $1.50 on Preferred.

New York, Jan. 12 (AP).—Western Auto Supply Co. today declared extra dividends of $1 each on the Class A and B common stocks, payable February 1 to holdings of record January 19.

Alabama Great Southern Railroad, controlled by Southern Railway, today declared a regular semi-annual dividend of $1.50 on the preferred stock, payable February 27 to holdings of record January 22.

A dividend of 12½ cents in $5 convertible preferred stock on the common shares of Columbia Gas & Electric Corporation was ordered by the directors today. A similar dividend was declared three months ago. It is payable February 15 to stock of record January 20.

The company reported a slight increase in gross earnings during the past several months, but said the gain "has been more than offset by increased taxes and operating expenses."

"The result has been a continuing decline in net earnings which is now further aggravated by the recent actions in some municipalities in Ohio attempting to establish drastically reduced rates for electricity and in some cases for natural gas."

The dividend declared today, the company stated, "should not be regarded as establishing a basis for future dividends, which must be determined by future conditions."

Berryville, Va., Jan. 12 (Spl.).—The Clarke County Credit Co., Inc., of Berryville, has declared semiannual dividends of 3 per cent on common stock and 3½ per cent on preferred stock, payable on February 1 on shares of record January 20.

A similar dividend was paid August 1, making the annual dividend on preferred stock 7 per cent and common 6 per cent. The annual meeting of stockholders of the company Saturday, February 3.

Power Production Gains 9.7 Per Cent

New York, Jan. 12 (AP).—An increase of 9.7 per cent in electric power output last week over the same period last year established the sharpest gain since the week of September 30. Both periods included the New Year holiday. The figures have shown increasing gains over the previous year since the week of December 16, when output was only 5.2 per cent ahead. There was also a moderate upturn as compared with the previous week, which included the Christmas holiday.

The outturn, as reported by the Edison Electric Institute, amounted to 1,563,678,000 kilowatt hours, against 1,539,002,000 in the preceding week and 1,425,639,000 in the same week last year.

In the New England district the output was up 8.7 per cent, against a like increase in the previous week; Middle Atlantic was up 11.3 per cent, against 6.2 per cent; Central industrial, up 13, against 14.3; West Central, up 9.3, against 4.3; Southern States, up 1.3, against a decrease of 3.7; Rocky Mountain, up 19.1, against 19.5; Pacific Coast, up 3.4, against 8.6.

Coffee Prices Rise In Past Six Weeks

New York, Jan. 12.—For the first time since the fall of 1932, Santos 4s in the New York spot market crossed above the 10-cent mark. At that time, as the result of the civil war in Brazil, which closed the port of Santos, prices went as high as 16 cents.

Coffee values have been advancing steadily for six weeks and the announcement last night that the Grain Stabilization Corporation had rejected all bids for the 62,500 bags of Santos coffee put up for sale was bullishly construed by the trade. Yesterday's proposed sale was the first since October 3, as the sales scheduled for November and December were not held. New York spot prices for coffee rose one-fourth to three-eighth cents overnight. Santos 4s were quoted at 10 to 10⅛ cents this morning.

In the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange futures market, "September Santos" sold on the opening at 10 cents even. On December 1, 1933, the same delivery month sold at 9 cents, a gain of 100 points, or 1 cent, in little more than a month.

Glidden Sales Increase.

Cleveland, Jan. 12 (AP).—Sales of the Glidden Co. in November and December, the first two months of its fiscal year, were 35.5 per cent above those for the same two months of 1932. Total sales aggregated $3,954,705 as compared with $1,916,931.

Curb Advance Slows Up on Profit Taking

Utilities Record Gains as Total Sales Drop to 298,000 Shares.

New York, Jan. 12 (AP).—Profit-taking slowed the general rise on the curb market today. Many of the utilities, however, continued to forge higher despite the realizing, while a few wide gains were also marked up by industrial specialities.

Among the later group, Safety Car Heating was the star performer with a rise of 10 points net. Novadel Agene was another strong spot, gaining nearly 4.

Electric Bond & Share eased slightly among the power shares but American Gas & Electric, Consolidated Gas of Baltimore and Georgia Power Preferred gained a point or so. Commonwealth Edison added 3 points to recent advances.

Recessions of fractions to around a point occurred in alcohols and oils, while metals were somewhat mixed. Bunker Hill & Sullivan firmed 2 but Newmont and Lake Shore were a trifle easy. A. O. Smith, Humble Oil, Distillers Corporation-Seagrams and Hiram Walker lost a point each. Swift International was firm.

Transfers approximated 298,000 shares compared with 358,000 for Thursday.

Gold Output Aids Recovery In South Africa

The famous gold mines of the Rand may be the means of leading the Union of South Africa back to a more prosperous position, according to a report to the Commerce Department from Trade Commissioner E. B. Lawson, Johannesburg.

The prosperity of the gold mines at the present time, the report states, is of course due to conditions over which the country has no control, but for the moment the world's greatest gold producer is in a favored position and has taken advantage of almost one year's favorable conditions.

The year 1933 was one of record gold production, it is pointed out. Average tonnage milled per month during that period amounted to 2,994,230 tons as compared with 2,872,330 tons in 1932. Total working profit of the mining groups during the nine months ended September, 1933, was 122,549,236, compared with 110,889,736 for the corresponding period of 1932.

The more profitable conditions now existing as a result of the increased price of gold have resulted in the revival of old properties which have lain dormant for years and operations are now being carried out in many cases on a scale larger than at any previous time. Furthermore, established mines are re-working and marking off large reserves of hitherto little considered grades of ore. Nonproducing mines have entered the field of producing and dividend-paying organizations.

The most encouraging development of 1933, according to the report, was the extension of the life of the gold mines, resulting from the changed conditions, and the adoption of new policies such as the reduction of milling grade, the development of new areas, and the establishment of greater reserves.

While it is not possible to state definitely the effect the increased price of gold may have on the life of the mines, as long as there is any appreciable premium received for gold, it will add to their normal life.

Summing up the present status of the gold mining industry in South Africa, Trade Commissioner Lawson declares that the increased activity of the mines and their added profits have been directly and indirectly reflected in the improved economic life of the country. The larger amounts distributed as dividends at the end of the first half of 1933 placed more money in circulation, stimulated business and assisted greatly in the restoration of confidence in the buying public. It is difficult, he concludes, to overestimate the influence of the gold mines, the dependence which the union places on them, and their importance in the economic recovery of South Africa.

Advances	310	414
Declines	281	160
Unchanged	136	160
Total issues	727	734

Stocks — Low-priced issues did well but profit taking drove the list down. Losses averaged nine-tenths of a point. Talk of dollar developments was a feature on the exchange. Sales declined in volume to 1,615,370 shares.

Wheat—Reports that dollar devaluation would soon be an accomplished fact and talk of the possible Japanese trouble caused wheat prices to begin a new climb. Some traders ignored the Japanese rumors. All grains advanced. May wheat sold at 86⅞; July, at 85⅛.

Bonds—Federal loans with various rails and utilities moved up the bond market. Gains averaged ½ point. Sales totaled $18,160,000.

Curb—Profit taking slowed down the curb's advance, but utilities and industrials marked up gains. Sales volume decreased to 298,000 shares.

Cotton—Cotton declined in early trading and then rallied, but lost again under liquidation and scattered selling. March closed at 10.78. The general market declined 10 to 12 points. January sold at 10.72.

Rubber—Crude rubber futures closed steady, 5 points lower to 2 points higher. January sold at 8.86; March, at 9.04.

Sugar—Raw sugar declined 1 point and sold at 3.16; refined was unchanged at 4.30.

Coffee—Spot coffee demand was steady. Santos No. 4 sold at 10; Rio No. 7 at 9.

Silver—Bar silver was firm. It sold in New York ⅝ higher, at 44⅞ cents per ounce.

Gold—Bar gold in the United States was unchanged and stood at $34.06 per ounce. In London it sold at 127 shillings and 2 pence.

Dollar—The United States dollar declined slightly on foreign exchanges. It stood in New York, with reference to other currencies, $5.08½ to the English pound; 6.12½ cents to the French franc, and 37.17 cents to the German mark.

Wheat Starts New Climb on Dollar Outlook

Talk of Japanese Trouble Also Cited as Aid; All Grains Up.

Chicago, Jan. 12 (AP).—Reports that dollar devaluation would soon be an accomplished fact went hand in hand today with talk of possible trouble between this country and Japan. Largely as a result, wheat scored a maximum upturn of about 2 cents a bushel, to the highest point reached since December 12.

The two chief causes given for a rise of the wheat market were entirely independent of each other except as to price results.

Devaluing of the dollar was looked for on account of reported apparent likelihood of an impending official statement as to United States financial policy, whereas supposed chances of friction with Japan were associated with bellicose statements ascribed to a Japanese admiral regarding the naval situation in the Pacific.

Wheat Closes Firm.

Wheat closed firm at some reaction from the day's top, 1⅜ to 1⅝ above yesterday's finish; corn, unchanged to ¼ higher; oats, ⅜ to ½ up, and provisions varying from 05 cents decline to a rise of 12 cents.

Contributing to enlarged purchases of wheat and to the upward momentum of prices was the fact that National adoption of a grain exchange code which has long been hanging fire was today expected shortly.

Upturns of wheat were in the face of assertions by some trade authorities that any talk of a war possibility involving the United States should be considered bearish rather than bullish. The reason advanced was that such a contingency meant likelihood of enemy efforts to close United States ports.

Views of Japanese Issue.

Numerous wheat traders were apparently disinclined to emphasize as a market influence the Japanese admiral's reported expressions, and were more disposed to stress persistent absence of moisture in wheat territory Southwest, as well as continued scantiness of wheat arrivals at domestic primary centers.

Much notice was taken of an estimate by a Chicago trade authority that the world carry-over of wheat on July 1 next would be 520,000,000 bushels compared with 747,000,000 the corresponding time last year. For the United States, the carry-over was estimated at 185,000,000 bushels—200,000,000 less than last year.

Corn and oats made only a laggard response to wheat strength. Spread traders were reported selling corn against purchases of wheat.

Provisions averaged higher with hog values and with grains.

Wool Prices Firm; Market Remains Dull

Boston, Jan. 12 (AP).—The Commercial Bulletin of Boston will say tomorrow:

"The wool market continues dull but under the influence of a low stock of wool and steadily rising prices abroad, prices here are distinctly firm and, if anything, against the buyer.

"Reports from the piece goods centers are of a slow demand still, although the outlook for the future is considered promising. January retail clothing sales at reduced prices suggested less buying on the part of the consuming public than had been expected.

"Foreign markets are distinctly stronger for the week, Australia showing a 5 to 10 per cent rise over the preceding week, and other markets being more or less in line. Some recession in prices at Sydney at the week-end indicates a tendency to go too far in the advance.

"Mohair still is slow but prices are firm."

The Commercial Bulletin will publish the following quotations:

Freight Loads Increased by 49,317 Cars

Week's Shipments Rise to 499,939 Units; All Areas Gain.

Loading of revenue freight for the week ended on January 6 totaled 499,939 cars, the Car Service Division of the American Railway Association announced today.

This was an increase of 49,317 cars above the preceding week and 60,470 cars above the same week in 1933, but a dcerease of 71,739 cars below the corresponding week in 1932. In making comparisons, however, consideration should be given to the fact that the week of January 6 this year and the corresponding week in 1933 contained New Year's holiday, while the corresponding week in 1932 did not. The week of January 6, this year, was, however, a reduction of 2,788 under the week that did include New Year's holiday in 1932.

Miscellaneous freight loading for the week of January 6 totaled 170,851 cars, an increase of 11,754 cars above the preceding week, and 28,713 cars above the corresponding week in 1933. It was, however, a reduction of 13,352 cars below the corresponding week in 1932.

Merchandise Less.

Loading of merchandise less than carload lot freight totaled 134,367 cars, an increase of 10,006 cars above the preceding week and 711 cars above the corresponding week in 1933, but 49,103 cars below the same week in 1932.

Grain and grain products loading for the week totaled 23,389 cars, an increase og 3,064 cars above the preceding week, but 810 cars below the corresponding week in 1933, and 4,103 cars below the same week in 1932. In the Western Districts alone, grain and grain products loading for the week ended January 6 totaled 14,976 cars, a decrease of 84 cars below the same week in 1933.

Forest products loading totaled 14,878 cars, an increase of 3,183 cars above the preceding week and 2,465 cars above the same week in 1933, but a decrease of 1,943 cars below the same week in 1932.

Ore Loads Increase.

Ore loading amounted to 2,826 cars, an increase of 748 cars above the preceding week, and 1,587 cars above the corresponding week in 1933, but a reduction of 368 cars under the corresponding week in 1932.

Coal loading amounted to 130,373 cars, an increase of 16,089 cars above the preceding week, 25,684 cars above the corresponding week in 1933, and 4,446 cars above the same week in 1932.

Coke loading amounted to 7,627 cars, an increase of 527 cars above the preceding week, 2,245 cars above the same week in 1933, and 1,622 cars above the same week in 1932.

Live Stock Loadings.

Live stock loading amounted to 15,628 cars, an increase of 3,946 cars above the preceding week, but 125 cars below the same week in 1933, and 8,938 cars below the same week in 1932. In the Western districts alone, loading of live stock for the week ended January 6 totaled 11,884 cars, a decrease of 126 cars, compared with the same week in 1933.

All districts reported increases for the week of January 6, compared with the corresponding week in 1933, but all districts reported reduction compared with the corresponding week in 1932, except the Pocahontas.

Loading of revenue freight in 1934, compared with the two previous years, follows:

Germany Plans To Revive Its Foreign Trade

That the German government intends to use every means possible to reestablish Germany's formerly prosperous export trade is revealed in a report from Vice Consul C. W. Gray, Berlin, made public by the Commerce Department.

The newly-created foreign trade council will endeavor to promote Germany's interests in foreign markets. The support of the government will be embodied in treaties, laws, ordinances and administrative measures.

The decline in Germany's export trade is strikingly shown by the fact that in 1930 about 2,750,000 German workers were actively engaged in export activities while at the beginning of 1933 only 1,750,000 were thus employed. Germany's total foreign trade, including exports and imports, dropped from the peak of 27 billion reichsmarks in 1929 to approximately 9 billion in 1933.

During the 11 months ended November, 1933, German exports were valued at 4,447.6 million reichsmarks, which was 15 per cent less than the corresponding figure for 1932. In only five of the 11 months of 1933 did exports exceed 400 million reichsmarks, in contrast to monthly averages of 478 million reichsmarks in 1932 and 800 million reichsmarks in 1931.

German export trade, the report points out, has failed to keep pace with domestic recovery or with the improvement in international foreign trade. During the nine months ended September, 1933, the volume of world exports increased by 1 per cent as compared with the corresponding period of 1932 while the volume of Germany's exports declined by more than 7 per cent.

(Reichsmarks equals 23.82 cents mint par.)

Trade Improvement Seen.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 12 (AP).—Optimism of recent business conditions was expressed by Adolph Zukor, film executive, who passed through Chicago en route to the West Coast for his annual conference with the production staff of Paramount-Publix. "There has been a definite upturn of late, and the outlook for 1934 indicates it will be the best business year since 1929.

CWA Officials In West Virginia Gather Monday

State Approves Projects to Employ 480 Men; New Water System.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Jan. 12 (Spl.).—The two-day State meeting of CWA officials and relief administrators scheduled to open here Monday has been split into two divisions. One will be held at Charleston for the southern part of the State. The other will be here as planned.

The split was ordered by Maj. Francis W. Turner, State relief administrator, to save traveling expenses.

Nine additional projects involving loans and grants of $414,00 and providing employment for 480 men for several months have been forwarded to the PWA in Washington by the State advisory board on public works. They are as follows:

Ohio County, tuberculosis sanitarium, $15,000 on a total cost of $60,000, the difference to be made up from local funds; jobs for 30 men for six months.

State road commission, Matewan bridge, $135,000; jobs for 66 men for six months.

Kermit, Mingo County, waterworks, $62,500; jobs for 83 men for four months.

Winfield, Putnam County, waterworks, $25,000; jobs for 34 men for three months.

Littleton, Wetzel County, waterworks, $36,000; jobs for 40 men for four months.

West Union, Doddridge County, waterworks, $13,400; jobs for 25 men for three months.

Pine Grove, Wetzel County, waterworks, $22,000; jobs for 36 men for six months.

Cairo, Ritchie County, waterworks, $8,000; jobs for 42 men for one month.

Morgan County sewerage system, $68,000; jobs for 100 men for five months.

These applications with 53 previously sent to Washington bring the total funds requested for West Virginia up to $12,495,226.

Water System Planned.

Parsons, W. Va., Jan. 12 (Spl.).—The city council has approved the proposition for a new water system by utilizing the Big Springs cave above Hambleton.

The city's supply is now pumped from Shavers Fork River. The council will approve the $81,000 allotted by the PWA. Approximately $20,000 is a grant, the remainder a loan. To create a sinking fund to retire the bonds when due, water rates will be increased 50 per cent, beginning April 1.

The project, to begin shortly, will employ 75 to 100 men for nearly six months. A concrete dam will be built to impound the water of Elk Lick Run, and a 600,000-gallon storage tank will be erected on Fork Mountain.

140 Women Busy Sewing.

Fairmont, W. Va., Jan. 12 (Spl.). The Red Cross and community CWA sewing project is giving work to 140 women, according to Mrs. Bess Pitzer, supervisor of the project. Garments made are distributed to needy families.

Mrs. Hazel Hoffman, supervisor of the sewing room, reports 1,216 garments and 66 quilts have been completed. There are 87 quilts now ready for quilting. The scraps from the garments' material are fashioned into quilt patterns.

Fairmont City Library project has been approved and will supply work for four persons. This will be a boon to the library, which has had a severe struggle because of lack of money.

The bedside nursing project for Marion County includes 11 skilled nurses, a supervisor, and two clerks. The work will begin soon.

Airport Plan Approved.

Elkins, W. Va., Jan. 12 (Spl.). The Elkins airport as a CWA project. Revised plans call for expenditure of $33,206 instead of $55,000 originally asked. Of this, $23,765 will be spent for labor, and $5,941 for materials. The remaining $3,500 is for rental for five years.

The grading, draining, and marking of the airport, formerly known as Harper's Flying Field, will employ 175 men.

Bank Authorized For Smithsburg

It Will Replace Defunct People's Company.

Baltimore, Jan. 12 (AP).—State Bank Commissioner Ghingher today approved creation of the First State Bank of Smithsburg as a substitute for the defunct People's Banking Co.

The new bank will have $50,000 capital and a $10,000 surplus, with the Washington County Liquidating Corporation, creation of which Ghingher also approved, owning all shares except those necessary to qualify directors.

With the founding of the bank the depositors of the old People's Banking Co., formerly a branch of the closed Central Trust Co. of Maryland, will receive a dividend of approximately 5 per cent. Except where the dividend is very small, this will be paid as a checkable deposit in the new bank.

U. S. to Sell Crop For Loan Default

First in Berkeley County Set for Jan. 17.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Jan. 12 (Spl.). The first execution of a crop sales agreement by the Government in Berkeley County is that set for January 17, on the farm of Alexander E. Mason, at Ganotown.

Announcement of the public sale was made today through George M. Slifer, jr., field supervisor, for the Farm Credit Administration, who said the sale would be made pursuant to a sales agreement made March 29, 1933, by Mason. Sufficient crops will be sold to satisfy the mortgage.

Supervisor Silfer also said crops of other delinquent borrowers may be sold at public or private sale with or without notice to satisfy the crop lien.

H. A. Bachman, 74, Dies in Cumberland

City and County Leader Expires in His Sleep.

Cumberland, Md., Jan. 12 (Spl.). Henry A. Bachman, 74, former president of the Cumberland City Council, in which he served three terms as a Republican, and a member of the board of the County Commissioners for 21 years, having presided for 17, died in his sleep early today. He had been at his office yesterday.

In early life Mr. Bachman was a cabinetmaker. He entered politics and banking, having been an organizer and director of the old German Savings Bank and the People's Bank. He was honored with the 50-year pin by the Masons. A son Karl D. Bachman, survives.

Marshal Beaten; Three Men Sought

Officers Resisted After Seizure of Auto.

Warrants charging three men with attacking Deputy United States Marshal Herbert C. Akers were issued last night following an altercation near 2500 K street northwest.

The marshal, Herbert C. Akers, in company with M. M. Moore, also a marshal, went to an address on K street to seize an automobile. They had obtained the car and were about to drive it away when the trio jumped on Akers and beat him with an automobile jack handle.

Who's Looney Now? 'Robber' And His 'Victim' Aren't Sure

Baltimore, Jan. 12 (AP).—Vincent Sergi, taxi driver, strolled into a drug store to use a telephone.

It was closing time and the owner, John Patrick Sullivan, was loading his pipe for a smoke. In the same hand with his pipe, he was holding a bunch of keys.

Sullivan thought he recognized Sergi. He thought Sergi was one of several persons who had been kidding him about selling his store. Therefore, Sullivan thought he would start the kidding first. So he said:

"Have you got enough money?"

Sergi gulped. He wasn't one of the friends who knew about the kidding. Very quickly, he backed against the wall and hoisted his hands. In his opinion it looked like a bonafide holdup.

Sullivan was amazed. He failed to notice that his pipe was pointing in the direction of Sergi's avoirdupois. More to his amazement, Sergi dived into his pockets and shakily brought out his money, pitching it in front of him.

Finally, Sullivan told him to pick up his money.

Sergi did so—and left. But in a few minutes he was back—bringing up the rear behind three sturdy policemen.

Then came a police station party.

Sergi looked at Sullivan. "I thought you were a robber."

Sullivan looked at Sergi. "I thought you were crazy."

Hagerstown Blaze Menaces Section

Hagerstown, Md., Jan. 12 (Spl.). Fire early today in the basement of the Tri-State Electric Co. building menaced the downtown section for an hour.

Firemen confined the blaze to the basement, where $5,000 damage was caused.

A policeman discovered the fire.

FRIDAY, JANUARY 19, 1934— THOS. J. OWEN & SON, Auctioneers, 1431 Eye Street Northwest.

TRUSTEES' SALE OF VALUABLE SEMI-DETACHED BRICK RESIDENCE CONTAINING SIX ROOMS AND BATH, LOCATED AT 6322 SEVENTH STREET NORTHWEST, WASHINGTON, D. C.

By virtue of a certian deed of trust duly recorded as Instrument No. 6, on August 7, 1930, of the land records of the District of Columbia, and at the request of the party secured thereby, the undersigned trustees will sell, at public auction, in the office of the auctioneer, on FRIDAY, THE NINETEENTH DAY OF JANUARY, A. D. 1934, AT ONE O'CLOCK P. M., the following-described land and premises, situate in the District of Columbia, and designated as and being lot numbered thirty-seven (37) in square numbered thirty-one hundred and sixty-two (3162), in Robert O. Van Vranken's subdivision of parts of the tracts of land known as "Robert's Choice," "Beall's Fancy" and "Cuild's Fourth Vacancy," as per plat recorded in the office of the Surveyor for the District of Columbia in Liber 79 at folio 56.

TERMS: Sold subject to a prior deed of trust for $3,200.00, further particulars of which will be announced at time of sale; the purchase price above said trust to be paid in cash. A deposit of $500.00 required. Conveyancing, recording, etc., at purchaser's cost. Terms to be complied with within thirty days, otherwise deposit forfeited and the property may be advertised and resold at the discretion of the trustees.

HENRY J. ROBB, HUBBERT R. QUINTER. P—9.11.13.16.18 Trustees.

Good Salt.

At Jimpson's eating house I halt and eat my daily meal because he always serves good salt, to season pork and veal. The finest salt the world affords he furnishes each day to sprinkle on our squashes, gourds, baked beans and shredded hay. And thus he's gained a large renown from Gotham clear to Galt, and all the delegates in town are praising Jimpson's salt. "Sometimes his beef is underdone, his baked beans disappoint," good men admit, as one by one they talk of Jimpson's joint. "Sometimes the sugar's rather sour, the vinegar is sweet, it takes the waiter half an hour to bring us things to eat; sometimes the eggs don't seem correct, with them we are displeased; the hens that laid them, we reflect, were probably diseased. We do not hold that Jimpson's curves display no flaw or fault; his pies and cakes get on our nerves—but he serves splendid salt. His doughnuts taste like rubber tires, his butter melts and runs, and no trained appetite admires his pancakes or his buns. We think, when up against his pie, it's time to call a halt; but on one thing we can rely—the splendor of his salt." And so the man who's truly wise will write the moral down: in some one thing he'll specialize, and gain a fair renown.

County Fingerprint Bureau Is Enlarged

Shifting of the National Reemployment Service office to another room in the Prince Georges County Building in Hyattsville has furnished space for a more complete police fingerprinting and photographing bureau. The bureau, recently established, is in charge of Sergt. Ralph Brown and William E. Clifton, who recently completed training in Baltimore.

New Building Attests to Rise Of Pharmacy

American Association to Dedicate $800,000 Edifice in Spring.

A campaign launched 13 years ago by a Washington druggist will be climaxed soon with the dedication of the American Pharmaceutical Association Building, smallest but perhaps most strategically located of all the Capital's new monumental structures.

The building was occupied yesterday by 10 of the 35 officers, scientists, clerks and other employes who will staff the association's first permanent headquarters in its 82 years of existence. It is at Twenty-second street and Constitution avenue.

All that remains to be done is landscaping, completion of two carved panels at either side of the main entrance and furnishing of the edifice. The dedication has been tentatively set for early this spring.

$800,000 Contributed.

Built of imperial Vermont marble, the building's origin dates back to a meeting of the association at New Orleans 13 years ago when S. L. Hilton, then president, appointed a committee to raise funds. Affiliated druggists all over the country voluntarily contributed $800,000. Six years later they voted to locate the headquarters building in Washington.

Mr. Hilton, who has conducted a pharmacy here many years, turned the first sod July 1, 1932.

Set back deeply from Constitution avenue, the building is approximately 60 feet high, 130 feet long, and 90 feet in depth. Despite its greater elevation, it will not rise as high as the National Academy of Science and Public Health Service Buildings, which are neighbors on the east.

Building Lacks Elevators.

There will be no elevators. Visitors will see all there is to be seen on the first floor—the museum and exhibition rooms west of the foyer, and the library and stackroom in the eastern section of the building. Offices will be strung out in the rear, accessible from an east-west corridor.

The basement contains rooms for photography and mimeographing equipment and an elaborate heating system and a long room which was to have been the laboratory.

A bronze statue of William Procter, jr., "father of American pharmacy," will be placed in the foyer. A native of Baltimore, which has been the association's temporary headquarters in recent years, Procter was professor at the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy, first school of its kind in America.

John Russell Pope, architect for the Archives building, designed the structure. It was built by the George A. Fuller Co.

Torch Murder Victim Believed Cleveland Man

Dover, Ohio, Jan. 12 (AP).—Belief that the victim of a torch murder near here was Frank T. Joiner, Cleveland slot machine operator, was expressed by authorities today when they discovered a belt buckle inscribed with the letter "J" in the same automobile in which the charred body was found.

Joiner had been missing from his home in Cleveland since January 3.

Senate Asked to Uphold Weather Bureau Choice

The appointment of Willis R. Gregg as chief of the United States Weather Bureau was sent to the Senate yesterday by President Roosevelt for confirmation.

Announcement that Mr. Gregg would be appointed by the President to succeed Dr. Charles F. Marvin was made exclusively in The Post yesterday. Mr. Gregg is now in charge of the bureau's aerological division. Dr. Marvin, who is 75, has been with the bureau nearly 50 years. He is expected to remain as associate of the new director.

Retail Dollar Yielded Farms 2c More in '33

Gained Over '32, but Last 6 Months Saw Rise Waver.

The farmer got 2 cents more of the consumers' dollar last year than in 1932, according to figures released yesterday by Dr. Fred C. Howe, Consumers' Counsel of the AAA. But as 1933 ended the farmer seemed to be losing ground.

Dr. Howe's figures reported that in 1932 33 cents of the dollar which purchased 14 important foods eventually was routed back to the farmer. Last year he got 35 cents.

"A long pull is still ahead of us to bring the farmer's share back to the 1929 level, when he was getting 47," said Dr. Howe. "There are two ways of accomplishing this: One is to increase farm prices faster than retail, the second to reduce the costs of processing and distributing.

"During the year just ended, we have made some progress in the first of these directions. The price to consumers for typical monthly purchases of these 14 foods decreased from $16.78 in 1933 to an average of $16.44 in 1933, but the equivalent farm price advanced from $5.54 in 1932 to $5.81."

Dr. Howe stressed the fact his figures were averages for the year, and that changes were more marked in the second six months than in the first. He pointed out that farm prices reached their peak in August, and that since then they have shown an irregular decrease.

Meanwhile, the Bureau of Agricultural Economics gave out figures to show that in the week December 20 to December 27 farm prices rose 2 points, while the prices of things they bought remained stationary.

Senators Scan Fund Data Sent By Lindbergh

Undecided on Calling Him as Witness in Mail Charge Probe.

(Associated Press.)

Whether Col. Charles A. Lindbergh will be called to testify in the Senate air mail investigation depends on an examination of records the committee has received from him.

The records were followed by a telegram from Lindbergh offering to appear at any time to clarify details of his aviation financial transactions.

Before the committee, Wednesday, it was developed that Lindbergh had received stock valued at $250,000 and a salary of $10,000 a year from Transcontinental Air Transport. There was no hearing yesterday.

Chairman Black sent a questionnaire two months ago to 200 persons connected with the operation or financing of aviation companies. He explained that the Lindbergh records had been delayed because of the flier's absence from the country.

Black refused to indicate the line which the investigation might take when the hearings are resumed Tuesday, and said the committee had not decided whom it would call as witnesses.

Murder Fugitive Held in Pittsburgh

Chicago Assassin Wanted for Killing Bystander.

Chicago, Jan. 12 (AP).—Chicago police said today that a prisoner held in Pittsburgh had been identified through fingerprints as Michael De Stefano, sought since July on a murder charge.

He was wanted, they said, for the murder of Emil Onesta, 34, a bystander who was killed by a stray bullet when De Stefano and William Madden, an ally, attempted to assassinate Frank Lano, an underworld character.

The feud was declared, police explain, when Lano refused to contribute to a defense fund the two others were raising to release De Stefano's brother from prison.

Model Homes Victory Near; Alleys' Doom Seen in Move

Public Works Bureau's Approval Is Assured This Week.

Provides Housing For 900 Families

Post Campaign to End Crime-Laden Slums Bears Fruit.

By Walton Onslow.

Directors of the Public Works Emergency Housing Corporation will give final approval this week to the slum clearance and model housing program for Washington.

Two of the four projects submitted to the corporation by the Washington Committee on Housing are slated for approval, it was learned yesterday, as the first definite action in the city's history to substitute model dwellings for alley slums.

The two projects, involving erection of model dwellings over several square blocks, will clean out some of the worst of Washington's alleys, as advocated by The Washington Post. The program will provide modern, high-type homes for approximately 900 families, both Negro and white.

Aimed Directly at Alleys.

Robert D. Kohn, director of housing activities of the Public Works Administration, said the program, which will be paid for out of PWA funds, will be aimed directly at alley elimination.

"We're going to designate a nice, juicy bunch of alleys to get rid of," Kohn said. "You may be sure we will do away with as many alleys as possible in each project."

Taking of options for the housing sites has been virtually completed, but the housing corporation will reserve announcement of the exact locations until after actual approval is voted. Kohn indicated that enough options have been secured on alternate sites to virtually end the menace of real estate profiteering.

The projects involve construction of one set of entirely new buildings, most of which will go to Negro families, and extensive remodeling of another set, to which new buildings will be added. Many Negro families will be installed in the remodeled section of the second project, with the new buildings of this unit to be devoted to white families.

To Eliminate Corridors.

The housing units in Washington will not take after the multi-storied "model tenements" of New York and other cities, Kohn pointed out. They will follow more closely those model housing units recently constructed in Western cities, which eliminate corridors and, as far as possible, afford each family a separate entrance.

It is entirely likely, it was indi-

Rebels Routed; Foochow Falls

Fate of Two Washington Missionaries Unknown; Missing 2 Weeks.

Shanghai, China, Jan. 14 (Sunday) (AP).—A two-month-old secessionist movement in war-wracked Fukien Province tottered today as Nationalist marines were reported in possession of Foochow, the capital, and the rebels took to flight.

The famous Nineteenth Route army retreated from the beleaguered city; Nationalist troops were nearly at the gates; British and Japanese warships were ordered to proceed to the city, and 300 Japanese blue jackets were said to have landed in the capital.

In the face of the smashing Nanking offensive against the insurgents, who two months ago set up an independent People's government opposed to the dominant Nationalist administration in Nanking, the fate of six American missionaries trapped by the fighting two weeks ago remained undetermined.

Their names, according to incomplete information available in Foochow, are: The Rev. W. S. Bissonette, of Canton, Ohio; the Rev. and Mrs. C. M. L. Sites, of Washington; Dr. and Mrs. H. N. Brester, of Xenia, Ohio, and Miss Martha Graf, of Cincinnati.

Rev. Sites Long in Orient.

The Rev. and Mrs. C. M. L. Sites have been missionaries in China for many years, said Bishop William J. McDowell, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, here last night. Bishop McDowell said he believed Dr. Sites and his wife counted Washington as their legal residence, but did not believe they had any close relatives here.

Contest Starts Today For Post Scholarships

Four Universities Join in Plan to Give Pupils in 200 Schools Opportunities to Gain Higher Education.

Higher education and The Washington Post today launch a cooperative project to encourage the study of government and related subjects in the Nation's Capital, with the inauguration of The Washington Post Scholarship Competition for high school students in Washington, Alexandria, and 21 Maryland, Virginia, and West Virginia counties.

The project, hailed by civic and educational leaders as exceptionally adapted to the ambitions of modern students, is presented to some 200 eligible schools under the joint management of The Washington Post and American and Georgetown Universities, the Catholic University of America and Howard University.

Its central committee includes Dr. Harold G. Moulton, president of Brookings Institution; Miss Belle Sherwin, president of the National League of Women Voters; W. S. Deffenbaugh, of the United States Office of Education; Dr. Charles R. Mann, director of the American Council of Education; Felix Morley, editor of The Washington Post, and the following chairmen of the university scholarship award committees:

Dr. George B. Woods, dean of the College of Liberal Arts, American University; Dr. Thomas H. Healy, assistant dean of the School of Foreign Service, Georgetown University; Joseph M. Murphy, director of public relations, Catholic University of America, and Dr. Charles H. Wesley, director of the history department of Howard University.

Five four-year tuition scholarships, each valued at approximately $1,200, will be awarded competitors who win through preliminaries, requiring essays on civic, economic and international questions, and subsequent campus finals, as follows:

From American University, one scholarship to a male competitor and one to a female competitor in its college of liberal arts.

From Catholic University of America, one scholarship to a male

Bandits Hold Two Captives, Steal $50,000

Imprison Mrs. Lawrence and Son, Bind Maid, in Exclusive Section.

Brandishing pistols, three banditis last night imprisoned Mrs. Mortimer Lawrence and her son, Marcus, wealthy Washingtonians, in a closet of their Wyoming avenue mansion and escaped with jewels and heirlooms valued at $50,000 and $230 in cash.

The robbery took place at 7 p. m. in the beautiful and spacious home, 2131 Wyoming avenue northwest, a short distance from the residences of former Presidents Wilson and Taft.

The bandits gained entrance by thrusting aside a maid who answered their ring at the front door. They immediately summoned Mrs. Lawrence and her son from an upstairs dining room.

While two of the bandits kept watch, one profanely ordered Mrs. Lawrence and her son, 26, into a closet on the first floor and locked the door.

The maid, Mary Duskins, 38, was forced at gunpoint to lead the bandits upstairs, after they had forced young Lawrence to hand over the $100 in his wallet.

Upstairs, the men compelled the maid to open jewel boxes and hand over the contents. All wore gloves.

Several valuable necklaces, dozens of rings, brooches, gemmed pins and cigarette cases were reported to police to have been taken. Also, $130 in Mrs. Lawrence's personal effects was seized.

Completing their ransacking, the thieves forced the maid to go down the steps. Splitting sheets torn from a bed upstairs, they tied her to the doorknob of the closet in which the Lawrences were confined. Then they left.

Lawrence began to pound at the door and finally he forced it open.

Collision of Two Pedestrians Fatal

Mrs. Kate L. Bear Dies of Injuries 2 Weeks Old.

Mrs. Kate L. Bear, 68, of 3612 Thirty-fourth street, northwest, died yesterday as a result of injuries received when she collided with another pedestrian.

The accident occurred December 29. Mrs. Bear, on turning a corner at Fourteenth and G streets northwest, collided with Robert Owens, 111 Hesketh street, Chevy Chase, Md., who was turning the corner in an opposite direction.

Mrs. Bear fell to the sidewalk. Assisted by Owens, she was taken home. Later she went to a hospital, where it was discovered she was suffering from a fractured hip and a fractured pelvis. Coroner a Magruder MacDonald issued a certificate of death from accidental causes.

U. S. Sues 2 On 8 Million Alcohol Tax

Actions Declare Their Product Supplied Bootleggers.

The Department of Justice filed suit in Baltimore yesterday against the United State Industrial Alcohol Co. and the United States Industrial Chemical Co., for more than $8,000,000 in back taxes it claimed were due on the sales of alcohol which eventually found its way to the bootleggers.

"There will be similar suits against other companies for large amounts in the near future," said the department statement.

At the same time, Guy T. Helvering, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, announced that all persons holding distilled spirits, alcohol, rectified spirits or wine, must take inventories of their stocks and file them with the Internal Revenue Bureau within 30 days. The inventories must be signed under oath and show stocks as of January 12. Mr. Helvering said the purpose of the order was to facilitate Government revenue collections.

Fined Heavily 3 Years Ago.

The sharply worded statement of the Attorney General's office revealed that Department of Justice agents have been investigating the United States Industrial Alcohol Co. since it was fined $10,000 three years ago by a Federal District court.

"These investigations disclose," says the statement, "that under the permits by which denatured alcohol could be sold only to legitimate users, there were set up a large number of "cover" houses which had no legitimate use for the material, but were used to divert it to cracking plants, where some of the denaturants were removed, whence the material would find its way to illicit distillers, who undertook to remove the remaining denaturants, and supply the resulting alcohol through bootleg channels for beverage purposes to the public. While such diversion was illegal under the prohibition laws, nevertheless where it occurred the taxes became due."

Method Snagged Capone.

This is the sort of procedure, it is recalled, which sent Al Capone, Waxey Gordon and other famous racketeers to jail.

"These claims would be just as valid had not the prohibition amendment been passed," adds the statement. "The Government by this

That Early Lack of Pep Shows You're Just One-Candle Power

(Associated Press.)

A scientist has found that a man lying in bed before breakfast produces barely enough energy to keep an average-sized candle burning.

This "one candle-power" of energy is what it takes just to keep alive the overhead cost of running the body. It is part of the findings of Dr. Francis G. Benedict of Carnegie Institution of Washington, in a study of energy consumed in physical effort, made public yesterday.

If a man's energy production could be converted into electricity in these early morning hours when "the flame of life burns low" it would just suffice to keep one 68-watt bulb lighted, he found.

This amount of heat-energy production represents one calory a minute. But when a man gets out of bed and goes to work his energy production rises tremendously and so do his food requirements.

"Two lumps of sugar would run a man resting quietly for about an hours," says Dr. Benedict.

"But when he begins to move about the costs (in calories) mount. Just sitting up increases the cost 5 per cent, standing up 10 per cent, a brisk walk will increase it by 200 per cent, and a man working up to the limit of human endurance will increase it 1,000 per cent or more."

The average sedentary desk worker needs about 2,500 calories a day to keep alive and do his work, Dr. Benedict found. Farmers, on the average, burn up about 3,500 calories.

D. C. Liquor License Bill Is Approved

Passage This Week Seen as Senate Committee Supports Plan.

Floor Fight Is Likely; Dispensary Plan to Be Pushed.

A liquor control bill providing for a licensing system and the sale of liquor by the drink in licensed hotels, restaurants and clubs in the National Capital was approved by the Senate District committee yesterday.

Approval of the licensing system was voted after the committee had rejected the dispensary system by a vote of nine to six.

Decision of the committee is expected by leaders to be accepted by the Senate which probably will begin consideration of the measure on Tuesday.

No important amendments were made ot the House bill by the committee at the session yesterday, when final approval was given to other amendments written into the measure on preceding days.

Senator Arthur Capper (Republican), of Kansas, proposed the dispensary system in place of the licensing system embodied in the bill as drafted by the District Commissioners and passed by the House.

Favor Dispensary Plan.

Those who voted with him for the dispensary plan were Senators William H. King, of Utah, chairman; Carter Glass, of Virginia; Thomas P. Gore, of Oklahoma, and John H. Bankhead, of Alabama (Democrats), and James Couzens (Republican), Michigan.

Voting against the dispensary system were Senators Royal S. Copeland, of New York; Millard E. Tydings, of Maryland; J. Hamilton Lewis, of Illinois; Patrick A. McCarran, of Nevada, and Robert R. Reynolds, of North Carolina (Democrats), and Hamilton F. Kean, of New Jersey; Robert D. Carey, of Wyoming; Warren R. Austin, of Vermont, and James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania (Republicans).

High lights of the measure, as approved by the Senate committee, follow:

Wines, beer and stronger drinks may be manufactured and sold in the District by private persons licensed to do so.

Beer and wines containing not more than 14 per cent of alcohol are treated differently from stronger drinks. The former may be sold to persons 18 years or older, while sale of the latter is limited to persons over 21 years of age.

Licenses Are Limited.

"On sale" and "off sale" licenses are provided for. No licensee may hold both kinds. Off sales are restricted to beverages in the original containers.

Hotels, restaurants, clubs, railroad dining cars and steamboats may sell by the drink to persons seated at tables. Selling on credit by on-sale licensees is forbidden except by hotels to registered guests and by clubs to members and their guests.

Hot dog and barbecue stands and other light lunch and sandwich establishments may sell beer.

Any store may be granted a license. Grocery, drug and other stores may be given off sales licenses in the discretion of the beverage control board.

The Commissioners are authorized to prescribe a distance around

Maryland Official Again Threatened

"We Are Going to Bomb You," Note Says.

Baltimore, Jan. 13 (AP).—Harold E. West, chairman of the Maryland Public Service Commission, today received another letter threatening to bomb his home. It was the second in five days.

Today's letter, apparently, was written by the same person who earlier in the week based his threat on the commission's refusal to relicense 84 Baltimore taxicabs. The writer indicated that he was one of the drivers who had been thrown out of work.

"Police ain't going to do you any good," today's letter stated. "We are going to bomb you if it is the last thing we do. If we can't get you home we will get you in your car on the road. We will ditch you or bomb you for makings our familys starve and put us out of work. You dirty rat for politics."

Grayson Continues To Make Progress

Rochester, Minn., Jan. 13 (AP). Mayo Clinic physicians today announced that Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, former personal physician to President Woodrow Wilson, "continued to show improvement." The admiral underwent a kidney operation last Monday.

"Dr. Grayson slept well during the night, and we are well satisfied with the progress he is making," physicians said.

Portsmouth, England, Jan. 13 (AP). The battleship Nelson's 12-hour visit to a gravel bank in the harbor yesterday evidently had no serious effects, for it was announced today that she will sail tomorrow to rejoin the home fleet.

Bill to Free New Millions For Industry

Extends Life of R. F. C. for Year; Passage Due This Week.

$850,000,000 More to Aid Business Asked in Measure.

By Robert C. Albright.

Presaging increased flow of Reconstruction Finance Corporation funds into industry, and freeing of new millions in frozen bank deposits, legislation giving the agency a new lease on life yesterday was groomed for passage this week in both Houses of Congress.

The Senate Banking and Currency Committee yesterday favorably reported the bill to increase the authorized borrowing power of the corporation $850,000,000, extending loaning activities another year.

Meanwhile the House Banking Committee filed a report showing $2,600,000,000 in deposits frozen in closed banks, nearly $1,443,000,000 of which "should offer sound loans for the corporation."

First Order Tomorrow.

House Democratic leaders prepared to make the bill the first order of business tomorrow, with an Administration measure guaranteeing the principal of $2,000,000,000 in farm loan bonds following immediately. The Senate banking committee yesterday deferred its report on the farm mortgage financing bill.

"The increased funds of the corporation will enable it to rapidly increase loans for industrial financing," the House Banking Committee advised the House in its report on the RFC bill. "The additional funds will also increase the funds available for the financing of agriculture and industrial exports."

Loans to aid business and industry must be made now through mortgage companies, but an effort may be made in the House tomorrow to authorize a more direct method of treatment.

Heretofore, only a few million dollars have been loaned to local mortgage companies, but applications for a great many million more are on file, the committee disclosed.

Consideration of the measure by unanimous consent in the House tomorrow will mark a departure from "legislation by rule" invoked Thursday on the independent offices appropriation bill. Eighty-four Democrats voted against a Democratic rule making economy features of the bill applicable to every supply measure.

No More "Gag" Rules.

House Democratic Leader Joseph Byrns announced yesterday that no more legislation will be considered under "gag" rules this session "unless an emergency requires it." House Appropriations Chairman James P. Buchanan said no more rules will be asked for supply bills.

Extension of Reconstruction Finance Corporation lending power by $850,000,000 was declared essential by Chairman Henry B. Steagall, of the House Banking Committee, if the corporation is to round out its activities, particularly those involv-

Troops Ready In Coal Strike

Order for Inquiry Called Board "Investigation of Own Evils."

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Jan. 13 (AP). Twin specters of strike and possible disorder hung tonight over the northern part of the anthracite fields.

A tense convention of nearly 500 delegates representing the Unified Anthracite Miners of Pennsylvania, organized in opposition to the United Mine Workers of America, today voted to call a general strike in District No. 1, embracing the Scranton and Wilkes-Barre territory.

Shortly after the strike call had gone out, Judge E. C. Newcomb, of the Lackawanna County Court, granted two rules to show cause why the new union should not be restrained and enjoined from picketing at collieries.

Capt. William A. Clark, in charge of the State police in this area, announced that the troopers will be reinforced by 75 to 100 men from Western Pennsylvania.

Thomas Maloney, union leader, charged that Senator Robert F. Wagner, chairman of the National Labor Board, gave him the "run around."

Maloney termed yesterday's action of the board in Washington, in ordering a sweeping investigation of the industry by the anthracite conciliation board as equivalent to having a group of men "investigate their own corruption."

Triple Revolt Spreads In Congress Against Roosevelt Domination

Mrs. Harriman Hinted For Diplomatic Post

Appointment Would Be Balm to Women Seeking Jobs.

MRS. J. BORDEN HARRIMAN.

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, of Washington and New York, social and political leader, may be named minister to one of the European countries, it was learned from official sources yesterday. She would be the second woman diplomat to represent the United States. Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen is Minister to Denmark.

The appointment of Mrs. Harriman would be an effective answer to the complaint frequently heard that few major appointments of women, other that of Miss Perkins as Secretary of Labor and Mrs. Owen as Minister to Denmark, have been made by the Administration. It is also pointed out that such appointments have not, as a rule, gone to women who have distinguished themselves in political activities.

Mrs. Harriman has long been recognized as a woman leader of progressive thought in the Democratic party. There was open disappointment when the anticipated naming of Mrs. Harriman as one of the District Commissioners did not materialize.

Not only has Mrs. Harriman served in many important posts for the Democratic party but she has a record of wide accomplishment in the field of sociology and industrial movements. She was the manager of the State reformatory for women, Bedford, N. Y., 1906 to 1918.

In the Wilson administration she received the pioneer appointment of a woman to hold an important governmental post when she was

Stable Dollar Parley Called By President

Parade of Experts Strain at Leash to Propound Money Panaceas.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

Development of the Administration's monetary policy is expected to take the center of the Capitol stage again this week as President Roosevelt continues work on steps to further his program, and a House committee holds hearings to learn what should be done to stabilize the dollar.

The President last night called a conference of the House and Senate Banking Committees for tomorrow night for a general discussion of financial legislation. The meeting was expected to presage a monetary message to Congress by the President early in the week.

A number of prominent monetary experts representing every shade of thought on the money question will parade before the House Coinage Committee, starting tomorrow, pausing to explain what each thinks the Government should do now in the field of currency.

As the more liberal of these monetary experts arrive in the city, Senator Elmer Thomas (Democrat), Oklahoma, leading Senate advocate of currency experimentation, intends to gather them into informal conferences with members of Congress to discuss and undertake to coordinate their activities.

Senator Thomas applauded President Roosevelt's declaration of Friday that he had the power to seize the $3,600,000,000 gold holdings of the Federal Reserve Banks. The Oklahoman said it was "unthinka-

Government Seeks Price Aid in Codes

Deficit-Ridden Agencies Move to Escape Sharp Increases.

By Raymond Clapper.

(Copyright 1934, by The Washington Post.)

In the general revision of NRA codes which is soon to be undertaken, consideration will be given to pleas that deficit-ridden Federal, State, and local governments, who are large quantity purchasers of many products, be granted exemptions which will tend to relieve them in part of recent heavy price increases.

Attention also is being directed to what in some instances is a virtual disappearance of the practice of competitive bidding, which has hitherto governed purchases by public bodies. The number of identical prices submitted has grown so great that in some commodities the check of competition has been practically removed, so far as Governmental buying is concerned.

Detailed evidence has been assembled in NRA price hearings this week. It is now being studied. The questions raised will be considered at the general trouble-shooting conference over codes, set for next month. NRA officials are uncertain what to do. They fear that if the bars are let down for large public purchasers, the bitter fight for special consideration will be renewed by chain stores and other big-quantity commercial buyers.

Identical Bids Grow.

Federal agencies have noted a general increase in the number of identical bids. But due to an Administration policy of cooperation with NRA by all branches, few complaints have been made. So many identical bids have been received by the Navy Department for steel plates, cable and other bulk products, that instead of turning them back, it is the frequent practice now to draw by lot. One naval officer in the Supply Bureau obtained some large capsules from the naval dispensary. Numbered slips

Salome, the "Hussy," Dances Again and Makes 'Em Like It

New York, Jan. 13 (AP).—Salome, once called a hussy and kicked out by the "Golden Horseshoe," came back to the Metropolitan Opera tonight—wearing her seven veils.

Goeta Ljungberg, the tall blonde soprano from Sweden, had the title role in Giulio Gatti-Casazza's revival of this tragic music-drama of Richard Strauss.

The seats were all sold two weeks ago. Several railroads operated opera specials from Westchester and Jersey suburbs.

It was in 1907 that the parterre boxholders—those who own the opera house—frowned on the American premiere of the work based on the poem by Oscar Wilde.

The society folks thought the opera too gruesome. They shuddered at the head of John the Baptist on a silver charger. They shrieked when Salome clasped the head to her. The Dance of the Seven Veils was too risque, then, for this spot hallowed by Verdi and Wagner.

The opera, trying and fatiguing for Salome, is in one act, one hour and forty-five minutes long. And the dancing daughter of Herodias is on the stage almost all the time.

The curtain rises without overture. From the heavy strings, on to the brasses, sweeps a powerful and ominous strain—an omen of the tragedy to come.

It is night in the court of Herod's palace in Judea. Salome rushes in. She hears John the Baptist singing in his cistern prison. The sensuous Salome peers through the bars at the disciple of Jesus, down in the well. She allures the soldiers into House Democrats Call for Caucus Probe of Patronage.

4 From Michigan Spurn 'Command'

Deny Blind Loyalty to President; Senators Snag FCA Bill.

Signs of revolt against Administration domination of Congress broke out in three places yesterday.

"More than 25 Democratic members of the House of Representatives signed a petition forcing a party caucus Monday night for the purpose of discussing "existing conditions pertaining to patronage procedure in the Governmental departments, particularly the Farm Credit Administration, with a view of having a committee of the caucus wait upon the President to place the exact situation before him."

The Senate Banking and Currency Committee refused to grant sweeping authority to the Farm Credit Administration, in spite of the President's request for that authority.

Michigan Men Rebel.

A telegram from Horatio J. Abbott, Michigan National Democratic committeeman, and other Michigan party leaders, instructing Democratic members of the State's delegation to follow the President without reservation, brought replies from four of them flatly refusing to take orders.

Resentment over patronage questions centers particularly against Harry L. Hopkins, relief administrator; Secretary Ickes and Secretary Perkins. These officials, it is felt, do not pay sufficient attention to Congressional recommendations concerning jobs. Appointments made by Gov. W. I. Myers, of the Farm Credit Administration, are resented by members of both houses. It was this resentment that had much to do with failure of the Senate committee to approve the farm bank bond bill.

Charges G. O. P. Favored.

Representative Terry M. Carpenter (Democrat), Nebraska, charged that Myers was "leaning over backward" to appoint Republicans rather than Democrats. He said that as a result Myers had brought into the Farm Credit Administration many persons out of sympathy with the President's recovery program.

Carpenter initiated the petition for the House caucus.

"We have tried every means of bringing our protest concerning patronage and legislation to the President," he said. "These efforts proving unavailing, we now propose to do so by an organized effort. We consider that the reason that these things that we complain about are going on is that the President is not really familiar with conditions. That is why we are holding this conference.

"We have every confidence that once the President is advised thoroughly he will move to remedy these conditions. We want to make it clear that this is not an anti-Administraiton move. We consider that we are doing the President a favor."

Revolt among the Democratic members of the House from Michigan was stirred by receipt of the following telegram by Representative Harry Musselwhite:

"Michigan democracy insists that

2 Scientists Missing At Japanese Volcano

Tokyo, Jan. 13 (AP).—Two eminent volcanologists, Dr. Fujio Honma and Dr. Tadaichi Matsumoto, were reported missing today following renewed eruptions at Kuchinoerabu Island, where they had gone to study the active volcano.

The volcano has been sending up a pillar of smoke and flame visible from neighboring islands and far out to sea.

Mail Subsidy Probe to Turn To Financing

Senators Seek to Link Benefits to Huge Finance Groups.

By Martha Dalrymple.

That the same financial interests support steamship lines, air lines, shipbuilding companies, airplane manufacturers, stevedore operators, and allied concerns, and consequently enjoy either directly or indirectly benefits from Government subsidies intended for needy interests, is the ultimate charge that the Senate air and ocean mail contract committee will attempt to prove.

As progress in the current air mail investigation was temporarily halted last night, it was indicated that proof in evidence of this charge is the goal toward which the Senate investigators have worked since September and will continue to work for months t ocome.

When the hearing resumes Tuesday, investigators promise to begin inquiry into the widespread policy of interlocking directorates. At first they will attempt to show the extent of the practices among the leading air lines of the country.

Later evidence of this intertwining will be broadcast to include the boards of subsidized steamship companies, stevedoring companies handling Government business and even large shipbuilding groups.

Two Leaders Are Named.

Senator Black (Democrat), Alabama, chairman of the committee, has already put into the record evidence that some of the leading shipping men of the country served on the boards of air lines. Stanley Dollar, of the Dollar Line, and P. A. S. Franklin, of the International Mercantile Marine, are among those named so far.

The affiliation of these and other men of the steamship industry with one of the three air lines which compose what Black calls the "aviation trust" will constitute one of the largest bits of evidence with which the committee will seek to bolster its theory of unified interests.

The possibility of a violation of the antitrust laws is a consideration that committee members are uninterested in at the moment. The problem may arise with the accumulation of evidence, but now the Senators are far more concerned with the immediate question of collecting and correlating the fast-growing pile of evidence.

The ocean mail inquiry, which started in September, has involved about ten lines so far. But there are many more to come, including the United States Lines. The whole field of shipbuilding also has yet to be investigated. Senator Black estimates the entire inquiry will continue several months.

Tax Returns Scanned.

Over the week-end committee members are working on income tax returns of individuals and corporations scheduled to testify in the query. They are checking these with questionnaires, which have been filled out by persons in question, to determine whether there are any major discrepancies.

One formidable phase of the inquiry is the voluminous reports of brokers who have handled aviation securities.

This information will be supplemented by the testimony of financiers and air line officials as they are called upon to explain the growth of corporate aviation and the financial picture of the leading groups.

One of next week's developments will probably be an attempt to prove that many of the larger aviation companies have been overcapitalized, in many instances the capitalization being based primarily on the mail contract value.

Black said it may also be developed that the outstanding stock of some of the companies indicates a much higher value than assets.

Affiliates to Be Probed.

Among the affiliated industries scheduled to be scanned closely in connection with the aviation investigation, in addition to airplane manufacturers, and airplane accessory manufacturers and dealers, are the automobile and railroad industries.

Evidence offered in the committee has shown that two of the three largest air line holding companies have been controlled by a huge automobile holding company. The details of the financial arrangement not only between the aviation and automotive industries, but also the financial connection with New York banking houses will be thoroughly aired, explained Chairman Black.

Working down the other side of the pyramid, it is expected that the inquiry will proceed from the banking houses down again to steamship lines and their affiliated interests.

The possible list of witnesses, many of whose names have already been brought out before the committee hearings includes some famous and spectacular American figures.

Former Postmaster General Walter F. Brown, who, according to one witness, ordered the Postoffice Department files burned a few days before he left office, may be one. Although he has denied through newspapers that the burned files were official documents, he has not communicated directly with the committee, said Black.

May Call Hoover.

Herbert Hoover, jr., eldest son of the former President, a radio engineer with the Western Air Express, a company which got a mail contract after several so-called "spoils conferences," is one whose income tax reports is under scrutiny, and whose testimony may be wanted.

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, who has been revealed as the recipent of $250,000 worth of stock and $10,000 a year in salary for his technical services, has volunteered to appear for questioning. Senator Black at this time refuses to state whether he has decided to call the famous aviator.

William B. MacCracken, formerly chief of the aeronautic division of the Department of Commerce, and now airline Washington representative, has been subpoenaed.

David K. Bruce, son-in-law of Andrew Mellon, and Richard K. Mellon, the former Treasury head's nephew, may also be on the list.

France Fears Stable Dollar To Cause Loss

Devaluation of Franc Is Believed Impending in U. S. Move.

Paris, Jan. 13 (AP).—The French are beginning to dread the dollar stabilization for which they have clamored.

Georges Bonnet, minister of finance, and others warned that American stabilization of the dollar would be a severe test to French finance because capital would be likely to go suddenly from France to the United States.

The operation of stabilization, which is believed to be approaching, has caused economists to issue private warnings that French commerce, which has sunk to half its normal volume, would be placed at a permanent disadvantage which only unhoped for reduction of government costs or devalorization of the franc could overcome.

Financial and business interests, nevertheless, wish for the dollar to be stabilized, in order to clear the financial atmosphere.

These same interests, however, hope that stabilization will not be made below the present rate of exchange and certainly not immediately while the Government is still shaky from its mud bath in the Bayonne municipal pawnshop scandal and while the 1934 budget still is in process of formulation.

France's budget-balancing efforts have taken a year, wrecked three cabinets, and threatened to bankrupt the treasury.

In February there will be heavy bond maturities. About 22,000,000,000 francs worth of bonds and some floating debt must be met with cash or refunding.

Efforts to balance the budget started early last year in attempts to straighten up the 1933 accounts, but, as the Paul-Boncour, Daladier, and Sarraut governments were overthrown on the issue, the effort automatically turned to 1934.

Politicians Watch Vermont Election

Two Congressmen Will Be Chosen Tuesday.

Montpelier, Vt., Jan. 13 (AP).—Vermont, with a special election next Tuesday, the first State-wide expression of public opinion in any State since the Roosevelt Administration assumed control in Washington, today was a focal point for the politically-minded.

A United States Senator and a Representative will be chosen as a consequence of the death of U. S Senator Porter H. Dale.

Former Representative Ernest W Gibson, appointed by Gov. Stanley C. Wilson to fill Dale's place pending the special election, is the Republican candidate for the Senate. His Democratic opponent is Harry W. Witters, St. Johnsbury, who is chairman of the NRA board in Vermont and treasurer of the Vermont Democratic committee.

Lieut. Com. Powell, Naval Aid Will Wed

Miss Frances E. Paton's Troth Revealed.

New York, Jan. 13 (AP).—Dr. and Mrs. Stewart Paton, of New York and Baltimore, announced tonight the engagement of their daughter, Frances Evelyn Paton, to Lieut. Comdr. Paulus Prince Powell, senior naval aid at the White House.

Miss Paton is the granddaughter of the late William Paton, of New York, and the late William F. Halsey, of New Orleans.

Powell is the son of the late Dr. and Mrs. Robert S. Powell, of Woodview, Brunswick County, Va. He was graduated from the United States Naval Academy in 1913, and commanded the U. S. Scorpion under Admiral Mark L. Bristol at Istanbul.

Saw Only One Man.

Wyoming avenue was thrown into tumult by the robbery and the house soon was filled with consoling friends.

Detective Sergeant Joseph W. Shimon took charge of the preliminary investigation, and Capt. Bernard W. Thompson, assistant detective chief, later assumed charge at the direction of Inspector Frank S. W. Burke, chief of detectives.

Mr. Lawrence said he and his mother saw only one of the bandits. This man was colored, extremely burly, was clad wholly in brown and wore a bandage across the lower part of his face.

hTe maid said two of the men were white.

Mrs. Lawrence is the widow of Mortimer Lawrence, late Cleveland publisher, who died in 1922. The son is said to be independently wealthy. He is a graduate of Massachusetts Institute of Technology and is well known to Washington society.

Inflation Held Road to Ruin By Mussolini

Il Duce Views Recovery Plans of America as "Interesting."

Rome, Jan. 13 (AP).—After a speech by Premier Mussolini, in which he spoke of Americanism and Communism and called American industrial codes "only collective contracts imposed by the President," the Italian Senate tonight overwhelmingly approved his revolutionary corporative law.

Il Duce criticized inflation as "a road leading to catastrophe."

Under the corporative project, lawmaking, price-fixing and competition-regulating powers are to be given 13 corporations or guilds, working through a national council and Premier Mussolini.

It now goes to the Chamber of Deputies and will be rushed through in time so the new system can begin functioning late this month.

NRA Interests Il Duce.

In his address, considered one of the spiciest of his recent career, Il Duce admitted a lively interest in President Roosevelt's economic program.

"I am following the American experiment with close attention," he said to the black-shirted senators, among whom only a small band of ten represented the opposition.

"We note that even in America direct State intervention has taken place in the National economic life.

"Sometimes it assumes a peremptory form. These collective codes are but contracts which the President obliges one and all to accept."

He then launched into an attack on monetary manipulation and inflation.

"Before judging this American experiment we must wait," he said. "I wish to advance the opinion, however, monetary maneuvers can bring an effective and lasting rise in prices. If we wish to delude the human race we can resort to what once was called money clipping.

Slaps at Communism.

"But the opinion of all those who do not react favorably to empyric economic and social experiments is this: Inflation is the road to catastrophe."

Turning to Communism, Mussolini expressed emphatic disagreement with a senator who had remarked that if it had been outlined in "an advanced country like Germany" it might have proved "more successful."

Facing the embarrassed senator, Il Duce said:

"I have not one atom of sympathy for Communism. I deny that if it were applied in Germany it would have brought results different from those obtained in Russia.

"At any rate it is evident the German people did not want anything to do with it."

Then, in a striking comparison, Mussolini declared that "Communism as it appears in some of its manifestations among exasperated Americans is nothing more than a form of State socialization and 'bureaucratization' of economy."

Promising that the corporative system will bring discipline to all parts of the country's economic life, Mussolini asserted it would be just as necessary if the present crisis ended as it "is in the midst of it."

State "Oversees" Capital.

"We should hold no illusions about the rapid end of the crisis," he added. "The road will be long.

"But even if by chance there were to be an immediate and generally economic recovery and those conditions of economic lattitude that obtained in 1914 were to return, this discipline would be as much needed as now.

"Men easily forget and would, if left to themselves, commit over again the same errors and stupidities that brought on the present state of affairs."

Pledging respect for private property, Mussolini said holding it was not just a right but a duty.

Regarding capital, he said enterprises that gather in the investments of people "cease to be private organizations" and come under the "tutelage" of the state.

Under the generalized capitalistic system of today, Il Duce concluded, "exclusive private and individual economy does not exist."

NRA Must Fix Utilities Code, Richberg Says

Interior and Power Groups Still at Loggerheads on Question.

Warfare between the Interior Department and the Federal Power Commission on one side, and the NRA on the other, over the power of the latter to impose codes on the electric utility industry continued yesterday.

Donald Richberg, general counsel for NRA, came forth with a vigorous defense of the stand of the Recovery Administration for a power code. His statement was in reply to those made Friday by Henry B. Hunt, spokesman for the Interior Department, and Frank R. McNinch, power commission chairman. Hunt had insisted the NRA proposals upset Government power plans, and that the proposed code would put the power industry into the hands of large holding companies. Richberg characterized Hunt's statement as a "stump speech." He added that, while he did not agree with all the statements made by McNinch, "his presentation was in proper form, was on a high plane, and in good taste."

Under Act, Says Richberg.

"The privately operated electric light and power industry and many other privately operated public utilities come clearly within the provisions of the National industrial recovery act," Richberg said.

He pointed out that NRA insistently urged utilities to sign the reemployment agreement and that they did sign the agreement.

"Under these circumstances," he continued, "it is hardly appropriate for officials of the Government to rebuke an industry, or to challenge the National Recovery Administration, for proceeding in accordance with the law as long ago interpreted and applied by the President."

He said there is as much need for a code of fair competition covering utilities as there is in any other private enterprise.

"The most unfair competition," he said, "which we are seeking to eliminate through codes is the competition in overworking and underpaying labor. Public utilities, where not engaged in competition within the industry, are all engaged in competition for the consumer's dollar."

Interference Defined.

Richberg said that NRA recognized the "impropriety and illegality" of any attempt to interfere with the powers of other Government agencies to regulate utilities. He added that for this reason utilities can not undertake code obligations which would run contrary to other regulations.

He said a discussion of the private or public derelictions of the sponsors of a code had no place in a code hearing.

"The moral garments of those sponsoring a code may be as black as midnight or as white as snow," he said. "But the process of codemaking is not to be confused with the operation of a cleaning and dyeing establishment."

As the code hearing continued, Robert C. Berry, of the Brotherhood of Edison Employes of America, asked for a 30-hour week and a $20 minimum wage in the industry. He said the power industry is making money, notwithstanding losses suffered by most other industries.

Employes Given Choice.

Berry urged that electric companies be barred from selling securities to their employes. He cited one instance in which employes had been given a choice of putting 10 per cent of their wages in stock which had no market value, or accepting 10 per cent wage cuts. He also criticized the practice of some companies of making their employes salesmen of company stock on their own time. He said this lengthened hours of work and is contrary to the spirit of NRA.

"Here is an industry that has boasted, through its official organ, 'Electric Age,' that it is depression-proof," Berry said. "There are 50,000 members of this industry now out of work and some of them have been out of work for four years. This is an industry that can well put the 30-hour week into effect, without reducing wages and take all, or nearly all, of this 50,000 back to work."

The President yesterday made four more codes effective, including one covering the entire wholesale trade, except foodstuffs, which has a code of its own.

Mine Dispute Delayed.

The National Labor Board postponed until next week a decision in the dispute between union miners and the captive coal mines of Pennsylvania over whether the elected representatives of the men are to be dealt with as official heads of the United Mine Workers or as individuals.

Gen. Johnson named two new consulting members to the Consumers Advisory Board. They are J. W. Nicholson, purchasing agent for the City of Milwaukee, and A. B. Abbett, purchasing agent for Purdue University.

Only Planes Link Chile, Argentina

Railway and Roads Hurt by Heavy Rains.

Santiago, Chile, Jan. 13 (AP).—Mail communication between Chile and Argentina, whose frontiers are concurrent for 3,000 miles, depended today entirely upon Pan-American Airways, a United States company.

Torrential rains during the last week put the famous Trans-Andean Railway out of commission and wrecked automobile highways.

Pan-American Airways announced that the governments of both Argentina and Chile had asked the airline to take over the complete movement of all mail between the two countries.

Birth-Control Sessions Here Set Tomorrow

Notables Sponsor Public Conference to Press Federal Bill.

The American Conference on Birth Control and National Recovery, the first birth control conference ever called here, will begin a three-day session tomorrow at the Mayflower. The conference was organized by the National Committee on Federal Legislation for Birth Control, of which Mrs. Margaret Sanger is president.

Except for a special meeting for physicians Tuesday afternoon, all sessions are open to the public.

The conference is a preliminary to Thursday morning's hearing on the Pierce birth control bill before the House Judiciary Committee. Introduced last session, the bill would permit physicians, hospitals, and public health agencies to disseminate contraceptive information.

From all parts of the Nation distinguished men and women will come to participate in the conference of 300 delegates, it was announced yesterday. Fifty prominent Washington women, under leadership of Mrs. John Dryden, are members of a local reception committee. More than 500 additional persons, in official, educational, welfare, medical, and sociological pursuits have lent their support as sponsors

Mrs. Sanger will open the first session at 2 o'clock tomorrow.

Rudy Pushes Fight To Avoid Alimony

Gets Court Hearing on $7,400 Demand.

Los Angeles, Jan. 13 (AP).—Echoing back and forth across the continent, court actions in the estrangement of Rudy Vallee, orchestra-leading singer, and his wife, Fay Webb Vallee, were increased today.

Within 24 hours after records of her telephone conversations with another man were disclosed, in connection with a New York court decision, Vallee started legal moves here in efforts to thwart his wife's recently filed separate maintenance suit.

In one Superior Court motion he sought to nullify the Los Angeles case on technical grounds. In another, he asked the court to quash a hearing set for next Wednesday involving Mrs. Vallee's application for $7,400 a month temporary alimony and an order impounding his income. Hearing is set for Monday.

Farmers Held Victims of Tax On Processors

Magnus Johnson Chides Wallace for Failure to Enforce Law.

Representative Magnus Johnson, Minnesota Farmer-Latborite, charged in a letter to Secretary of Agriculture Wallace last night that due to "ineffective" administration, the farmer instead of the consumer has borne the burden of the processing tax.

"This has been true because the Agriculture Administration has been decidedly ineffective and the law which was passed to aid them has, instead become a burden," said Johnson, who formerly represented his State in the Senate.

Later, in an interview, Representative Johnson told a Post reporter he holds Mr. Wallace largely responsible for the failure of farmers to benefit by the processing tax.

Holds "Drive" Needed.

"The Secretary is a nice, honest man," he said, "but we need a driver. We need men who are willing to get out and do something."

His letter to Secretary Wallace read:

"Considerable controversy has of late developed over the practicability of the processing tax as provided by the first session of the Seventy-third Congress, through the passage of the agriculture adjustment act.

"The ultimate success or failure of this processing agreement, and I am sure, Mr. Wallace, that you will agree with me, depends upon the strict regulation and control of the processing taxes, so that the producer will not be the victim and be forced to bear the burden of tax shifting processors and I am sure that the success of this depends entirely upon the adherence to an administration of this act.

Recalls Brief Audiences.

"You will recall that on two occasions I made an effort to see you last spring when this legislation was under discussion, and at that time you were, of course, very busy. On one of these occasions you spoke to me in the anteroom of your office for less than a minute, and at another time for about a similar duration, I spoke to you in an effort to convey the problem of Minnesota's farmers, which I admit you should be fully conversant with.

"Now, I appreciate the fact that the heavy duties of your office make it impossible for me to have any extended discussion in connection with administration of legislation that was passed so as to be beneficial to us farmers, and with this in mind I would welcome your views as to the policy which the Administration will follow in carrying out the processing tax plan."

Salome Dances In 7 Veils Again allowing the Baptist to come from the well.

Salome caresses the long locks of the disciple. He spurns her, spits at her. But love has conquered anger—and Salome implores, to no avail.

Herod and Herodias enter. It is Herod's birthday. He pleads with Herodias' daughter to dance for him. He pledges himself to give Salome anything she desires in reward.

She dances—the dance of the "Seven Veils." Herod leers at her, his eyes aflame. Herodias soothes him. The veils are flung away. Salome claims her fee—the head of John the Baptist.

Herod's court is in consternation. He raves and wrangles. Salome holds firm. A Negro slave, his knife glistening in the moonlight, descends into the cistern.

All eyes are glued to the opening of the well. The orchestra rises to powerful heights. The arm of the Negro majestically reaches out of the well, serving the head of the Baptist to Salome.

She dances about it, caresses it. The court flees. The soldiers cringe with fear. Herodias faints. Herod hides his head.

Salome sings out her love as the orchestra rises to its climax. She clasps the head to hers. Herod flees, shouting to his soldiers to kill Salome. The ominous strain surges again. The soldiers crush Salome between their shields.

Symmetallism Is Predicted Soon for U. S.

Mexican Official Views Step as Effective by June.

New York, Jan. 13 (U.P.).—The United States will stabilize its currency before June on a basis of symmetallism, Dr. Jose Puig Casauranc, Mexican minister of foreign affairs, predicted today in an interview.

Symmetallism would make money exchangeable for a given weight of gold plus a given weight of silver, regardless of the value of either metal. One of its strongest advocates is George F. Warren, monetary adviser to President Roosevelt.

Dr. Puig arrived in New York from Montevideo, where he headed the Mexican delegation to the seventh Pan-American Conference. He planned to leave for Mexico City tonight.

In Effect by June.

"Symmetallism will be established by the Administration at Washington not later than June," Puig declared. "That is my definite forecast. Peru will follow immediately, and other Latin-American nations may establish their currencies on the same basis later."

Puig, who today read for the first time the text of President Roosevelt's Wilson anniversary speech, in which the President reaffirmed his policy of nonintervention in Latin-American affairs, characterized the address as "the definite and decisive abrogation of the Monroe Doctrine."

"President Roosevelt in his speech made the strongest possible declaration of future American policy," Puig said. "His opinions coincide exactly with the Latin-American viewpoint.

Roosevelt Lauded.

"Certainly this must be the beginning of a new era in Pan-American relations. The Roosevelt Administration has shown more sincere friendliness to the Southern nations than any Washington Government within my memory.

"I would not be surprised to see development of a League of Nations of the Western Hemisphere, working together in cooperation and for mutual benefit."

There are no major controversial points of issue between Mexico and the United States at the present time, Puig said. Minor differences he dismissed with a shrug.

"If ever I sit down with President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull, we can wipe these minor controversies away within two weeks," he asserted. "The same good understanding exists with the American Ambassador to Mexico, Josephus Daniels."

Statutory Pay Faction Plans Fight in Senate

Full Salary Proponents Hope Roosevelt Will Relent.

Restoration of Government salaries to statutory levels is to be sought in a determined battle in the Senate, with Democrats and Republicans joining in the attack on the Presidents' recommendation that a maximum cut of 10 per cent be continued in the next fiscal year.

Whether salaries will be restored to base levels will depend, it is believed, on the attitude of President Roosevelt. Unless the President makes it clear that he is genuinely opposed to more liberal terms than those proposed in his budget message and approved by the House, proponents of restoration to statutory levels believe they can win.

The Presidential command, however, may be sufficient to determine votes of a sufficient portion of the overwhelming Democratic majority to sustain the salary-economy law program mapped out by Lewis W. Douglas, director of the budget, and approved by the President.

Early Action Foreseen.

The fight will reach the floor when the independent offices appropriation bill, carrying pay-cut and economy provisions, is reported out by the Appropriations Committee, of which Senator Carter Glass (Democrat), Virginia, is chairman.

Senator Glass is expected to call the committee to consider the bill early this week. There will be no delay in the committee, it was said, and the bill will be reported out within a short time. It is the first of the annual appropriations bills, and what is written into it on pay and economy is likely to stand as a precedent for other measures.

Senator James F. Byrnes (Democrat), of South Carolina, anticipates a vigorous battle. He is known to favor return of more than the 5 per cent proposed in the budget. In the end, however, he believes the President's recommendation will be accepted.

Thomas Would Compromise.

Senator Elmer Thomas (Democrat), of Oklahoma, said a strong fight will be made to restore more than 5 per cent.

"I believe the entire 15 per cent should be restored," Senator Thomas said. "I may be willing to compromise on return of 10 per cent on the theory that 10 per cent is better than 5."

"There is much sentiment for restoration of the full salaries," Senator Charles L. McNary, of Oregon, Republican leader said. "I wouldn't be surprised if the full amount is restored."

Senator Arthur Robinson (Republican), Indiana, said he will fight for restoration of the full 15 per cent and repeal of the whole economy act.

"It is cruel to continue the provisions of the so-called economy act and reduced Government salaries when the Administration is spending billions with such recklessness, Senator Robinson said. Only a drop in the bucket compared with the expenditures made and proposed."

Predictions Withheld.

Proponents of restoration are expected to map out their campaign in informal talks without awaiting report of the independent offices bill from appropriations committee. Whether these will show sufficient strength to upset budget recommendations none would attempt to forecast. They contented themselves with predicting a vigorous battle.

Indicative of Congress sentiment for salary restoration was the close squeeze Administration leaders had in the House when they had only five votes to spare in jamming through the special rule under which the bill was considered without privilege of amending salary and economy sections.

Should the Senate upset the 5 per cent restoration provided in the budget the closeness of the vote in the House was regarded as assuring switch of a sufficient number there to give a majority against the budget recommendation.

Elimination of Alley Slums Here Up to House; Bill Passed in Senate

NOTE: Each one of the 599 spots on map indicates former address of a person who died from Tuberculosis

Measure Provides New Homes for Those Who Live in Squalor.

[This is the eighth of a series of ten articles on the hidden slums of Washington.]

By Felix Bruner.

Two definite plans looking toward the solution of the Washington alley problem are pending, both with good chances of success.

One is the Public Works Administration model home project, which will be only a partial solution.

The other is the proposed alley law, which, if enacted, is expected to bring about complete elimination of Washington alleys eventually.

The alley bill has been passed by the Senate and is pending in the House of Representatives. With the District liquor bill out of the way, it is hoped the District Committee of the House will turn its attention to the alley bill and bring about its early passage.

Covers Three Subjects.

The bill covers three principal subjects:

Elimination of alley dwellings.

Rehousing of alley population.

Future use of alley property.

The necessity for the first point has been clearly shown.

In regard to rehousing the alley population, the Housing Committee of the Washington Council of Social Agencies has shown, as related in a previous article, there are houses at low rentals available outside the alley districts.

The alley conversion program presented by the bill contemplates giving the District Commissioners authority to engage in the following activities:

1. To purchase or acquire property in or adjacent to inhabited alleys.

2. To replat any land so acquired; to install improvements for public health, safety and comfort in streets and alleys within such areas, and to demolish, alter and erect buildings and structures therein.

3. To lease, manage, equip, sell or exchange such structures and land.

4. To aid the building project by loans to limited dividend corporations.

U. S. Act to Be Invoked.

The Commissioners are to use the United States Housing Corporation to carry out the provisions of the act. The bill provides that replatting plans must have the approval of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, and any plan involving action by any department, bureau or agency of the United States or District government must have the approval of that department.

To finance the project, the bill makes immediately available to the Commissioners not more than $500,000 of the unexpended funds of the United States Housing Corporation. An annual appropriation of $500,000 would, with the funds previously provided, constitute a revolving fund. Receipts from sales and leases, or any other receipts, are to become immediately available for the project.

The Commissioners also are given authority to borrow from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

The bill contemplates complete elimination of all Washington alleys by July 1, 1942. After that date it shall be unlawful, under provisions of the bill, to use as a dwelling any alley building or structure. Regular public reports on the progress of the work are likewise required.

Owners' Rights Protected.

The rights of owners of alley property are fully protected in the bill. The bill provides for purchase of property at a fair price, but has the added provision that in case purchase in the normal way is impossible, property may be obtained by condemnation and sale.

The United States Housing Corporation, mentioned in the bill, was created in 1918 primarily to establish an agency to provide housing for war workers because of the grave shortage of living accommodations in the District at that time.

This act also recognized the necessity for action on the inhabited-alley problem. Section 6 of the law reads in part:

"That for carrying out the provisions of this act and for the administration thereof the sums of $60,000,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby authorized: Provided, that $10,000,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, of the amount hereby authorized, shall be used only to build or acquire, as herein provided, housing accommodations within the District of Columbia for such Government employes as can not be used advantageously in other cities in the service of the Government, * * *: Provided further, that the expenditure in the District of Columbia shall be made with a view to caring for the alley population of the District when the war is over, so far as can be done without interfering with war-housing purposes."

Money Available.

Thus, the machinery and organization for alley elimination already is in existence. Money can be made available without difficulty. The Senate already has approved the plan. A great mass of public opinion, as represented by the numerous leaders and organizations in Washington who have indorsed the plan, is behind the movement.

The Senate already has passed the alley bill without a dissenting vote. The measure was passed at the special session of the present Congress, so that its repassage by the Senate will not be necessary.

There only remain passage by the House and signature of the President to bring about complete elimination of Washington alleys within the next eight years. The bill was to have been taken up in the House at the special session, but it was smothered by the pressure of relief measures.

Washington is not asking anything that many other cities have not had at a greater expense. Those who have studied the alley problem do not feel they are asking anything unreasonable. They feel they are demanding a measure that will rid Washington once and for all of its breeding places of crime and disease, that will go a long way toward improving the condition of thousands of the city's inhabitants and will furnish for a time employment in wrecking buildings, remaking the alley districts and building and renovating houses outside the alley areas.

White Plague Toll in Alleys Here Surveyed

Survey Findings Will Go to Senate in Report of Utilities Board.

A study of the relationship between the tuberculosis rate in Washington and housing conditions in Washington's alleys and other congested parts of the city is being made by James Ring, rent survey research assistant. His findings will be presented to the Senate in the report of the Public Utilities Commission on housing conditions.

"In response to our inquiry as to the areas in which tuberculosis deaths had been most numerous," Ring said, "the local Tuberculosis Association has furnished us with a series of spot maps of Washington, covering 1930, 1931 and 1932, which show the geographical location of all the homes in which deaths from tuberculosis were reported to the Health Department.

"We have found these maps show a steadily rising number of deaths from this disease in precisely those areas where the congested population exists.

"If anything were needed to inspire prompt action by Congress toward the correction of these bad housing conditions it will surely be found in these illuminating maps."

Action Expected After Liquor Legislation Is Out of Way.

Mrs. Roosevelt Will Attend Briton's Address on Slums

City's Own Alley Problem Heightens Interest in Talk Tomorrow.

Mrs. Roosevelt is expected to be among the guests at the dinner Monday night at which Sir Raymond Unwin, British housing expert, will speak on slum removal and redevelopment. The dinner will be given in Barker Hall, Y. W. C. A., by the American Civic Association.

With the question of ridding Washington of its hidden alleys a center of public attention, the meeting is expected to be attended by a large number of persons interested in this problem.

Frederic A. Delano, president of the association and chairman of the Washington committee on housing, will preside. Among the guests will be Representative Mary T. Norton, chairman of the House District Committee; Robert D. Kohn, director of the Division of Housing of PWA; Dr. M. L. Wilson, director of subsistence homesteads of PWA; Mrs. Charles C. Rumsey, chairman of the Consumers Advisory Board of NRA; Mrs. Archibald Hopkins, leader in the movement for alley elimination; Alexander B. Trowbridge, Col. Samuel P. Wetherill, jr., of Philadelphia; members of the Washington Chapter of the American Institute of Architects, members of the Washington committee on housing, and other planning experts.

Because of his frequent visits to this country, Sir Raymond is intimately acquainted with conditions here. The general theme of his address will be the advantages to be gained and the obstacles to be overcome in a slum redevelopment program.

Under his leadership, the British government carried forward its great program for slum clearance and reconstruction similar to the one which the United States Government is proposing.

Sir Raymond is retiring president of the Royal Institute of British Architects and was chief technical officer for housing and town planning to the British ministry of health. During the war he was director of housing in the ministry of munitions.

2 Concerns Sued For Alcohol Tax suit affirms a policy that liability for taxes should be brought home where justified not only to the little fellow, but to the very large and powerful corporations as well."

It was pointed out that internal revenue laws provide that when alcohol is diverted to beverage purposes a tax of $6.40 a gallon should be paid. The Government complaint lists the diversion by the companies of more than 1,271,000 proof gallons, which, it charges, took place all over the country.

George W. Whiteside, of New York, has been designated special assistant to prosecute the case. He will be aided by Abraham Benedict, of New York, and James M. Hoffa, of Baltimore, former Assistant United States Attorney General, who took part in the three-year investigation.

"The Attorney General," declares the statement, "insists that this revenue be brought into the Treasury and has directed Mr. Whiteside and his assistants to that end to prosecute vigorously this claim."

Model Housing Victory Nears; Alleys Doomed

To Provide Homes for 900 Families; Works Group Acts This Week.

cated, that the Washington houses will be of the row type. Most of them will be two stories high, although a few may run as high as three and four stories.

Officials pointed out that by providing homes with separate entrances, for the most part, occupants will be given a feeling of greater responsibility about their homes. The corporation generally frowns on the corridor system as tending to cause families to become careless with refuse and to abuse the common hallways.

Rents will be kept at a minimum, Kohn indicated. Final determination of the per-room cost, he said, will depend on the amount appropriated for the Washington program, an amount which will not be determined until action of the board this week on the plans.

However, with several square blocks involved in each project, it is obvious that the cost of the demonstration will run into several hundred thousand dollars. Kohn said that rents in the remodeled units will be exceptionally low.

Low Rent a Factor.

The factor of low rent in remodeling was one which has led members of the board to favor this project. Although the buildings to be taken over are now in a generally unsatisfactory condition, the remodeling will provide the best type of apartments. It was emphasized that throughout both the projects the best of accommodations will be provided without the establishments becoming elaborate.

Construction of the projects by the Housing Corporation will come as the Government's first actual undertaking to replace the city's insanitary and objectionable alleys with satisfactory housing.

The first attempt to do away with alleys was made in 1871, as pointed out in the current series of articles in The Post. This was merely an effort to wipe out undesirable living conditions without providing a substitute.

In the ensuing 63 years sporadic attempts have been made to push the alley elimination program, none of which provided alternate living quarters for those persons losing alley homes. With this in mind, the Washington Committee on Housing, under the chairmanship of Frederic A. Delano, after a careful canvas of the local needs, submitted a program of four projects to the Public Works Emergency Housing Corporation for consideration.

Plans Under Analysis.

This was several weeks ago. Under pressure to provide housing in dozens of cities, the corporation put the committee plans under careful analysis, and final action has awaited decision of the experts of the corporation on the merits of the local suggestions.

It is known that the plans will not be approved as submitted, but they will largely follow the recommendations of the Delano committee. The studies on the projects have been practically completed, site options have been taken, and the program is now ready for decision of the board. On the basis of the studies, it was stated that the board has practically decided to approve two of the four projects, although the exact amount of money to be appropriated has not yet been decided.

The corporation was established with a capital of $100,000,000 of Public Works Administration funds, and already has authorized projests in several cities.

The Delano committee plans were largely concerned with alley elimination in connection with the new housing. By extension of the housing areas over several square blocks, the projects will eliminate many alleys in one operation, and authorities have spent many hours studying sites with a view to taking in as many alleys as possible.

Homes for 900 Families.

Kohn placed the estimate of families to be given homes at 900. On the conservative average of five persons per family, the two projects to be financed by public works funds will care for about 4,500 persons.

The city's alley population is estimated at 9,000 or more, and although not all persons who will acquire homes in the new establishments will come from alleys, it is accepted that the two undertakings will cut the alley population extensively.

Discussing the program, Kohn pointed out that the corporation has the right to exercise eminent domain in acquiring the land for the projects.

"We have this right," he said, "but we do not want to use it. Up to now, our option operations have been successful, as we generally acquire enough options to give us the choice of several alternate sites.

"However, should we find that after taking up most of a site, there are persons who want to "hold out" on us with pieces of land in the middle of our holdings, we might resort to eminent domain and condemn the land."

Regarded as "Starter."

The Housing Corporation has been keenly aware of the alley menace in Washington, Kohn said, and has borne this in mind in dealing with the local plans. Approval of the two projects is regarded somewhat as a "starter" on a general clean-up, as advocated by The Washington Post, as Kohn pointed out the Capper-Norton bill is given all chances for approval in Congress. This bill would provide a revolving fund of $500,000 to be used for alley elimination over a period of ten years.

The combination of the Federal housing demonstration and the program authorized by the Capper-Norton bill should go a long way toward total elimination of alleys here, he indicated.

Farley Warns Congress Foes Of Elections

Volume of Public Works Defended as Method to Avoid Dole.

Cleveland, Jan. 13 (AP).—Any Congressman seeking to embarrass President Roosevelt and make his tasks more difficult, will, in the opinion of Postmaster General James A. Farley, "come up missing" after the Congressional election this fall.

The Postmaster General expressed this and many other opinions concerning the trend of the present Administration, in an address today at luncheon opening the Cleveland Automobile Show.

Excess Works Admitted.

He predicted that President Roosevelt would not "spread his sails before the inflation gale, with all the perils that beset such a course," but added that neither would the President "sacrifice the advances which have occurred in commodity prices by taking the views of the international bankers."

He admitted that "perhaps some of the public works that are being executed under the new dispensation are not urgently necessary," but asserted:

"How much better it is to have an excess of roads, or bridges, or public buildings, or flood-prevention or forest-preservation work, or any of the other improvements involved, than to hand out the money in doles and create a permanent class of State pensioners."

Credit Not to One Party.

The Democratic National chairman said he is proud "that the Executive who has shown himself capable of dealing with this desperate situation is one of my own political faith," but added: "The credit for the improvement can not be claimed for my party alone."

"We were fortunate," he said, "that we had a Congress with sufficient vision to perceive the character of the emergency and with sufficient faith in Mr. Roosevelt to give him the strongest cooperation ever accorded a President of the United States in peace times. The last Congress did not stint in its support of the President when he described the critical situation of the country and asked for authority to meet the emergency, and my hat is off to my political opponents for their part in that performance.

Faith in Congress.

"Moreover, I am sure that the present session of Congress will be as industrious and loyal and unselfish in the Nation's service as was its predecessor."

His address was carried over a network of the National Broadcasting Company.

McDonaldRites Set for Chapel

Veteran of Many Wars, 78, Will Be Buried at Soldiers' Home.

Funeral services for James McDonald, 78, who died Thursday at the Soldiers' Home Hospital, will be held tomorrow at 10:15 o'clock at Soldiers' Home Chapel. Interment will be in the home cemetery.

Mr. McDonald, a native of Kildare, Ireland, was one of the founders of Urell Camp of Spanish War Veterans. He enlisted in the British army at the age of 18 and later served in India.

After his discharge he came to this country and joined the American Army. In his 22 years of service he fought in several campaigns against the Indians, and in the Spanish-American War.

Until his health began to fail, several years ago, he lived with his son, John McDonald, and daughter, Mrs. Edward J. Cross, both of 517 Twenty-second street northwest.

Walter Funderberk to Speak.

Faking Roosevelt On Radio to Stop

Magazine in News Series to Quit Simulation.

New York, Jan. 13 (AP).—When a voice sounding like that of President Roosevelt comes over the air in the future, it probably will be the President's and not that of an imitator.

A current news events program sponsor announced tonight it had agreed to omit any further simulation of the President's voice.

The agreement followed a conference at the White House with Assistant Secretary Stephen T. Early, it was announced.

Dairyman Charged With Bottle Thefts

Danville, Va., Jan. 13 (Spl.).—M. L. Ireson, dairyman, faces six warrants in Police Court charging he took milk bottles of rival dairymen.

Police stopped his truck, examined the bottles, and seized 30 which, they said, bore embossed names of other dairies.

Injuries Fatal to Girl.

Hopewell, Va., Jan. 13 (Spl.).—Marion DeWitt Hazelgroves, 15, died at Hopewell Hospital yesterday as the result of injuries received in Camp Lee, on the afternoon of January 9 when a car in which he was a passenger collided with a truck and was overturned.

Two Policemen Are Convicted Of Rum Bribe

Dismissal of Pair Urged on Commissioners After Trial.

Two suspended policemen, were found guilty of accepting a bribe by a police trial board yesterday, and recommended for dismissal from the force.

Findings of the board were forwarded to the District Commissioners. It is expected they will act on dismissal recommendations tomorrow or Tuesday.

The two policemen, Rudolph Schleichert and H. G. Bauer, members of the police dry squad, were acquitted on similar charges before the District Supreme Court last November.

In testimony bordering on the sensational, it was charged the officers accepted $50 from an alleged bootlegger in exchange for leniency. It was intimated at the board hearings that a high Government official, "outranking a Senator," had lent his power in prosecuting the accused policemen.

Defense attorneys charged their clients had been "framed." An envelope, allegedly containing the bribe money and handed to the policemen by Alfred H. Dudley, admitted bootlegger's "runner," actually contained information against other bootleggers, the defense maintained.

Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, commenting on the verdict, declared:

"The board was in full accord. There was no other conclusion that could be reached."

Both Bauer and Schleichert contended they had been "framed" because of their activities against Henry R. Milton, alleged illicit beverage dealer, for whom Dudley admitted he worked.

Dudley, in testifying for the prosecution, said he delivered a quantity of liquor to a Senator's office just before he was arrested by the accused officers. He complained to officials, Dudley said, when the policemen indicated they would accept a bribe.

The police board was composed of Inspectors Ogden T. Davis, J. E. Beckett and Thaddeus R. Bean.

Truce in Reich Church Revolt Checks Clergy

8,000 Ministers Opposed to Bishop Mueller Defer Protest.

Berlin, Jan. 13 (U.P.).—A partial truce was declared tonight in the factional struggle within the Nazified German Christian Church on the eve of a scheduled demonstration by 8,000 "revolting" pastors against a decree by Bishop Ludwig Mueller, Hitlerite head of the church.

Bishop Otto Meiser, of Bavaria, on behalf of the Pastors Emergency League, a group of pastors opposed to Mueller, announced the members of the league in 12 states had decided not to read from their pulpits tomorrow a manifesto against Mueller.

The states involved comprise all the important territory affected, except Prussia and Saxony.

Reading of the protest will be held up until Wednesday, Meiser said, in the hope that a compromise may be reached.

The Berlin opposition pastors, however, declared their intention of proceeding with the manifesto tomorrow.

Inasmuch as the Protestant population is centered largely in Prussia and Saxony, Meiser's announcement failed to relieve tension and violence was feared. Police were ordered to patrol the vicinity of Berlin churches tomorrow to forestall demonstrations.

The Pastors Emergency League, its members swelled from 6,000 to 8,000, rebelled against the reported decision of Mueller to enforce his decree of January 5 making himself virtual dictator of religious affairs and muzzling pastors' opposition.

ing the strengthening of open banks, the liquidation of closed banks, refinancing the operations of drainage and levee districts, and the financing of agriculture exports.

"Immediate extension legislation is imperative if a disorganizing break in these activities is to be avoided," Charman Steagall said.

The R.F.C. already is committed for about $1,000,000,000 of loans which it has agreed to make, but on which it has not been possible to make immediate disbursement. Under the present law, the corporation's borrowing power is limited to $2,900,000,000, except for the purchase of preferred stock or debentures of banks and insurance companies. Only $15,000,000 of that limit was uncommitted January 1. Chairman Jesse H. Jones, of the corporation estimated minimum needs to carry to completion tasks in which the agency is now engaged at $815,000,000.

Report Cites Needs.

The House Banking Committee reported:

"In the case of banks, funds would be used for loans to receivers and liquidators of closed banks to release frozen deposits and for loans to help open banks over the next six months of adjustments in the transition to the permanent deposit-guarantee system—particularly loans to aid reorganizations and consolidations which the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation and this corporation may deem advisable for banks which qualified with difficulty on January 1.

"At the close of business December 31, the corporation had made commitments totaling approximately $590,000,000 to release frozen deposits—$240,000,000 subsequent to the creation on October 16 of a special Deposit Liquidation Board for this work.

"The Deposit Liquidation Board and the machinery which the corporation had devised for its assistance are now operating at top speed. The Deposit Liquidation Board already has definite advices of the preparation of additional applications to it for an aggregate of approximately $350,000,000.

"How much more will be required to complete liquidation of the Nation's frozen bank deposits on a safe lending basis for the corporation is, of course, indefinite."

Of the $2,600,000,000 which the House Banking Committee estimated on October last was "still frozen even in banks closed only since January 1, 1933," about $1,443,000,000 would be ultimately recoverable in dividends, the report stated, adding that a large portion of this last figure should offer "sound" loan values.

Blackfeet May Refuse $645,000.

Browning, Mont. (U.P.).—Blackfeet Indians on the reservation near here have indicated they may refuse a "gift" of $645,000. A District of Columbia court recently awarded the tribe that sum for land taken from them many years ago by white men. "That's a lot of wampum," said one tribal spokesman, "but we sued for $68,000,000."

Triple Revolt Flares Against Administration

Congressmen Call for Probe of Patronage; RFC Bill Snagged.

its Democratic Congressmen unqualifiedly and without reservation promote and support the policies and measures of President Roosevelt. Individual interests and personal opinions must be submerged for the advancement of the general good, which can only be secured by following the leadership of our good President. Michigan people's public sentiment also makes this demand upon you."

Besides Abbott, the signers were W. Alfred Debo, chairman of the State central committee, and Don W. Canfield, secretary of the State central committee.

Michigan Congressmen felt the telegram was a result of some of their number voting against the "gag" rule when the President's economy bill came before the House Thursday.

Farley Hand Hinted.

Postmaster General Farley, Democratic National chairman, spoke in Cleveland at noon. Cleveland is less than an hour from Detroit by plane.

"Because I voted against the gag rule does not mean I am against the President," Musselwhite said. "It simply means that I will not vote for any measure blindfolded and am opposed to any rule which precludes the oportunity of a member of Congress to voice the wishes of his constituents."

Representative Michael J. Hart simply wired Abbott to "mind his own business."

Representative John C. Lehr wrote: "My 38 years of unselfish support of Democratic principles makes it unnecessary to take any orders from anyone who has been so blind to the best interests of Michigan Democracy as you have."

Representative Carl M. Weideman replied: "I'll take care of legislation and you can take care of patronage. I am with the President 100 per cent except when my promises to the people are contrary to the views of his advisers. I have followed him faithfully when he was right. I did not vote for the economy bill because I do not believe in the cutting of wages of minor Federal employes nor do I believe in throwing thousands of deserving veterans on the welfare rolls."

Bond Bill Delayed.

The bill at which the Senate Banking and Currency Committee balked seeks to have the Government guarantee the principal as well as the interest on $2,000,000,000 of bonds of the Farm Credit Administration. The committee, instead of taking final action, put the measure over until Monday. Members said the bill would have to be drastically amended if it was to be reported favorably.

The objection is not so much to guaranteeing the bonds as it is to giving additional power to Gov. Myers. The bill provides for the Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation to be organized and chartered by the governor of the Farm Credit Administration. It provides for a board of directors consisting of the Secretary of the Treasury or an officer of the Treasury designated by him, the Land Bank commissioner; the governor of the Farm Credit Administration and two officers of that organization to be designated by the governor.

It was pointed out by opponents of the measure that this provision would give the governor absolute control. The bill gives the governor the power to charter the corporation and then gives the directors, a majority of whom will be under his control, the power to adopt by-laws and amend the charter.

The bill also gives the directors the power to hire and fix the salaries of employes without regard to other laws and regulations.

Threat Is Hurled.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Jan. 13 (U.P.). Support of the Michigan Democratic party will be withdrawn from Congressmen who fail to follow President Roosevelt's program, Horatio J. Abbott, National committeeman, said tonight.

Abbott said that the telegram he sent Michigan Congressmen, demanding that they support the Roosevelt policies, was prompted by the fact that only one of the State's 10 Democratic Representatives voted for the Administration's economy bill this week.

THE battle is not over by any means, is the consensus of opinion of groups and individuals seeking repeal of the pay cut, as the scene shifts to the Senate after a close defeat in the House.

BAKER.

Many of the Representatives who fought for the employes last week have promised to seek support of the Senators from their States. Typical of this large group is Representative Hoeppel (Democrat), of California. He has expressed the belief the Senate will restore more than one-third of the cut, and promised the American Federation of Government Employes he will solicit the support of Senator Hiram Johnson.

With the support of such Senators as Senator Pat Harrison (Democrat), Mississippi, pledged to the Government workers, hopes are brighter in the upper chamber. The Republican minority is expected to vote for restored pay, as it did in the House.

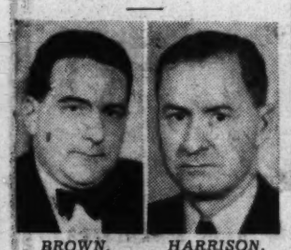
General Accounting Office employes assigned to audit the TVA books at Knoxville last week include George T. Montgomery, Glen Rose, F. Lechler, Fieldon Acuff, John E. Elliott, W. Ray Stewart, Carroll R. Ackerman and Ray S. Harvey.

THE Adjutant and Inspector's Department at Marine Corps headquarters held their annual election of officers for the A. and I. Fund last week. Mrs. Edith Ambrogi was chosen chairman. Assisting her will be Mrs. Gladys Knight, statistical division; Private (First Class) Charles M. Mackay, personnel administration; Sergt. Henry E. Davis, file room; and Sergt. William F. Becker, activities division.

The fund was organized in 1925 under direction of Brig Gen. Rufus H. Lane and Col. Elias R. Beadle. The committee elected each year looks after the personnel of the Department who are away from the office on account of sickness. Dues of the organization are only 10 cents a month. Maj. A. D. Rorex is treasurer.

Retiring from the committee are Mrs. Anna McGoldrick, chairman; Fred Sharpnack, statistical division; E. J. McCabe, activities division; Miss Irene Scott, file room and Miss Gertrude Friedman, personnel.

Employes at Adjusted Compensation, Veterans Administration, have been thoughtful in sending flowers and fruit to George Houff, who has been ill.



BROWN. HARRISON.

THE Federal Bridge League is off to a good start for the second half of its 1933-34 season, with 22 teams registered. At the end of the first night's play last week, Paul E. Golden, Bureau of Standards, reports a three-way tie for league lead.

As usual, the stronger teams made a poor showing at the opening game. The Standards' XYZ's, under D. B. Judd, pennant contenders last season, came back to win fifth place. Of the new teams to enter, the best showing was made by the Execs, a strong quartette captained by Commander W. A. Corley, president of the Washington Bridge League.

The opening session produced an abundance of big hands, with several small and grand slams bid and made.

Top score in the advanced section was made by R. M. Brown and L. B. Harrison, of the I. C. C. examiners. Mrs. Brenta B. Adams and S. Nelson, of the NRA, were second. D. L. Haldeman and R. A. Tron, General Accounting Office, won top score in the intermediate group.

The tournament is under auspices of the National Federation of Federal Employes and is staged at the Federal Clubhouse, 1616 Sixteenth street northwest.

The official and complete list of team standings will appear in this column tomorrow.

Dinner and bridge were enjoyed recently at the home of Miss Ethel Earnshaw, numbering section, Bureau of Engraving and Printing, by a group of her co-workers. In the party were Miss Fannie Harper, Miss Annie Jones, Miss Ollie Greer, Miss Belle Trouland, Miss Gertrude Marlow, Miss Elizabeth Mabrey, Miss Nellie O'Connor, Miss Eva Brauman, Miss Gertrude McNally and Mrs. Clayton Beall. Miss Marlow, Miss Greer and Miss Mabrey (*), won prizes.

OFFICERS for 1934 have been installed by National Parks, Buildings and Reservations Lodge, No. 11, American Federation of Government Employes, by Miss Esther Penn, National secretary. Elmer H. Bailey was reelected president. Other officers include: R. W. Kincheloe, vice president; N. J. Cunningham, secretary-treasurer; Robert Joseph King, sergeant at arms; Robert A. King and F. W. Taylor, delegates to the District Department; E. C. Atkinson and R. C. McCall, alternates to the District Department; R. A. King, W. P. McDonald and C. A. Thackeray, representatives to the Central Labor Union; R. J. King, chairman, membership committee and entertainment committee; C. K. Murr, chairman, resolutions committee and publicity.

Mr. Bailey congratulated R. A. King on his work in building up the lodge membership.

N. F. F. E. Meetings.

Unless otherwise listed, the following National Federation of Federal Employes meetings this week will be held at suite 604, 710 Fourteenth street northwest.

Tomorrow, 8 p. m.—Hospital Guilds, Local No. 2.

INTERNAL REVENUE employes are looking forward to January 31, when the annual dance of their Welfare Association will be held at the Shoreham. The Acting Secretary, Assistant Secretaries, deputy commissioners, and heads of units of the bureau will be honor guests, and will be in the receiving line.

H. B. Robinson, association president, announces that the Board of Trustees has chosen the following to serve on an arrangements committee: Charles A. Drake, Ira Y. Bain, H. F. Dolan, William E. Marshall, H. K. Melcher and Ralph Toll.

Anvil Chorus.

I wonder why the whole darn tribe
Of people far and near
Is ever ready with a jibe
For those who labor here.
From morn till eve, like wound-up clocks,
We do the Nation's work,
And yet, there's naught but raps and knocks
For Uncle Sammy's clerk.

For better days our time we bide
From "Pull" we hold aloof.
In service, loyalty, we pride
We're 100 per cent proof.
No matter how pressing the load
We bear the galling yokes,
Yet, when it comes to wages and code,
We're the forgotten folks.

The gamut of the alphabet
Is used to show the way—
The means through which others may get
Redress from underpay.
To those who reach the ballot box
The NRA speaks aloud,
But to the Civil Service flocks
It means "No Raise Allowed."

Senate Group Approves D. C. Rum Licenses

Passage of Measure by End of Week Is Foreseen.

churches and schools within which no liquor may be sold.

Owners of 51 per cent of the property within a radius of 600 feet of the location where it is proposed to sell liquor could prevent issuance of a license by registering their opposition with the licensing board.

License Bar Changed.

An important amendment was written into the bill regarding the restriction of licenses within the proscribed distance of schools and churches. As passed by the House the bill excepted businesses which were established prior to April 3, 1933. This date was changed to the date of enactment of the measure. That would mean that businesses established prior to enactment of the law would not be barred from licenses because they were located near churches or schools. Issuance of licenses to such places would not be mandatory, however, but would be left discretionary with the board.

The fight over the dispensary system will be renewed on the Senate floor. Senator Capper is contemplating submitting a minority report urging adoption of that system. He doesn't expect to win. Senator King also expects the Senate to approve the majority report.

Advocates of that system, however, want to express their views and have got a vote on the question. Several amendments are expected to be offered, ranging from the dispensary system as commonly known, through variations and modifications down to the licensing system approved by the committee.

Passage Seen by Week-End.

How long the debate will run is problematical. Some have said the bill will be passed in one day. Others believe two days will be required. Senator King planned to ask unanimous consent to bring the measure up for consideration tomorrow.

The committee report will not be formally submitted until tomorrow, however, and under the rules it must lie on the table for a day before it can be taken up. This rule can be waived by unanimous consent. Senator King may not ask unanimous consent and let the measure lay until Tuesday.

Whatever details of procedure may be, it seems certain that the measure will be passed by the Senate, sent to the House for approval of amendments, differences ironed out in conference and sent to the President for signature by the end of the week. That will be just one week later than had been predicted more than a week ago by Senator King.

Notice Must Be Given.

Legal liquor will not be available in the District immediately the measure becomes law. Under its provisions two weeks public notice of each application for license must be given.

The bill also provides for the drafting of regulations by the District Commissioners. These were not incorporated in the law because it was desired to set up regulations which could be changed quickly to meet changing conditions.

Commissioner George E. Allen and William W. Bride, corporation counsel, and Vernon E. West, principal assistant, said the regulations would be ready by Thursday.

What these will be was forecast in the details of the first draft of a measure submitted to the Commissioners by Mr. Bride. They were stricken out by the Commissioners when they sent their bill to Representative Mary T. Norton (Democrat), of New Jersey, chairman of the House District Committee. Those not in conflict with the law as enacted will be promulgated as regulations.

Appointment of the alcoholic beverage control board of three will be made immediately the law is enacted, Commissioner Allen said. The board members, however, may not assume office until Congress has provided funds. Preparation of estimates has been begun by Daniel J. Donovan, District auditor, and approval of the Budget Bureau will be asked for these immediately the President signs the bill.

Prompt action on the appropriation request has been pledged by House and Senate leaders.

Mrs. Hunnewell Asks Rehearing on Divorce

Carson City, Nev., Jan. 13 (AP).—Petition for a rehearing on the appeal of Mrs. Helen Cirese Hunnewell from a district court decision dismissing the Reno divorce suit brought against her by Harry C. Hunnewell, young Boston millionaire, was filed in the State Supreme Court today.

The supreme court on January 3 upheld the lower court's dismissal of the case on the grounds of lack of jurisdiction.

New York Police Seize 164 in Gambling Raids

New York, Jan. 13 (AP).—Police ax squads battered down "ice box" doors, smashed gambling devices and paraded 164 prisoners into magistrate's courts in a series of gambling raids today.

Ordered by Chief Inspector Lewis J. Valentine, brought back to power in the police department by Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia to clean up Broadway and the entire city, police worked long hours raiding known gambling establishments.

Post Institutes Scholarship Competition For Youth of District and Adjacent Area

Project to Impel Study of Government and Its Ramifications.

Four Universities Unite in Cause; Educators Praise Aim.

competitor in the college of arts and sciences or the school of engineering.

From Georgetown University, one scholarship to a male competitor in its school of foreign science.

From Howard University, to the winner in its campus finals, either male or female, one one-year scholarship in the undergraduate college, to be followed by three annual scholarships as the winner qualifies for promotion.

Engraved certificates and silver medals will be awarded winners in school and division preliminaries.

Not Limited to Science.

Attention is called to the fact that proferred scholarships do not limit winners to purely social science studies. The American University scholarships, for one boy and one girl, permit the winners to pursue major studies of their choice in the liberal arts.

The boy who wins the Catholic University scholarship may elect his curriculum in the college of arts and sciences or the school of engineering. The Howard University winner may study the liberal arts, education or applied sciences in the undergraduate college.

The Georgetown University school of foreign service scholarship provides training not only for foreign service in its various branches, but also for domestic business, and is designed to fit the student for a public or private career, at home or abroad, according to his selection of classes.

The competition's plans and purpose, as drawn up in recent roundtable conferences of university professors and members of The Post staff, establishes a milestone toward intelligent public understanding of public matters, in the opinion of the heads of the four cooperating universities.

Long-Felt Want Filled.

"The American University College of Liberal Arts," stated Dean George B. Woods, of that institution, "is happy to cooperate in this offer of scholarships to students who excel in the understanding of American Government. A contest involving serious study of the fundamentals of government and politics finds a logical place in this university's educational program. We are very glad to have a part in enlarging the opportunities of young people to become more effective citizens."

"Any project which will turn the attention of the boys and girls of today," said Dr. James H. Ryan, rector of Catholic University of America, "to the problems which press upon us from all quarters, and which leads them from a study of the fundamental bases of society to an ultimate and logical solution which will be the guide and order of the future state, is deserving of the highest commendation and the whole-hearted support of all responsible people. The Catholic University is happy to cooperate with The Washington Post in this essay contest."

"In the name of the directorate of Georgetown University," stated Dr. W. Coleman Nevils, president of Georgetown University, "I am indeed glad to give my hearty indorsement to this competition. We are gratified in being able to help forward such a commendable contest, and sincerely wish The Post and our other associates complete success in this practical project, designed to stimulate public interest in public questions, and to encourage secondary school students toward a larger knowledge of outstanding National and international problems."

Work Hand in Hand.

Dr. Mordecai W. Johnson, president of Howard University, said: "Howard University accepts with pleasure the opportunity to cooperate with The Washington Post in a contest which will serve to stimulate interest in American government, direct attention to advanced training in the Nation's Capital and give opportunity for a liberalizing outlook to the individual student. In this respect, the newspaper and the university are channels through which the American public may advance in its thinking and its acting."

Approximately 1,000 Washington public high school students have been already enrolled in the preliminaries of the competition in immediate response to its introduction to George J. Jones, William M. Brewer and Miss Mary L. Strong, directors of civics and history studies in these schools. The essay topics, conforming to the curricula of these departments, are to be used in their classes on civics, economics, international problems and advanced American history.

Any bona fide student under 19 years of age on February 1, 1934, who has not previously graduated from an accredited secondary school and who is duly enrolled in the senior class of a public, private or parochial high school within The Post competition area, is eligible to participate in this competition.

The Post competition area includes: The District of Columbia; in Maryland—Anne Arundel, Calvert, Carroll, Charles, Frederick, Montgomery, Prince Georges, St. Marys and Washington Counties; in Virginia—Alexandria City and Albemarle, Arlington, Clarke, Fairfax, Fauquier, Frederick, Loudoun, Prince William, Shenandoah and Rockinghom Counties; in West Virginia — Berkeley and Jefferson Counties.

Subjects of Essays.

Each school principal, who will have sole authority in the selection of his school winner, will be required to submit to The Post, by April 9, the essay adjudged best in his school finals. The essays, to contain not more than 2,000 words, must be upon any of the following subjects:

Civic Problems.

The Obligation of Wealth to Society.
Theory and Practice of the NRA.
Reorganization of National Government.
Reorganization of Local Government.
The Social Philosophy of the New Deal.
The Minority Problem in a Democracy.
Constitutional Implications of the Recovery Program.
Problems of National Defense.

Economic Problems.

The Causes and Cure of Unemployment.
Laissez Faire versus State Planning.
Agriculture: Doles or Markets?
The Gold Standard or Managed Currencies.
Pros and Cons of Inflation.
Is America Self-Contained?
A National Transportation System.
Problems of National Defense.
Our Far Eastern Policy.
The Monroe Doctrine and Pan Americanism.
Fascism, Communism and Democracy.
National Security and International Cooperation.
The World Court.
The Development of the League of Nations.

American History.

The Influence of the Supreme Court on American History.
The Greatest Issue in American History Since the Civil War.
The Influence of Military Leaders on American History.
The Depressions of 1837, 1873, 1893 and 1929.

The essays will be judged by educational and civic leaders appointed by the central committee of the competition, upon the following points: Originality, factual accuracy, logical presentation, style and adequacy of treatment.

Division winners, to be selected by April 16, will be required to designate promptly the university scholarship for which they desire to compete. Between May 1 and 15, finals, which will include oral and written examinations and entertainment features, will be held on the campuses of the four cooperating universities to determine the five scholarship winners. Finals champions must meet entrance requirements of the institutions concerned before the scholarships will be available.

Secondary school principals within The Post competition area are invited to address enrollments or inquiries to Louise Proctor Engle, director of The Washington Post Scholarship Competition, The Washington Post, Washington, D. C.

6 Killed, 7 Hurt In Boiler Blast

Cotton Oil Plant Wrecked, Hertford, N. C., Rocked by Explosion.

Hertford, N. C., Jan. 13 (AP).—Explosion of a boiler in the Eastern Cotton Oil Co.'s plant here today killed six men, injured seven others and caused damage estimated by company officials at $100,000.

Trapped beneath bricks and timbers of the wrecked plant, the victims who were not killed outright were scalded to death as steam and boiling water coursed through the debris.

The explosion itself, coming shortly after the day force had relieved the night shift at the plant, shook Hertford, a town of 2,000 population, as if it were an earthquake. Bricks were hurled 200 yards and debris rained on nearby houses.

J. C. Wilder, plant engineer, and five Negroes, Salister Wilson, John Wright, McKinley Forehand, George Broady, jr., and Oscar Eason, were killed.

Company officials advanced the theories that the explosion was caused by a bursting pipe in the boiler or by cold water being turned into the heated boiler. Twenty-five workmen were in the plant at the time of the explosion.

Two of the injured, Virgil Stewart and Henry Brickhouse, said the blast threw them through the windows of the press room adjoining the boiler room. Both escaped with cuts and bruises.

Foster, Composer, Gets $500,000 Monument

Pittsburgh, Jan. 13 (AP).—They will start building the $500,000 memorial to the composer of "Old Folks at Home" in the spring.

The shrine to perpetuate the memory of Stephen Collins Foster will be erected in the shadow of the 42-story cathedral of learning, University of Pittsburgh's contribution to modern educational architecture.

French Plan Protest On Reich Trade Bar

Paris, Jan. 13 (AP).—The French government was considering tonight a protest against new German import quotas affecting French products to the extent of $10,000,000.

Frank "astonishment" at Berlin's retaliation to newly announced French quotas was admitted in official circles, where the belief was expressed that the Nazis were "miffed" because the United States and England had been accorded preferential treatment in the French quota policy.

This made-in-a-moment
VAPOR-TENT
is the fastest way I know to break up
COLDS

IN the center of a folded handkerchief, just put a little Vapex. Now hold this over your nose, and breathe in deeply.

In this simple way, you make a scientific Vapor-Tent that sends powerful medication straight to the "core" of your cold. Only a VAPOR can reach the hidden cold-infected passages.

Vapex releases a triple-action vapor that soothes and normalizes as it penetrates. The clogged-up nasal passages are instantly cleared; sneezing, sniffling, eye-watering quickly stopped. You help Nature throw off your cold, and ward off coughs.

Only the chemists who discovered Vapex, know its formula. That's why Vapex cannot be duplicated by any of the 75 imitations! Get a bottle of real VAPEX from your druggist and know what it's like to be free from cold suffering. An application costs but half a cent.

NEW FORD V·8 for 1934

The Most Economical Ford Car Ever Built

ALWAYS, the main purpose of the Ford Motor Company has been to provide the most dependable, most satisfactory transportation at the lowest possible price. The New Ford V-8 for 1934 is no exception. It is the most economical Ford ever built. At the same time it is the most powerful, the fastest, the most dependable.

An eight-cylinder car can be inexpensive to operate. The Ford V-8 for 1933 proved this! Millions of miles in actual service, and the unsolicited letters of thousands of V-8 owners, leave no room for dispute on that point. And now—a better Ford V-8 than ever. With more speed and power, faster acceleration, quicker starting in cold weather, and more miles per gallon because of the new dual carburetor, with a dual intake manifold.

Low cost in the New Ford car doesn't stop with fuel and oil economy. It goes farther than that and includes freedom from repairs; the low cost of Ford parts and service; high re-sale value. Economy is only one feature of the New Ford V-8 for 1934. There's greater beauty and riding comfort and new Clear-vision Ventilation system that prevents drafts and has no exterior parts to obstruct your view.

Ride in the New Ford V-8 for 1934 now! It's the car of the year. A money-saver, a time-saver on the quick trips to town—and at the same time a roomy, stylish and most dependable family car.

OUTSTANDING IMPROVEMENTS IN THE NEW FORD V·8

BETTER PERFORMANCE. Greater power, new speed, quicker acceleration, smoother performance, more miles per gallon, especially at higher speeds, and quicker starting in cold weather—all these result from the new dual carburetor and dual intake manifold. New waterline thermostats enable the engine to warm up more quickly and to maintain an efficient operating temperature. Added engine refinements reduce oil consumption and maintenance costs.

NEW VENTILATION SYSTEM permits clear vision, prevents drafts and provides desired amount of fresh air in any weather. Individual control for front and rear side windows. When ventilation is desired the window glass is raised to the top. Then the handle is given an additional half-turn. This slides the glass back horizontally to form a narrow slot. Through this slot air is drawn out by the forward motion of the car.

This simple ventilation system maintains complete draft-free circulation and insures passenger comfort. No fogging of windshield or windows in cold or stormy weather.

Both the windshield and the adjustable cowl ventilator in the Ford V-8 can be opened to supply additional air needed for comfortable warm-weather driving. This is an advantage worth remembering.

DISTINCTIVE NEW APPEARANCE enhanced by the newly designed chromium-plated radiator shell and grille, new hood louvres, new hub caps.

Interiors are attractive, with new tufted upholstery, new mouldings, new cove-type headlining, new instrument panel, new arm rests, new hardware. Swivel-type sun visors in De Luxe bodies prevent glare from front or side.

FENDERS IN COLOR. Fenders on all De Luxe Ford cars for 1934 are finished in color to harmonize with body colors. Wheel colors are optional.

GREATER RIDING COMFORT results from increased spring flexibility. The spring leaves are newly designed for quieter and easier action. Shock absorbers are improved. Seat cushions are deeper, with new, softer springs. New type, individual bucket seats provide increased comfort for front-seat passengers in the Tudor Sedan. Adding to comfort is the new driving ease of the 15-to-1 steering gear ratio.

David Lamar, Market "Wolf," Dies in Secrecy

Familiar Figure in Capital; His Aura of Mystery Clings to End.

New York, Jan. 13 (AP).—The mysterious stock market operations of the "Wolf of Wall Street" have been ended by death.

The body of David Lamar, 65, whose activities in finance—oftentimes shady—gained him this sobriquet years ago, was found dead today in a hotel room he engaged eight days ago.

Lamar had been dead about 24 hours.

The aura of secrecy about his last days rivaled many of the incidents in his career in stocks.

Hotel officials recalled nothing of his stay. There had been no calls from his room for two days. The manager went to the room today, forced the door and found Lamar dead on the floor, clad in a nightshirt.

Examinations indicated his death was caused by heart disease. A drug-store clerk recalled that a man answering Lamar's description had frequently purchased medicine to ease heart pains.

In 1925, when Lamar was 57, he married, in Connecticut, Edna French, an actress, who then was 21.

Lamar, in the clutches of the law numerous times, was not known to persons of prominence in Wall Street. His operations received publicity generally only when a warrant was issued, charging him with larceny or swindling.

In the financial circles that knew him only as a mysterious figure, he was regarded as a "market scalper," whose operations were petty in nature. Lamar's police record was long.

Indicted by U. S.

In World War days, he was indicted by the Federal Government for seeking to halt shipments of arms to allies, the specific charges being that he attempted to incite workers to strike in munitions plants in New Jersey. He was tried and sentenced to serve a year in jail.

Then began a game of hide and seek between Lamar and Federal agents. He jumped an appeal bond and fled to Mexico by airplane, subsequently surrendering himself and serving out the sentence in Trenton, N. J.

Early in the second decade he was indicted for impersonating a Representative in Congress in Washington. The Government said his plan was to get on the floor of Congress and make a speech to influence the price of steel. For this, he served two years in the Federal prison at Atlanta.

Lamar was a handsome man, tall and broad-shouldered, with graying hair. He had a pleasing personality.

Always "Beat the Rap."

In later years, Lamar was arrested frequently, but always refuted the charges. A year ago a Queens man charged him with mulcting $400 in a stock swindle. He was freed by a jury. A few months later another warrant charged Lamar with defrauding two men of $1,200 in negotiations to buy crude rubber and run the price up. Again he was freed.

After an investigation by the attorney general of New York, dealing with sales of stock in the Consolidated Distributors, Inc., Lamar was enjoined by the State Supreme Court from participating in further transactions of the stock. The injunction also applied to the stock firm of Ayres, Wright & Co., in which it was said Lamar had an interest.

Lamar's first wife, Marie Anderson, who divorced him in 1924, died several months ago, the lawyer said. His second wife, Mrs. Edna French Lamar, is somewhere in New York, while a daughter, Dorothy, is believed to be in Pittsfield.

Silver Spring Library Displays Horsfall's Art

The Silver Spring Public Library will have on display all this week oil paintings by R. Bruce Horsfall, art editor of the American Nature Association. Mr. Horsfall is noted for depicting bird and animal life.

The teachers and pupils of Silver Spring public and parochial schools have been invited to view the exhibit. The library announces special hours for the exhibit as follows: Monday, Wednesday, and Friday afternoons, from 1 to 4 o'clock, and 7 to 9 p. m. Wednesday. The library will be open as usual Tuesday and Thursday from 2:30 to 4:30 p. m., and Monday and Friday from 7 to 8:30 p. m.

Masonic Officers' Unit Elects Mrs. Jean Lewis

Mrs. Jean Lewis, of Kensington, was elected president of the Past Matrons and Past Patrons Association of Montgomery County at a meeting in the Masonic Temple at Silver Spring. Other officers are George J. Stevens, Bethesda, vice president; Mrs. Helen Selby, Gaithersburg, secretary; Curtis Ward, Rockville, treasurer, and Roy P. Frey, Silver Spring, marshal.

Past matrons and past patrons of 1933 were initiated, with this year's matrons and patrons conducting the ceremonies. State officers were guests.

Two Sail to Attend German Debt Parley

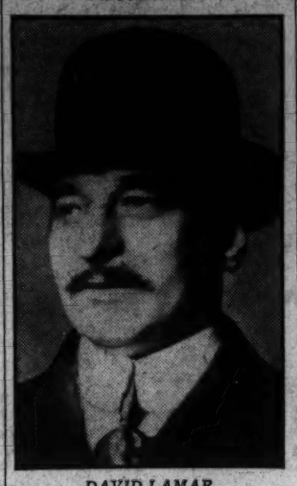
New York, Jan. 13 (AP).—Laird Bell, of Chicago, vice president of the newly formed Foreign Bondholders Protective Council, and John Foster Dulles, of New York, sailed for Berlin today to attend a session of the long-term German debt conference.

Dulles is accompanying Bell as representative of American investment houses which issue German bonds.

Minstrel for Bladensburg.

A minstrel show will be given by the Ladies Auxiliary of the Prince Georges County Volunteer Firemen's Association February 21 in the Bladensburg firehouse.

Dies Alone



DAVID LAMAR, long known as the "Wolf of Wall Street," who yesterday was found dead in a New York hotel room. "The Wolf" died—as he lived—alone.

Government Seeks Price Relief in Codes

Deficit - Ridden Agencies Move to Escape Sharp Increases.

of paper corresponding to bid numbers are inserted. The capsules are shaken up in an old tobacco humidor. The number of the winning bidder for several thousand tons of steel ship plates is drawn by some civilian caller who may be buttonholed on the spot for this small patriotic duty.

Bids Investigated.

Recently the Department of Commerce, seeking steel for a small lighthouse project on the Pacific Coast, received a dozen identical bids. They were turned over to the Department of Justice for investigation as to possible collusion. The purchasing agent of the Government Printing Office, protesting against bids of paper manufacturers which were alike down to the last penny, asserted in the NRA hearings the Government was being "held up."

Complaints of these public agencies take two forms. One is over the lack of competition in price offers. The other is that under some 200 codes now in effect, no differentiation is made between public tax-supported bodies and smaller commercial buyers. Both are subjected to the some trade practice restrictions.

Charles Osborn, Virginia State purchasing agent, filed a complaint with NRA alleging that between April and October, price increases on State purchases included the following: Flour, 35 per cent; lard, 19 per cent; tea, 64 per cent; hominy, 60 per cent; rice, 59 per cent; navy beans, 68 per cent; lima beans, 49 per cent; corn meal, 68 per cent. Virginia faces a deficit of more than $2,000,000.

Maryland Reports Rises.

The central State purchasing bureau of Maryland reported price increases, including cement, 23 per cent; motor oil, 36 per cent; steel pipe, 36 per cent, and galvanized pipe, 32 per cent. Its tabulation, showing the decline of competitive bidding, showed that of the offers submitted, figures were the same in a large number of cases. Some typical instances were lime, 16 out of 17 were identical; steel pipe, 12 out of 14; galvanized pipe, 12 out of 14; wrought iron, 10 out of 14. All 15 bids for cement and the same number for fiber wall board were identical.

J. W. Nicholson, purchasing agent for the City of Milwaukee, reported to NRA that local NRA administration in his city had called all industries, jobbers and dealers together and told them it would be necessary for them to agree on uniform prices, and that anyone who cut below them would be fined. He said nine identical bids for armored cable were submitted with prices 62 per cent higher than those of the year before. He said he discovered all bids were prepared by one accountant. Five bids for conduits were identical, although plants of some bidders were located nearby, and others in Ohio and New York. This case, which came up before the codes went into effect, was submitted to the Federal Trade Commission, Nicholson said.

Printing Quotations Same.

John N. Edy, city manager for Dallas, Tex., reported to NRA that interpretation of the codes had practically destroyed all benefits of the competitive bidding system there. Of 50 printing shops on the city's list, all had their prices figured at a central office and quotations were uniform to the penny, he reported.

California's State purchasing agent reported that jackhammer drill prices jumped from $170 to $190 over October. Identical tractor bids were at prices higher, he said, than ordinary prices to the farm trade.

Donald Richberg, general NRA counsel, said during the price inquiry that if NRA policies have been responsible for improper price fixing, or if combinations operating under codes had engaged in improper price controls, NRA would undertake to correct such practices.

Some NRA officials emphasized that in studying price increase comparisons, it should be borne in mind that until last summer many articles were being sold at distress figures. Often they went below cost even on the lower wage scales of the pre-NRA period.

Preferences Argued.

Arguments for preferential treatment for Government agencies are mainly that they are large quantity purchasers, that sale expense is low, that the purchases are not made for profit and that it is against public policy to subject governmental bodies to extra financial strain.

New York State is one of the hardest hit by abolition of special discounts under the codes, which make no differentiation as against commercial purchasers. Former discounts of 25 to 40 per cent on office furniture, NRA was informed, have been cut to a maximum of 15 per cent. It was alleged that New York State is paying 60 per cent more for desks than last year, and 45 per cent more for files. The added budget load from this was estimated at $200,000 to $250,000 a year.

Elimination of automobile discounts will cost the State $125,900 a year, it was estimated. Total losses from abandoned discounts will reach $750,000 a year, the State purchasing office estimated.

Stable Dollar Parley Called By President

Parade of Experts Strain at Leash to Propound Mone Panaceas.

ble" the reserve banks should be permitted to hold their gold when the Government has commanded every individual in the Nation to surrender his gold.

The President's declaration that he possessed the power to take over the reserve system gold immediately was interpreted as indicating Mr. Roosevelt was preparing for revaluation of the dollar. If he reduced by one-half the gold content of the dollar, the Treasury would make a profit of $3,600,000,000.

Capitol Hill, however, was not sure that the President would revalue the dollar in the near future. One of the prominent members of the easy money bloc in the Senate said he understood the President would not order revaluation of the dollar until the Administration's spending program was further advanced, since such action would have the practical effect of reducing the purchasing power of all unexpended appropriations.

Advantage Conceded.

Whether this member of the Senate correctly understands the President's intentions or not, it is conceded that the Government will have an advantage if it can borrow and spend dollars with a purchasing power higher than the dollars which will be used to repay such loans.

The feeling exists among observers here that a step of some importance in the monetary field is imminent. This feeling is based on the fact that President Roosevelt has had several conferences with his monetary and legal advisers, and the latter have been unusually secretive—exactly what happened for several days prior to anouncement of the silver purchase policy.

Mr. Roosevelt conferred yesterday with Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., Attorney-General Homer S. Cummings and several Treasury technicians. There was nothing to indicate that an announcement might be made today or for several days.

The subject of these conferences may be the seizure of the Federal Reserve gold. In some quarters, speculation turned to some new silver step, based chiefly on the knowledge that the silver blocs in Congress are dissatisfied with the program to purchase newly-mined silver at the equivalent of 64½ cents an ounce, yet appear cheerful since several of their number recently visited the President.

Two Steps Proposed.

In fact, members of the silver blocs in both House and Senate insist that President Roosevelt proposes to do "something more for silver." Authorizing coinage of all silver in the country and purchase of a stock of silver bullion to be used as a metallic reserve for a currency issue are two steps that have been proposed.

Incidentally, despite the higher prices for gold prevailing since the end of last August, production of the gold metal decreased last year, the Director of the Mint reported. The 1933 gold production totaled 2,435,091 ounces valued, on the basis of the statutory price of $20.67 an ounce, at $50,337,800, or $288,200 less than the value of newly mined gold in 1932.

Silver production also decreased. Production last year totaled 22,141,130 ounces, which at the average New York price of 34.5 cents an ounce, had a value of $7,638,690. The drop in production from 1932 was 1,839,643 ounces. The Administration's silver plan, however, is expected to increase materially the 1934 silver production.

Young Republicans To Hold Card Party

Montgomey County Club's Affair on Friday.

A card party and dance under auspices of Young People's Republican Club of Montgomery County, Md., will be held next Friday at the Manor Club, near Norbeck, Md.

William T. Allen, of Chevy Chase, heads the committee on arrangements. Other members are Miss Rose Dawson, Walter Dawson, Buell M. Gardner, of Rockville; Paul Coughlin, Sidney M. Oliver, Mrs. Flieshell, Mrs. Frances Coughlin, of Silver Spring; Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Long, of Alta Vista, and Miss Josephine Stevens and Ross R. Guthrie, of Chevy Chase.

The patrons are Mrs. Karl W. Corby and Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor, both of Rockville Pike, and Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman and Mrs. Eugene Stevens, of Chevy Chase.

Ready readers await the offers in Post Classified Ads, the first thing in the morning.

Card Parties Will Aid Silver Spring Charities

Since Roll Call funds of the Silver Spring branch of the Montgomery County Chapter of the American Red Cross are inadequate to carry out the budget for welfare work, the group has decided to ask each active member to give a private benefit card party.

Mrs. William Wight, chairman of the branch, has appointed this nominating committee to select a slate of officers: Mrs. Ralph A. Wells, chairman; Mrs. H. H. Howlett, Mrs. H. J. Halstrick, Mrs. James Reside, Mrs. George McCeney, Mrs. Charles Gebhardt and Mrs. James J. Hanan.

P.-T. A. at Silver Spring Gives Luncheon Tuesday

The Parent-Teacher Association of St. Michael's Parish School, Silver Spring, will give a luncheon from 12 to 2 p. m., Tuesday in St. Michael's Church Hall. It is the first of a series of monthly luncheons for the benefit of the school. Mrs. E. M. Barry is president of the association.

College Park Club Hears of Indians

The Progress Club of College Park was entertained recently with an illustrated lecture by Miss Evelyn Pierce, secretary to the director of Indian Education, Indian Bureau, who talked on "Education of the Indian by the U. S. Government."

Hostesses for the meeting, which was held at the home of Mrs. W. E. Claflin, were Mrs. R. P. Thomas, Mrs. Olive Hendricks, Mrs. C. L. Everson, Mrs. John H. Holst, Mrs. R. A. Wiley and Mrs. M. A. Pyle.

The club will hold an open meeting February 14 in the form of a silver tea at the Hyattsville home of Mrs. R. A. Pearson, wife of the president of the University of Maryland. Proceeds will go to the county scholarship fund.

Legion Announces Dance.

Arlington Post of the American Legion at Clarendon, Va., will give a dance at Odd Fellows Hall in Clarendon next Saturday.

The Scholarship Competition.

One of the notable educational developments of recent years has been an increasingly close cooperation between outstanding newspapers on the one hand, and leading colleges and universities on the other. It is illustrated, among other ways, by the extent to which the academician is called upon to write newspaper articles in the field of his specialization, and by the development of schools of journalism as a part of the curriculum of many institutes of higher learning.

As a contribution to this important field of collaboration this newspaper announces today the inauguration of a competition, open to senior students in some 200 schools of Washington and vicinity, the winners of which will receive four-year tuition scholarships at local universities. The undertaking has already aroused widespread commendation in local educational circles. It should serve to emphasize the joint interest of Washington's universities and The Washington Post in the application of expert knowledge to the solution of the many complicated issues of the times in which we live.

Subsidized Wheat Exports.

Nearly 10,000,000 bushels of wheat have been exported by the Pacific Northwest Emergency Export Association, an agency of the AAA, at a cost of 21 cents per bushel to the Federal Treasury. This wheat was purchased in the Pacific Northwest at domestic prices and sold to China, Japan, Holland and several other countries at prices near the world level. The AAA expected to lose money on the venture. It was undertaken to relieve the Northwest growers from the effects of a large surplus that could not be moved abroad without a Government subsidy.

Because of heavy transportation costs between the Pacific Coast and Eastern centers of population Washington, Oregon and Montana must either export wheat or allow it to accumulate into a demoralizing surplus. The effect of the export subsidy for this region has been to relieve pressure upon prices and to make storage space available for last year's crop. What part it will play in the future development of wheat exports remains to be seen.

Almost no American wheat is moving abroad without the aid of this subsidy. Wheat prices here have been raised about 19 cents above the world market prices—sufficient to cut off foreign demand for our wheat, except limited quantities of special grades. It appears that the United States will be able to use its full export quota of 47,000,000 bushels, as fixed by the World Wheat Conference, only through the subsidization of foreign shipments.

A large part of the wheat exported under direction of the AAA has gone to China. Uncle Sam lent China money to buy our wheat and is now selling this staple commodity to the Nanking government at 21 cents per bushel less than he pays for it in the domestic market. These transactions afford a graphic illustration of the difficulties encountered in trying to maintain an export market while keeping domestic prices above the world level. But the Administration no doubt believes that extreme measures are necessary to remove the surplus in some localities and to keep at least some export markets open.

Argentina is also subsidizing wheat exports. Other great wheat producing nations may be expected to do likewise if they find it necessary to get their exports on the world market. Indications are that the foreign market for American wheat will be closely restricted so long as the present policy of curtailing acreage to raise prices is followed.

Before The Senate.

The rapid advancement of the District liquor control bill in Congress is a tribute to the initiative of the Commissioners who drafted the original measure. Some changes were made in the bill by the House, and the Senate District Committee has added a few modifications, the most important of which are aimed at provisions written into the measure by the House, not by the Commissioners. As the bill goes to the floor of the Senate it is not substantially changed from its original form.

No good reason has been advanced for the elimination by the House of a section intended to forbid drinking on streets and highways, in parks and other public places, except licensed hotels, restaurants, &c. The Senate committee quite properly reinserted this restriction. Another provision of the original bill, giving the Commissioners authority to limit the total number of licenses to be issued might well be restored.

A new provision added by the Senate committee would forbid licenses to persons convicted during the last ten years under the Volstead act. This is a rather drastic restriction, but it is perhaps justified by the intent of eliminating bootleggers from the liquor business.

One improvement in the bill since it reached Capitol Hill is the elimination of the gallonage tax on light wines. Temperance should be encouraged by making the less cogent drinks cheaper than spirits of a high alcoholic content. Even on hard liquors the tax is moderate. There is no consolation for bootleggers in Commissioner Allen's forecast that "a quart of good liquor" will be legally purchasable in the District for $1.50 within the near future.

Dollar Devaluation?

The failure of the Administration's gold-purchase policy to advance commodity prices has for some time indicated that a new monetary move is in prospect. Belief in the imminency of devaluation is strengthened by President Roosevelt's significant announcement that the Treasury possesses the power to take over some $3,600,000,000 worth of gold held by the Federal Reserve Banks. There is, however, a complete absence of official information regarding the plans and purposes of the Administration and much of the current conjecture tends to confuse rather than enlighten.

For example, it has been rumored that a free gold market might be established in this country in connection with devaluation. There have also been reports that the RFC would expand its gold-buying activities to cover purchases of foreign as well as domestic gold in this market at posted prices.

A free gold market as generally understood, however, would imply unrestricted buying and selling of gold by individuals, as is now permitted in the London market. To enable such trading to be carried on, the Government would have to remove prohibitions upon hoarding, lift the gold embargo and, in short, reverse present policies designed to concentrate gold in the hands of the public authorities.

Obviously an expansion of the gold-buying program, permitting speculators to ship gold to this country and sell it for dollars to be exchanged for foreign currencies, would enable the RFC to make its gold-buying price effective and bring about a rapid decline in dollar exchange quotations. But such one-sided buying policy would have nothing to do with a free gold market and is not a necessary preliminary to devaluation or stabilization of the currency. Without either of these developments, the Administration might decide to devalue the dollar at a rate approximating its present exchange value or it might abruptly decree a 50 per cent devaluation.

Whatever the figure decided upon, the Government would find it necessary to sell as well as buy gold at the established price in terms of dollars—assuming that gold were not freely released for internal circulation—if it were desired to stabilize the exchange at the devaluation level. With our immense resources in gold, given the intrinsically strong position of the currency as tested by its domestic purchasing power, we can no doubt, at least temporarily, establish almost any rate for the dollar that we choose. The difficulty lies in the pressure that would be exerted upon the exchange values of other currencies if the United States should stabilize at a rate lower than justified by the level of domestic prices. We might in that case find that we had brought about a general depression of the currencies of other nations, neutralizing the effect of dollar depreciation in international dealings.

However, many of the most enthusiastic advocates of immediate devaluation, especially those who are pressing for a 50 per cent reduction in the gold value of the dollar, are primarily interested in obtaining for the Government the profits accruing from a revaluation of the gold held by the Federal Reserve Banks. They care little about the effect of such action upon the external value of the currency. What they desire is to put the Treasury in possession of gold which, if revalued, would yield profits of several billion dollars.

With these funds in its possession, the Government would be in position either to spend the large sums involved, or to use them to pay off debt maturities. But the effect of such policy upon domestic price levels would be unpredictable, because of the many contrary influences which are currently at work.

A Shorter Working Week.

Gen. Johnson says that "eventually the whole country has got to come to a shorter working week, if the unemployed are to be absorbed. If business picks up," he adds, "this can be done."

The statement seems somewhat illogical, following as it does immediately upon an announcement that the automobile code has been modified to permit working time to be raised from 35 to 40 hours per week. However, the apparent contradiction between practice and profession probably can be reconciled in view of Gen. Johnson's insistence that industrial improvement must precede the hoped-for reduction in working hours. This reservation is equivalent to conceding that the length of the working week must be accommodated to the special conditions prevailing in codified industries.

Hence it is apparent that Gen. Johnson differs from those representatives of organized labor who are pushing plans for the immediate introduction of a radically shorter working week, regardless of the effect upon employing industries. On the other hand, he apparently shares the belief that a shorter working week is the only feasible remedy for chronic unemployment.

Unfortunately this defeatist doctrine is constantly preached. Advocates of a progressive shortening of working time state unequivocally that unemployment is a social evil which can only be eliminated by dividing the number of potential workers into the number of available working hours. Furthermore, when they carry out their depressing examples in long division, they are apt to assume that the number of hours of labor to be divided among the workers is a fixed total.

Advocates of the shorter working week fail to allow for the possibility of an expansion of employment opportunities with better times. They are consistently gloomy, alleging that the improvement of labor-saving devices will eliminate workers, despite an expansion of output. They have no faith in the ability of mankind to devise new kinds of economic activity and provide more fully for the satisfaction of social wants. Hence, they argue, everybody must work fewer and fewer hours hereafter, if the unemployed are to be absorbed into industry.

This defeatist attitude, if logically followed out, would prevent society from going forward to full enjoyment of the benefits which technical progress offers us.

The Psychology Of Peace.

More than 200,000 residents of New York signed their names in the great book of the World Peaceways organization while it was on exhibit in that city. Thousands more will register their abhorrence of war when the book comes to Washington this week in connection with the conference of the National Committee on the Cause and Cure of War. The objective of the Peaceways organization is to obtain 1,000,000 signatures before this unique volume is forwarded to Geneva as an emblem of America's desire for peace. But there is no reason why these peace workers should not obtain many million signatures, in every country, if they cared to furnish enough books to contain them all.

Peace sentiment is predominant among the rank and file of people everywhere. It is true, of course, that those who talk knowingly of "inevitable" conflicts are more articulate than the peace-loving masses. But the attitude of the great majority of people throughout the world is not open to question. By affording an opportunity for an expression of this powerful opposition to the "war racket," Peaceways is helping to mobilize the positive factors that tend to elevate reason above madness in the adjustment of international difficulties.

It would be idle to deny that the nations are confronted by formidable problems of character similar to those which in the past have led to innumerable wars. But every thoughtful observer is aware of the fact that our last indulgence in mass slaughter did little to solve the problems of 1914. Even more critical issues have arisen because of that war. In the light of recent history it is worse than inane to look upon war as a practical solution of any international dilemma.

Under these conditions the positive ideal of peace can not be too frequently or too cogently emphasized. Talk about war and preparations for war tend to make a constant possibility "inevitable." There is urgent need throughout the world today for the mobilization of peace sentiment to counteract the rumblings of belligerency. After all, disarmament of the heart and the mind is the first prerequisite for world peace.

All Kinds Of Science.

The most recent step in the rapprochement of government and science is the organization of a committee by the Science Advisory Board to serve as a sort of secondary "brains trust" to the President. The board itself was created by executive order last July. Through its special committee scientific data and advice on many subjects will be carried to the President and the executive departments.

It will be interesting to watch the development of this relationship. Organized scientific agencies may render invaluable service to the Government. There is a vast difference, however, between acceptance of unbiased and seasoned advice from scientific groups and the selection of individual advisers from the field of science with a view to obtaining academic support for policies already adopted. A great variety of opinion may be obtained on most subjects in scientific as well as in business or political fields. If the counsel to be offered Government officials by this special committee is to be a consensus of specialized thought it will stand out in emphatic contrast to the sharp conflict of technical opinion on, for instance, our present monetary policy.

Closer contacts between theoretical and practical knowledge in handling the problems of government are much to be desired. But no Administration can safely assume that the indorsement of any particular theory indicates in itself the establishment of scientific policies.

Mile Posts

A Parade of the Past From the Files of The Post.

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY.

10,000,000 JAPANESE were hungry because of famine in the north and earthquakes in the south of the islands.

IN A MESSAGE to the South Carolina Legislature Gov. Cole Blease aired his views of public figures. Josephus Daniels, he said, was a small man who did not deserve his office as Secretary of the Navy.

WOODROW WILSON told his Cabinet his program on trust legislation. He proposed to strengthen the antitrust laws, prohibit interlocking directorates, establish a method of fixing personal guilt for violations and establish a trade commission.

REPRESENTATIVE OSCAR UNDERWOOD, Democratic leader, predicted a trade boom that would "put panic preachers to shame."

TEN YEARS AGO TODAY.

HOMER S. CUMMINGS, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, declared William G. McAdoo was the logical candidate for the Presidency.

THE NET public debt of the United States was fixed at $283 per capita, against $70 in 1912.

WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN urged the name of A. A. Murphree, president of the University of Florida, for the Presidency. Dr. Murphree and the country were surprised.

MISTINGUETT, WITH the "million dollar legs," made her bow to Washington and The Post said there was a "riot along the Potomac."

Trees on the Mall.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: May I add my protest to those already printed in the columns of your paper against the destruction of those wonderful trees on the Mall which I had thought saved.

Many of the residents here in the District have, in addition to their pride in Washington as the Nation's Capital, the Federal City, a more intimate feeling—the love and pride of their native home; they have grown up, and some grown old, in the shade and beauty of these gracious trees, the glorious atmosphere of buildings associated with national heroes and historic events—so many of them, trees and buildings—beauty and glory—already sacrificed to so-called progress—to make way for greater and greater cavalcades of on-rushing, unseeing motorists.

It is not right that men, to whom Washington is solely the Nation's Capital, whose residence here is often no more than the term of the Administration, who have not the pride and love of the native Washingtonian—and who do not pay taxes here—but have a vote back home—should come among us and despoil the beauty of our home city.

The Park and Planning Commission Mall drawings are, of course, most attractive—on paper—but like paper profits, may not materialize—nature may take a hand. (Newly planted trees on streets of heavy motor traffic, often do not live and seldom seem to thrive.) At best it would be long and weary years, of torrid heat and bleak winds along an unshaded thoroughfare—unbeautiful and uncomfortable—before the Mall would again approach in gracious beauty and towering shade of living green, so dear to our hearts, the loveliness of today.

MAUD S. ADAMS.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: When the present beauty-destroying commission gets through with its "beautification" of the Mall I hope it will not overlook the south lawn of the White House. The "uneducated" people of Washington are permitting several venerable and gracious old shade trees to linger there obstructing space which I am sure the Park and Planning Commission feels could be more profitably devoted to another wide road for speeding up traffic. These efficient and single-minded gentlemen, products of a machine age, seemed to have found out only one thing, that a straight line is the shortest distance between two points, while the rest of us still so old fogyish prefer a curved line as the loveliest. Since we are now to have two Constitution avenues, let us by all means have three.

A PERMANENT RESIDENT.

Trouble in the East.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The letter in The Post of January 4 titled "A Correspondent Looks for the Worst in the East" could as consistently be titled "A Correspondent Warns of the Impending Crisis in the Far East."

Long ago I recollect a cartoon reproduced from a Tokyo paper representing the Stars and Stripes sinking in the broad Pacific and the sun flag of Japan triumphantly rising there.

This letter published in The Post from Mr. Chang January 4 is prophetic in its tone, wise in its deductions and full of food for thought, coming, I judge, from a gentleman who has good reason to know and mistrust a wily, evasive and resourceful power.

Mr. Chang has his ear to the ground, his eyes to the Far East and his mind upon the urgent need in this country of military preparedness. War, at any time is abhorrent, but let not this great country be caught in a state of unpreparedness in any of its military branches—air, land or water. A country is doomed when the people learn and the government does not.

H. MORRISON, JR.
Woodstock, Va.

Urging Support of the President.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Now, that substantial improvement in general conditions is unmistakable, it appears entirely reasonable to press for further expansion of the program which has effected that improvement. We should not be held back because the new prosperity differs in some respects from the disproportionate and unsound prosperity that has passed. The evils of a radical and rapacious capitalism can be uprooted only by the application, to the fullest possible extent, of the principles of social justice which the President has so rightly espoused. It can scarcely be conceived that anything less will be contemplated.

Common report indicates that the people sense the need of this expansion, and from this we judge that the public will not brook unnecessary or long-term compromises with opposing interests or conditions. There is danger in that contingency. But, happily, this possibility seems already discounted by the vision, resourcefulness, and courage of the President, and by the confidence of the masses in his leadership.

In view of all the facts, then, there arises a most impelling duty of standing solidly by the Administration program. There can be no question, in these momentous considerations, of preferment, of prejudice, or of artfully injected irrelevancies. There is only the one great national problem of continuing recovery or of returning ruin. There is reason for studied care, it is true. But once on a paved highway and sure of our course there certainly can be no reason for halting or turning back because of the lights and shadows ahead.

It was never less a platitude than now to say that no throne was ever set in a more intensive light than that which today makes the White House a lighthouse to the struggling peoples of the world. It can be as fittingly said that no leader of this Nation ever gave greater assurance of a destiny replete with the soundest and highest ideals of statesmanship than does our present leader. For these reasons there should be freely given sustained and prayerful support to Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

In Other Days.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: If the views of other days are to be considered, perhaps those expressed on the accompanying sheet will be regarded as pertinent.

WILLIAM J. BRENNAN.
San Francisco, Calif.

The Inclosure.

Savings and Loan Association vs. Tokepa, 20 Wall. 655 (1875). The opinion of the United States Supreme Court was rendered by Mr. Justice Miller, wherein he said:

"To lay with one hand the power of the Government on the property of the citizen, and with the other to bestow it upon favored individuals to aid private enterprises and build up private fortunes, is none the less a robbery because it is done under the forms of law and is called taxation. This is not legislation. It is a decree under legislative forms."

The Post Broadcast.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Postilion of January 9 was the best feature of the evening's program. The dialogue in the news offices was unique and dramatic. Congratulations.

FRANCIS DE SALES RYAN.

The Philippine Question.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: With all our other worries, the Philippine question is back. Either the present Congress must do something about the matter or else it must definitely go on record, for the time being, as evading a matter until another time.

The last Congress, the lamest lame duck Congress in the constitutional history of this country, did not do a good job in handling the Philippine problem. It must face that accusation, for the whole responsibility in the matter fell squarely on itself. President Hoover vetoed the bill, the press of the Nation was pretty solidly against it and that portion of American opinion, which did not have a special ax to grind, was against it as well, yet Congress insisted.

Congress passed an unjust measure and baited it with independence. The last Congress apparently judged that, baited with any kind of independence at all, the Filipinos would accept the scheme Congress offered. It did not turn out that way. Despite the bait, the Filipinos, under the leadership of that distinguished statesman, Manuel L. Quezon, saw the trap.

Let us be realists. That is to say, let us see things as they are. The problem is one that must be worked out, with the aid of time, in utter good faith between the United States and the Philippines.

The United States on its part has a large responsibility toward the Philippines and toward the world in its attitude on the Philippine question. If America does her duty by the Philippines she must not try to settle the issue on the basis of small trade advantages. The issue is vastly larger than that. It is also an international issue, involving the whole future of the Pacific.

TEDDY DE NOLASCO.

He Agrees With Mr. Ayers.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The letter of Grover Ayers in regard to the King's English is timely. You are entitled to thanks, from a suffering community, for its publication. He does not stress enough the ill effects of the "ain'ts" and "don't know nothin' nohows" which embellish some of the radio dramas. Amos and Andy may possibly be excused for their grossness of grammar by reason of the characters they depict, but some of the plain Bills get on our nerves, especially in view of the millions taxpayers spend to eradicate errors of speech from their children. It is a far cry from the days when one could go to the theater and hear our language enunciated and spoken in the most beautiful manner by Barrett and Booth. It was my good fortune to hear Lawrence Barrett often. He had a distinct effect on my speech and to this day I have inward creeps when I slur my English. I would like to read letters from others on this subject.

EMOLAS.

The Post's Financial News.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have received The Washington Post for December 31, 1933, containing a financial review for the year.

The whole paper shows an improvement in appearance over what used to be issued. But the bright spot is the financial section. Here a review of every financial subject, signed by men outstanding in their respective lines, is provided . . . In every respect your selection of matter, and its arrangement in the paper, far outclasses what our local papers had. Finally, there was a generous sprinkling of dignified advertisements throughout the pages which was quite noticeable.

Business men of Washington and vicinity have been shown they do not have to go farther than The Post for their financial information. My sincere congratulations on the work you are doing for The Post.

HARRY DARLINGTON.

Along the Potomac

With
Carlisle Bargeron

THOSE who deal with the mass mind have to be experts, of course, to be successful. They must know the formation of every molecule, its size and its exact relation to the other molecules. Particularly must they know the negative and affirmative compartments, just what dose of propaganda each will respond to. If they do not know all this they will get into a jam.

BARGERON.

History is replete with the failures of men who thought they were experts, who for a time had the crowd eating out of their hands and then through some slip, through some misunderstanding of a particular brain cell, caused the crowd to turn and chase them into oblivion.

* * * *

It is because of the highly specialized nature of mass mind experting, the opportunity for fame on the one hand and possibility of oblivion on the other, that I am following with considerable interest the work of Senator Black. Here is a man with considerable ability, quick of mind and persevering, and catapulted into prominence now by virtue of the Democrats having come into power.

It looks as though he is to succeed Mr. Pecora, the prosecutor of the Senate banking and high finance inquiry, as the Democrats' chief stirrer-up. By that I mean, the one to keep the country's mind focused on the misdeeds of the Republicans while the Democrats are putting through their program. It is a party service of no mean import, and undoubtedly if the senator carries on as well as he has, he will some time be made chairman of the Democratic senatorial campaign committee, or better still, a spellbinder at the next Democratic national convention. Both of these are awards of honor which the parties confer upon their worthy.

* * * *

Mr. Pecora's committee seems to be playing out in public interest, though the other day he did get a crowd by widely advertising that Mr. Edsel Ford was to testify. Personally, I have lost interest in the committee since the time a midget was flopped into Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan's lap. That was an ill-timed anticlimax insofar as holding my attention to the committee is concerned.

So Senator Black seems to have the way before him, the opportunity of taking the whole show.

But he must proceed gingerly, as I am sure any book on mass psychology will tell him, if, instead of success, harm is not to come to him.

* * * *

He has right now, indeed, a most delicate proposition to handle. The air mail hearings have brought out that Mr. Lindbergh received 25,000 shares of the stock of the Transcontinental Line, the one they call TAT, and that there was correspondence on the subject of how this should be handled for income tax purposes. The colonel has informed the committee he will be glad to tell it anything it wants to know about the business.

The point I am making is that the colonel's name has been injected into a senatorial fishing expedition. I do not mean to suggest that he has done anything wrong. I know nothing about it.

But what does the senator intend to do? Does he intend to call the colonel as a committee usually does when it gets a lead? Or, to put it another way, does he intend to leave the colonel's name hanging in the air?

There is a fine point of dealing with mass psychology involved. The colonel is one of the country's outstanding heroes, you know. Suppose the people should react against the committee's treatment of him, whatever it is. We have come to be almost as emotional as the French.

Now wouldn't it be something if the people all of a sudden were to say: "Now, that's going too far—to bring out Lindy's name. The Democrats are just persecutors; that's what they have been doing with all their disclosures, just persecuting—even Banker Wiggin."

The mass mind experts must remember that a people swing back and forth.

PAPAL CHAUFFEUR.

One of the strangest jobs in the world is that of Giovanni Politi, chauffeur to Pope Pius XI. He has five automobiles of four nationalities to drive around and the average time he drives them is half an hour a day, according to the Pathfinder. Occasionally the Pope journeys outside the gates of Vatican City to make a visit to his farm a few miles beyond the hills of Rome, but that trip takes only a few hours at the most. Except for the farm visits the farthest Politi drives within the Vatican is two miles, comprising a complete circuit of the Vatican gardens. His only passenger is the Pope, who, his chauffeur reveals, likes to ride with the top down.

The automobiles are of Italian, French, German, and American origin and of them all the Holy Father prefers the one which came from across the Atlantic.

ANOTHER HAZARD.

Now that the Congressional Record has been placed on a $1.50-per-month basis, we expect almost any of these fine mornings to be solicited for a subscription by some enterprising young chap with a story that he is working his way through the Electoral College, says the Los Angeles Times.

THEY ALWAYS DO.

A recent Chinese marriage followed an engagement that lasted for 53 years, says the New York Sun, yet one of the newlyweds will probably find out something new about the other within the first few weeks of marriage.

Mortgage Moratorium Decision Reveals Court as New Deal Arbiter, Press Finds

Christian Science Monitor Cautions on "Flexing" of Constitution.

Individual Rights Are Held Subordinate to the General Welfare.

Editorial comment in leading newspapers of the country uniformly approve the history-making decision of the United States Supreme Court upholding the Minnesota mortgage moratorium law, but is cautious about inferring from this "flexing" of the Constitution, as the Christian Science Monitor calls it, that the court is prepared to put its stamp of approval upon all of the New Deal legislation projected in the name of "emergency."

Nevertheless the editorial view, widely expressed, is that the court, by the narrow margin of its five-to-four verdict, was disclosing the attitude, the frame of mind, with which it may be expected to consider those questions, yet to come before it for decision, involving fundamental constitutional issues raised by the New Deal—a disposition to find in the Constitution authority for temporary emergency legislation and executive acts which promote the general welfare perhaps at the expense of "individual rights."

This reveals the court as an arbiter, as it has long been, of social and economic, as well as of juristic questions.

Following are quotations of editorial comment in some of the country's leading newspapers, expressing the opinions generally reflected in the press of the Nation:

New York Times—* * * in the principles laid down in the prevailing opinion, written by Chief Justice Hughes, it is believed that a clear indication is given what the attitude of the Supreme Court will be when various acts of Congress under the recovery program come up for adjudication. * * *

In such sharp divisions of constitutional interpretation as appear in the decision read by Chief Justice Hughes, and the dissent written by Mr. Justice Sutherland, it is hard for the layman to grasp all the fine distinctions that are made. Both judges agree that an emergency creates no new power of government. It does, however, warrant an extension of existing powers. The sole question is how their exercise is to be reconciled with constitutional limitations. * * * If a destructive hurricane warrants a temporary stretching of governmental power, so may an economic crisis. Emphasis is laid on the fact that such legislation as that in Minnesota had a "proper occasion," was directed toward a "legitimate end," laid down conditions which "do not appear to be unreasonable," and was "temporary in operation." It is "limited to the exigency which called it forth."

New York Herald Tribune—* * * What has been decided is simply that homes being homes, and a great economic emergency prevailing, it was constituional for the State of Minnesota to give mortgagors a better chance to save their homes from foreclosure than was granted by the terms of their contracts. Here was, concededly, what would have been an impairment of contract such as the Consitution forbids. But the broad, if vague, police powers of the State necessarily modify the obligations of private contract, and here was a case, in the view of the majority of the court, where the State could properly modify the terms of a mortgage in the interest of the general public.

The metaphysicis by which the Chief Justice proves that the power is not "created" by the emergency need not be taken too seriously. As a matter of effective logic the retort of Justice Sutherland will be preferred by many. But, hair-splitting aside, the whole decision is founded on the existence of a great emergency. True, the police power exists at all times. But it is applied to these particular facts only because an economic crisis makes them a matter of grave public concern.

Thus the first thing to be said of the decision is that it does not attempt to adjudicate beyond the depression. Applying the same principle to the National industrial recovery act, there is not the slightest hint of any revolutionary approach to the Constitution which might encourage the Tugwell group of advisers in their hope of establishing a permanently planned order of society directed from Washington.

New York Sun—Many radicals hasten to interpret the Supreme Court decision in the Blaisdell case as a victory not only for the particular piece of emergency legislation adopted by Minnesota but for all sorts of legislation which wears, honestly or otherwise, the emergency label. * * * But does the outcome of this celebrated case justify the optimism of those who believe that the Supreme Court will uphold all sorts of legislation adopted under the cloak of "emergency"? The States obviously have increased their legislative freedom to cope with parlous times, although we already had a taste of that in the tax exemption and rent laws of New York. But what of Federal legislation involving the constitutional rights of the individual? Mr. Dooley said that the Supreme Court follows the election returns, but Judge Cooley wrote that "a court or legislature which should allow a change in public sentiment to influence it in giving to a written constitution a construction not warranted by the intention of its founders would be justly charged with reckless disregard of official oath and public duty."

The high court will follow Cooley rather than Dooley, regardless of the prophets of a new day and a new National philosophy. It may be remembered, too, that the vote on the Blaisdell case was 5 to 4.

Brooklyn Eagle—Those who anticipate approval of the emergency national recovery measures by the court of last resort have reason to be heartened by the 5-to-4 decision of the Supreme Court sustaining the Minnesota mortgage moratorium law, though technically the ruling bears only on State rights—the freedom of a State government to meet an emergency without legalistic hampering. * * *

As between the two views we think the intelligent opinion of nonlegalistic Americans is as sharply divided as is the Supreme Court. Certainly many thinkers will hold that if the terms of the organic law are to be modified or reversed a convention and not Justice Hughes should produce the change. Yet the effect of this notable decision is to uphold a State in its effort to mitigate the consequences of a great depression which has created new precedents in all governments.

Philadelphia Public Ledger—Under whatever circumstances it was rendered, the United States Supreme Court's decision upholding the Minnesota mortgage moratorium law, would have possessed great importance.

But it derives special significance at this time because of its possible indication of the court's attitude toward the group of Federal measures instituted by the Administration for promoting recovery.

It is easy to read into Chief Justice Hughes' opinion things that are not there. * * * The issues raised by the NRA, the AAA and other emergency measures involve constitutional questions quite different from that just decided. They are related to the exercise of Federal, not State, powers, which have been challenged as invading States' rights. The arbitrary division of the Supreme Court based on the Minnesota decision, which labels five members as "liberals" and four as "conservatives," is far from infallible.

Baltimore Sun—* * * If the same liberal construction is applied when the court comes to consider the Federal statutes repudiating the gold clause and setting up the NRA and the AAA, those highly controversial enactments may also be validated. * * * The effect of such a holding is to introduce into the law in such matters a rule of reason where heretofore the Constitution has been rigidly construed. It may be argued with no little plausibility that such an interpretation unsettles the law—or the Constitution, as it happens to be here—and makes the rights of individuals dependent not so much on fixed rules, such as the minority of the Supreme Court sought to impose in this instance, as upon the whim of Legislatures and judges in each particular crisis. Whether the fluidity of the law, or the Constitution, is a good thing is a question over which two opposing schools of legal and constitutional thought have been arguing in this country for a century and a half. We do not propose to offer an extended answer to the question here.

But it may at least be pointed out that in each successive emergency period through which our country has passed the Supreme Court has been more inclined than at other periods to take the position it has taken in the Minnesota moratorium case. It may also be pointed out that this disposition on the part of the court has done more than anything else to make our Constitution a dynamic document, adaptable to the changing needs of every time. It is not necessary to agree with all the various emergency measures to perceive the importance of this process of adaptation, without which the power to take any measures whatsoever might lapse.

Newark News—The vital interests of the community are paramount. * * * Once more the Supreme Court has treated the Constitution as something alive and capable of being adapted to the needs of successive generations. The decision gives the Roosevelt Administration encouragement to proceed confidently with its recovery plans. * * *

Boston Transcript—The implications of this momentous decision are very far-reaching, both with respect to the integrity of the NRA program, if that characterization be sufficient, and to the rights of all governments in times of recognized emergency. Perhaps nothing in American jurisprudence has been held more sacred than the inviolability of contract, but the Supreme Court has decided that human interests shall take precedence. This theory forms the basis of the whole NRA conception; that a National emergency as great as war exists, and that the Constitution shall not be so construed as to prevent Government from exercising all proper powers that would promise relief. * * * This is very far from the issuance of a blanket charter to the NRA or any other governmental agency to do what it pleases in the name of emergency, but it does consolidate the power of Government to adopt such methods and practices as can be clearly justified by their purpose and their character.

Christian Science Monitor—Jefferson is reputed to have said after the Louisiana Purchase that he did not break the Constitution but that he bent it severely. The phrase may in fact belong to a later commentator, but it aptly describes flexings or stretchings that document has had to undergo on various occasions in the development of the United States from a few seaboard colonies to a continental empire.

Some believe that another such mutation has taken place or at least been indicated in the decision just given by the United States Supreme Court on the Minnesota home loan moratorium law. The five-to-four majority of the court at least has written extensive interpretations and qualifications into the constitutional prohibition against a State's impairing "the obligation of contract."

In its implications the ruling recalls the decisions of Marshall which built up Federalism on the doctrine of implied powers, or the test cases which confirmed the right to establish railroad rates as a regulation of interstate commerce.

* * * *

To what extent the price-raising efforts of the Roosevelt Administration may remove the reasons for relief by leniency remains to be seen. But it is worth noting that if it were found possible to establish the kind of dollar at which President Roosevelt says he aims—namely, one that will have the same debt-paying power from decade to decade—the occasion for most of the bitter controversies about the sanctity of contract would be removed.

It will not do, either, to take Monday's decision as a positive index of the opinion of the Supreme Court on questions yet to be submitted to it involving the constitutionality of legislation embodying the New Deal.

Detroit News—Again the Constitution of the United States as it grows and takes shape by Supreme Court interpretations, proves equal to the needs of the people. * * * As everyone knows, when the police power of a local commuity for any cause appears inadequate, there is no hesitancy on the part of the Government in establishing martial law during which not only the right of contract, but nearly all personal rights generally guarded with utmost zeal, are temporarily set aside.

It is generally conceded that during the past three or four years an economic condition has persisted which in many communities menaced peace and safety. In some cases open violence has broken out. These conditions are adjudged an emergency in which the right to suspend contracts temporarily is vindicated.

Omaha World-Herald—* * * The Minnesota decision applies, of course, to a State case. But the language of Chief Justice Hughes' opinion makes it clear that the principles upon which the court acted would apply as well to National cases. * * * The depression is a calamity far greater in scope, affecting intimately far more men and women and children, than the most dreadful fire, the most devastating flood, the most destructive earthquake. The depression struck at every home in the land. The temporary setting aside of mortgagees' rights (although not in any respect canceling them) was essential to preserve the fundamental rights of life and liberty and the pursuit of happiness. So the high court rules; so, it is indicated, it will continue to rule.

The result will mean greater confidence on the part of the Administration in continuing its own program—freely and frankly admitted to be an emergency one—until the depression is overcome and normal times return. When they do return, when there are no more enforced bank holidays, when credit and business and confidence are restored, then the normal relationship between contracting parties will also be restored.

Des Moines Register—* * * There are many constitutional questions about the New Deal that are yet unanswered. It is utterly impossible to forecast the answers to all of them, even with the cue that this first Supreme Court division on a significant issue gives us.

The court evidently, and properly, intends to maintain its position as guardian of the Constitution, "adjusting" its interpretations to new conditions in no careless or wholesale way. And that is well.

Topeka (Kans.) Capitol—* * * It amounts to saying that the Constitution is not an inflexible document. Interpretations at one time may differ from those at another time. Conditions change. Society is not static, but is a growing organism. A constitution that meets its needs must be able to be accommodated to conditions of the time. It is the greatest single achievement of the Supreme Court that it has succeeded largely in interpreting the language of the Constitution in such a way as to keep it abreast of a growing society in which life in the twentieth century is not the same as in the eighteenth.

(Norfolk) Virginian-Pilot—* * * The implications are unmistakable. The "public welfare" has risen above "individual rights." That has always been the assumption, the starting point and the foundation of the New Deal. It is now blessed—by the narrowest of margins, it is true, but still blessed—by the Supreme Court of the United States.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch—* * * Here, manifestly, are two honest and sincere positions, but the weight of the times is with the Chief Justice and the majority—Justice Brandeis, Stone, Roberts and Cardoza—and against the minority—Justices Sutherland, Van Devanter, McReynolds and Butler.

Pastor Starts Duties Tonight At Lynchburg

His Father Will Deliver Installation Sermon; Women Organize.

Lynchburg, Va., Jan. 13 (Spl.).—The Rev. James Sprunt will be installed as pastor of Westminster Presbyterian Church tomorrow evening.

His father, Dr. Alexander Sprunt, 33 years pastor of First Presbyterian Church, Savannah, Ga., will preach the installation sermon, and pastors of the other four Presbyterian churches here will assist.

The Billy Sunday Club here last month had 1,088 people to attend prayer services conducted by members assigned for such services. In these meetings there were 342 conversions reported to city churches and 164 requests for prayer. The club meets each Monday night at First Christian Church.

Elections in Loudoun.

Leesburg, Va., Jan. 13 (Spl.).—Section B Auxiliary of St. James' Episcopal Church has elected Mrs. George Ward, president; Mrs. G. Peyton Craighill, Mrs. William Smoot, of Waterford, and Mrs. R. T. Corbell, vice president; Miss Maria W. Harrison, treasurer, and Mrs. E. H. Heaton, custodian of the united offering.

Mrs. F. H. James was elected president of the Baptist Missionary Society at Purcellville for the coming year. Mrs. L. E. Otley was elected vice president, and Mrs. F. W. McComb, treasurer.

Margaret Yakey was elected president of the Girls' Auxiliary of the Baptist Church; Evelyn Emerick, vice president, and Harriet Reed, secretary.

Ralph Boring, community worker, will conduct a series of ten lessons beginning next Sunday night on "The Sermon on the Mount." The lessons will be held in the Goose Creek Meeting House at Lincoln.

Mission Officers Installed.

Fredericksburg, Va., Jan. 13 (Spl.).—Officers for 1934 were installed by the Woman's Missionary Society of the Methodist Church at its monthly meeting, at which several members received honorable mention for having been present at every meeting last year. Miss Frances Williams spoke on stewardship.

New officers installed by Miss Jessie Houch, 1934 president, included: Mrs. Margie Copenhaven and Mrs. J. F. Brown, vice presidents; treasurer, Mrs. Julian J. Garner; recording secretary, Mrs. C. D. Binns; corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. C. Clarke.

Superintendent of supplies, Mrs. H. D. Cunningham; superintendent of Christian relations, Mrs. C. W. Jones; superintendent of children's division, Miss Mabel King; superintendent of publicity, Mrs. C. D. Binns; superintendent of the World Outlook, Mrs. T. J. McGee; local corresponding secretary, Miss Margaret Janney; superintendent mission study, Mrs. A. P. Rowe; chairman spiritual life group, Mrs. H. S. Cunningham; chairman of the program committee, Mrs. H. D. Scott; chairman of music committee, Mrs. A. P. Rowe; chairman of refreshment committee, Mrs. J. D. Davis; chairman of surprise committee, Mrs. Ray C. Hopkins.

Pastors Name Leaders.

Westernport, Md., Jan. 13 (Spl.). The Rev. C. K. Welch, pastor of the United Brethren Church, was reelected president of the Tri-Towns Ministerial Association. The Rev. H. S. Myersly, pastor of St. John's Methodist Episcopal Church South, was named vice president, succeeding the Rev. A. J. Beeghly, who recently moved to Somerset, Pa. The Rev. Frank B. Herzel, pastor of Calvary Lutheran Church, was chosen secretary, and the Rev. Cecil Carter, pastor of the Baptist Church, treasurer.

Mission Group to Meet.

Wheeling, W. Va., Jan. 13 (Spl.). The executive committee of the West Virginia Synodical Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church will hold its midyear meeting Monday at the Wheeling Y. M. C. A.

Antigigging Rule Asked in Virginia

Shenandoah Group Also Seeks Dog Ban.

Staunton, Va., Jan. 13 (Spl.).—The Shenandoah Game and Game Fish Protective Association has adopted a resolution, which it will communicate to the State commission on game and inland fisheries, asking that the commission adapt regulations to stop gigging and netting in this State.

The association also advocates confinement of all dogs during the months of May, June, July and August, the breeding months for feathered game. It was explained that this regulation is now in effect in counties east of the Blue Ridge Mountains.

The State commission will be asked to stock all bass streams in Augusta County with small mouth bass. The association also asks that the dog license laws be more rigidly enforced, to increase State revenue and eliminate ownerless dogs which run at large and destroy game.

Herbert S. Kyle Heads Survey in West Virginia

Charleston, W. Va., Jan. 13 (Spl.). Appointment of Herbert S. Kyle, a Charleston architect, as State administrator in charge of the historic American buildings survey, is announced by the State Civil Works Administration.

Kyle will have 16 assistants. The survey will be made for the Federal Interior Department. Data on all historic structures in the State will be collected and filed in the Congressional Library in Washington.

Alienation Suit Asks $20,000.

Morgantown, W. Va., Jan. 13 (Spl.).—Asking $20,000 damages for the alleged alienation of her husband's affections, Mrs. Margaret Beabout, of Union district, Monongalia County, has sued Louise Kiger Steele, of Morgantown, in the Monongalia Circuit Court.

Culpeper Volunteers Boast Of Year Without Fire Loss

J. William Swan, reelected for the twelfth consecutive term as chief of the Culpeper (Va.) Volunteer Fire Company. He is shown standing by the silver cup awarded to his men for being the best appearing at the 1933 State Firemen's Convention at Harrisonburg. The Culpeper Municipal Band also attended the convention.

Culpeper, Va., Jan. 13 (Spl.).—That "no fire loss was sustained in the corporate limits of the town of Culpeper for the year 1933," was the outstanding statement in annual report of activities of the Culpeper Volunteer Fire Company given at a meeting last night.

J. William Swan was elected chief for the thirteenth consecutive term. Other officers are:

L. Cave Major, first assistant chief; Letcher Longerbeam, second assistant chief; Walter L. Roy, secretary; T. I. Martin, treasurer, and Jesse M. Yowell, captain of hose.

The company has an active membership of 41. Meetings are held monthly. Forty-nine calls were answered in the past year. Of these, 31 were in Culpeper County, 4 in Fauquier, 2 in Rappahannock and 1 in Madison and 11 in the town of Culpeper.

Schools for first aid have been held during the year.

The annual banquet to the fire company, sponsored by the company auxiliary, will be given Thursday to celebrate the founding of the organization. No salaries are paid in the company. It is said to be the only one in the State without paid members.

School Inaugurates Midyear Entrance

Washington College Sets Maryland Precedent.

Chestertown, Md., Jan. 13 (Spl.). An innovation in academic procedure among small Maryland colleges was announced today by President Gilbert Wilcox Mead, of Washington College, who said that next month freshmen students will be admitted in the middle of the school year, courses being rearranged to permit this departure from custom.

Some students thus may be able to graduate in three and one-half years instead of the customary four years. It is believed to be the first time such a plan has been sanctioned by any Maryland college. President Mead said a widespread demand from rural and urban centers for admission of students from high schools and other colleges induced the change.

The special group of students seeking mid-year entrance are those graduating from city high schools at midyear who want to enter the Eastern Shore college before next September; those who desire to transfer from other colleges now, and those who, because of financial difficulties, were unable to enter Washington College last September but whose economic condition has so much improved that they are able to start their college life now instead of waiting until next September.

Colleges to Mark Statesman's Birth

Roanoke Educator Named to Commission.

Roanoke, Va., Jan. 13 (Spl.).—Dr. Charles J. Smith, president of Roanoke College, will accept membership on a commission organized by Gov. John Garland Pollard at the suggestion of the New York Southern Society to commemorate the 150th anniversary of the birth of Zachary Taylor on November 24, he announced here.

Dr. Smith was notified of the appointment in a letter from Hugh Gordon Miller, chairman of the commission. Officers of the society believe the Virginian's exploits and life have been neglected by historians, and one purpose will be to sponsor ceremonies at various institutions of learning. Roanoke College may have such a ceremony honoring Taylor, it was said.

Dr. Francis P. Gaines, president of Washington and Lee University, Lexington, is another of the 36 commissioners.

New Assemblymen Await Committees

Few Shifts in Important Posts Expected.

Richmond, Jan. 13 (Spl.).—Forty-nine new members of the House of Delegates tonight awaited their committee assignments from Speaker J. Sinclair Brown.

Comparatively few changes in chairmanships of important committees were anticipated. Delegate John Q. Rhodes, of Louisa, was believed slated to succeed former Delegate W. B. Bruce, of Farmville, as head of the schools and colleges committee.

Reappointments considered likely included Wilbur C. Hall, of Leesburg, as chairman of the finance committee, and Ashton Dovell, of Williamsburg, as privileges and elections committee chairman.

Cheverly Council Adjourns.

The Cheverly, Md., mayor and council adjourned after reading the minutes Friday night out of respect for Dr. John Maloney, member of the council, whose young daughter, Rosemary, died recently.

Whalen Resigns His Welfare Post

Quits as Head of Group at Brentwood, Md.

Lawrence G. Whalen has resigned as president of the Brentwood (Md.) Welfare Association, it was learned yesterday.

He was long an active worker in the association and announcement of his resignation was met with regret by those who have served under him.

William N. Mahaffey, treasurer of the association, has reported a balance of $100 on hand. It was stated that demands for aid were much fewer than last year, which would indicate that many family heads have been provided work.

Radio Fans Meet Today in Staunton

Staunton, Va., Jan. 13 (Spl.).—Robert N. Eubank, chief operator of station WRVA, Richmond, and J. Frank Key, of Buena Vista, will be among those who address 100 Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina and Maryland radio amateurs here tomorrow.

The visitors will be the guests of the Staunton Amateur Radio Club. One feature of the gathering will be the meeting for the first time of a number of men who have been acquainted for many months through contacts over their wireless or short wave radio equipment.

R. L. Insko Addresses Alexandria Legion

Rappahannock Post, No. 125, American Legion, of Alexandria, served old-time Army "chow" at a recent meeting. Robert L. Insko, past vice-commander of the Department of Virginia, gave a talk on the State airplane membership drive, which ends January 31.

The constitution and by-laws of the post were adopted, providing the office of third vice commander. George S. Rice, former commander of the Alexandria Machine Gun Company, was elected to this post.

Trout Stocked in Loudoun.

Leesburg, Va., Jan. 13 (Spl.).—The Federal Bureau of Fisheries placed 250 trout in Big Spring, near here, this week for experimental purposes.

Leonardtown Citizens Attack CWA "Politics"

500 in Mass Meeting Claim Administrators Show Job Favoritism.

Leonardtown, Md., Jan. 13 (Spl.). Charging that certain politicians were using Civil Works Administration projects to further their own interests, 500 citizens gathered at St. Marys County courthouse here today to air their resentment.

A committee of nine persons was appointed to carry a complaint to John W. Jones, head of the county's CWA unit. If this fails, committee members declared, they will ask a hearing before Harry C. Hopkins, Federal relief administrator.

Reed King was made chairman.

More than 20 persons spoke, giving examples of alleged unfairness in the distribution of jobs.

One man was named as having four jobs in addition to the CWA work. Kenneth Duke, commander of the local American Legion Post, offered the name of Emmett Sheets, a war veteran, who, he said, had been slighted in the job distribution.

The American Legion, said Commander Duke, was not satisfied with the CWA work in Leonardtown. Richard Pembroke, local CWA committeeman, answered by saying the committee did not do the actual appointing.

Action of the local CWA committee was defended, in addition to Pembroke, by Joseph Mattingly and Kingsley Love.

Those named on the complaint committee were Dr. J. O. King, W. A. Pomeroy, Steven Jones, Harry Garner, Charles Knott, Franklin Adams, Joseph F. Crew, Harry T. Wise and Dr. Edwin Thomas.

Services Today For T. C. Shafer

Frederick County Builder Heart Victim at 69.

Middletown, Md., Jan. 13 (Spl.).—Funeral services will be conducted tomorrow for Theodore C. Shafer, 69, who died Thursday night at his home south of here from a heart attack.

He was a son of the late J. Edward Shafer, Middletown, residing in this community all his life, and had been in the contracting and building business in Frederick and Montgomery Counties more than 40 years.

Besides his widow, Mrs. Effie Shafer, he is survived by four sons: Harry, Emory, Joseph and Calvin Shafer, all of near Middletown, and three daughters, Mrs. Marie Zentz, Thurmont; Mrs. Roy Kinna, Middletown, and Mrs. Ruth Rice, Wilmington, Del. Five brothers, William Shafer, Springfield, Ohio; Stanley Shafer, Frederick; Elmer E., S. Leslie and A. Frank Shafer, Middletown, and one sister, Mrs Homer D. Ridenour, Frederick, also survive.

Staunton toReopen Classes for Adults

Rotary Club Will Sponsor Courses Again.

Staunton, Va., Jan. 13 (Spl.)—The Staunton Rotary Club's night school for adults will be opened for its second session Monday evening.

All of last year's pupils have enrolled and the club is making an effort to secure additional members. Two courses will be offered, the beginners' and one for those entering their second year.

The club's committee in charge of the school is composed of Prof. M. M. Edgar, chairman; Maj. E. W. Opie, C. K. Morrison and Dr. William Lueders, jr. Quarters are furnished in the public school building, and books and other equipment is supplied the pupils without charge. Mrs. E. Lewis Knowles again will be the instructor.

Maryland Town Gets First Beer in 25 Years

Federalsburg, Md., Jan. 13 (AP). For the first time in more than 25 years, beer was placed on sale legally this week in Federalsburg, in the fifth district of Caroline County.

The district last September voted against the repeal of the eighteenth amendment and against the sale of beer in the county.

Heads Students

MISS HILDA HISEY, of Edinburg, Va., who holds the highest office which her fellow students can bestow as president of the Student Government Association at the State Teachers College, Harrisonburg, Va.

Byrd Road Law Change Sought

Arlington Delegate Will Urge Repeal by Assembly.

By a Staff Correspondent.

Richmond, Jan. 13.—Repeal of a law permitting counties to participate in the Byrd road plan by agreement between county boards and the State highway commissioner will be sought by Delegate William D. Medley, Arlington County, he announced tonight.

Mr. Medley explained he believed such decisions should be reached only by vote of the people. He stressed his willingness for an Arlington County road referendum.

Recommendations of the Arlington County Civic Federation for limiting appointive powers of circuit court judges and amendment of laws governing county run-off elections remain to be acted on. The latter proposal would call for limitation of the number of candidates in a run-off election to twice the number of offices to be filled.

Mr. Medley has under consideration suggested bills to lengthen voting hours in his county so residents working in Washington would have time to vote.

Road Estimate Made.

Norton, Va., Jan. 13 (Spl.). Southwest Virginia is pleased that the State Highway Commission has at last recognized United States Highway No. 23, at least to the extent of including it in the 10-year estimate of $162,000,000 necessary to complete the primary highway system of the State.

Farmers Form Loan Agency

Meet at Fredericksburg to Organize Branch of U. S. Service.

Fredericksburg, Va., Jan. 13 (Spl.).—Approximately 50 farmers from four surrounding counties met in the Fredericksburg courthouse yesterday and formed a Production Foundation Credit Association, from which farmers of Spotsylvania, Stafford, King George and Caroline Counties may obtain loans for general agricultural purposes.

Judge Alvin T. Embrey, of Fredericksburg, was named chairman. M. R. Reamy was chosen secretary, and the following five elected to the board of directors: J. W. Guerrant, of Whites; L. P. Graves, of Sealston; S. P. Powell, of Fredericksburg; M. R. Reamy and T. T. Dickinson, of Partlow.

Twenty incorporators were necessary, according to the regulations of the Farm Credit Administration, of which the association is a subsidiary. Each director was required to subscribe $5.

The local organization is the seventh formed in Virginia.

Transient Bureau Helps 200 Daily

Lynchburg Notes Decline in Begging, Thievery.

Lynchburg, Va., Jan. 13 (Spl.).—Approximately 200 transients are cared for daily here by the Federal transient bureau at a monthly cost of about $4,000. Mrs. Mary Jane Outten, formerly with the local Associated Charities, is in charge. About 75 transients have been put to work on Civil Works projects.

There has been a marked decline in the number of persons soliciting food at houses and begging on the streets. The police also report fewer dwellings broken into on the outskirts of the city.

Death Driver Gives Bond.

Bristol, Va., Jan. 13 (Spl.).—H. E. Martin, of the Abingdon road, near Bristol, whose automobile Wednesday evening struck and fatally injured James Melvin, 21, yesterday posted $1,000 bond for appearance at a hearing on the accident.

Woman Killed As Car Careens Onto Sidewalk

Auto Runs Out of Control After Hitting Another on Wet Pavement.

A careening automobile, skidding on wet pavements after collision with another car early yesterday, jumped the curb at Nineteenth and M streets northwest and struck and killed a woman pedestrian.

The victim, Miss Jessie M. Townsend, 40, of 1009 New Hampshire avenue northwest, a stenographer at the Internal Revenue Bureau, was almost instantly killed. The car was driven by Walter H. Beard, 3220 Twelfth street northwest.

Beard's machine went out of control after crashing the car of Clarence S. Ross, Takoma Park, Md. Miss Townsend was taken to Emergency Hospital and pronounced dead upon arrival.

Both drivers were taken to the Third Precinct Station for questioning. They were released in custody of their attorneys pending a coroner's inquest at 11:30 a. m. tomorrow.

Struck by an automobile as he attempted to cross the street at Thomas Circle, Modosdo Sabate, 42, a chef living at 926 L street northwest, was taken to Emergency Hospital with serious injuries yesterday.

The driver of the car was not held. Sabate was treated for lacerations to his head and possible internal injuries.

Pay Day

School Employes to Have Salaries Delivered.

Parking problems around the District Building have led school officials to try a new system of paying employes, to be inaugurated tomorrow.

Instead of going to the District Building to get checks from the District disbursing officer, high school principals, supervising principals and heads of the teachers colleges will receive them at the Henry School, P street, between Sixth and Seventh streets northwest.

They will then take the checks to designated buildings in their areas for distribution to employes. The plan will be tried with the custodial and clerical forces tomorrow and will be extended to teachers when they are paid on the first of the month.

In the past, pay days have been chaotic because of the trouble the school officers had in trying to park at the District Building.

Warren Posts $10,000 Bond

Cooper Yet to Answer Bill; Arraignment Scheduled for Friday.

Bates Warren, general counsel for the closed Commercial National Bank, yesterday in District Supreme Court posted $10,000 bond in answer to an indictment charging him with conspiring to misapply $455,000 of the bank's funds, and actually misapplying $90,550.

A private surety, Thomas H. Pickford, went Mr. Warren's bond. Col. Wade H. Cooper, president of the bank, named jointly in the indictment, has not yet posted bond on the indictment, though he has given $10,000 bond on the first indictment in which he and Mr. Warren were charged with conspiracy to misapply $400,000.

Unless the two men file attacks on the indictment, they will be arraigned in District Supreme Court Friday. United States Attorney Leo A. Rover yesterday reiterated his statement that the first indictment would not be pressed because the second was considered as taking its place.

Attorneys Hugh Obear, of the law firm of Douglas, Obear & Douglas, and James F. Reilly, accompanied Mr. Warren yesterday. His delay in posting the bond was explained by illness.

Town Accepts $71,000 CWA Sewer Grant

Berkeley Springs, W. Va., Council Votes for Job Project.

Berkeley Springs, W. Va., Jan. 13 (Spl.).—The Berkeley Spring Town Council decided at meeting last night to proceed with a $71,000 town sewer project, using civil works funds.

Of the estimated cost the Government is to furnish 30 per cent, the other 70 per cent to be paid by users. The minimum rate for each user will be $12 per year, rated on a basis of 23 years.

The State Public Health Council and the State engineer of the Public Works Administration, have been notified that the community is ready to proceed. Work is expected to start within a month.

Work has been started on the new concrete bridge which is to span Warm Spring Run on the main street here. The bridge, 23 feet wide, will be constructed of reinforced concrete and steel. It will be the eleventh span over Warm Spring Run within the town and corporation.

Moorefield Gets $50,000.

Moorefield, W. Va., Jan. 13 (Spl.). The Public Works Administration has approved the application of the Town of Moorefield for $40,000 to finance replacement of the obsolete water system with a modern system.

The administration raised the figure to $50,000 and announced that the fund will be available in a few days. Of this sum 30 per cent is an outright gift and the balance must be paid back to the Government over a period of 30 years.

The project will employ about 50 men for six months and work is to begin soon. The plans call for installation of a filtration plant, laying of new water mains and metering of all consumers.

Power Project Studied.

Grafton, W. Va., Jan. 13 (Spl.).—According to Federal engineers on the ground, plans are being considered for the inclusion of a big hydro-electric project at the $3,000,000 dam to be built at once across the Tygarts Valley River near here as part of a gigantic Public Works Administration regional flood control scheme.

The height of the dam, 215 feet, will make the power unit feasible, engineers say. The dam, which will be constructed just above the Grafton municipal park and the Grafton City water works, will be 1,770 feet long and will back water up a deep, narrow valley over 3,900 acres of land. The Grafton City Park will not be affected as floodgates will be so arranged as to give a normal flow of water through the year.

Present plans call for a spillway to supply the Grafton water works reservoir, saving the city $1,000 a year in operating costs. It is also planned to route a 25-foot highway across the top of the dam.

Rum Count Trips Hagerstown Man

Pennsylvania Police Nab Him on 2 Charges.

Hagerstown, Md., Jan. 13 (Spl.). Chambersburg (Pa.) authorities arrested Earl J. Stout, of Hagerstown, when he was found in possession of 16½ quarts of alleged moonshine liquor.

He is the first person arrested there since repeal of prohibition. The alleged liquor was found in a grip Stout was carrying.

One warrant alleges Stout "not being a manufacturer or member of the Liquor Control Board or a holder of a sacramental wine permit, had in his possession intoxicating liquor which was not lawfully acquired prior to January 1, 1934, or which had been purchased from a Pennsylvania liquor store." The second charges the liquor was not in containers that had been sealed with the official seal of the Liquor Control Board," or in "decanters for immediate consumption."

Falls Church "Little Rebel" Will Tell of Old War Days

MRS. FLORIDA BAKER HEITT, 90, carrier of messages around the Yankee lines during the Civil War, who will tell of her experiences next Friday.

Mrs. Flora Baker Heitt, 90, Remembers Days of Conflict.

Mrs. Flora Baker Heitt, 90, of Falls Church, Va., the "Little Rebel," who carried messages around the Yankee lines during the War Between the States, will be the guest of honor of the Robert E. Lee Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, Friday, relating some of her experiences.

Mrs. Heitt is the oldest member of this chapter, having joined in 1898. The daughter of the late Henry M. Baker, merchant and slave owner of Winchester, Va., she was born and raised in Winchester, moving to Falls Church in 1896.

Well preserved, she enjoys playing the piano and recalling incidents of her girlhood, especially the war around Winchester and the days when her family moved from the town into the country to avoid conflicts.

Remembers First Battle.

"I never will forget the first battle I witnessed," she declared. "It was just over the hill from the farmhouse. With childlike curiosity, several of my brothers and sisters climbed the hill in a cornfield overlooking the conflict. The Yankees were soon driven from the field and in their haste took to the cornfield where we were hidden. You should have seen us tumbling over each other to get away.

"The next time there was fighting close by we hid in the cellar. Winchester was taken, lost and retaken 72 times that I know of and I clearly remember several of the famous generals and soldiers.

"Many times," she said, "after the fighting had stopped we went with the older folks over the hill to the battle ground taking with us large demijohns of water and homemade custard and nursed and fed the wounded boys. They sure did love that custard."

Rode Favorite Pony.

"Like all the children of that country I learned to ride a horse as soon as I could hold on. I had my favorite pony. What a thrill I got outriding and outwitting the Yankees to carry messages and letters three miles into Winchester to friends and relatives. Several times I was stopped but I got by, being only about 13 or 14 years old at that time.

"Finally I had to give up my pony to the Confederates. What a blow that was to me. After the war, my father lost his slaves, but most of them stayed with us.

"Those were thrilling days," she concluded with a sigh. "I sure like to talk about them."

Clarke, Warren Plan Fire Lookout Tower

Front Royal, Va., Jan. 13 (Spl.). Warren and Clarke Counties are considering erection of a fire lookout station near the Clarke-Warren county line.

A conference was held this week between the Warren County board of supervisors and John Lindsay, of Berryville, member of the Clarke County board. The proposition was referred to a committee for further investigation.

Work Speeded At Cottage City

$72,000 Ready for Roads, Walks; Jobs to Start in 2 Months.

Work on the Cottage City, Md., streets improvement project is expected to begin within two months, according to town officials. A Public Works Administration allotment of $72,000 for the work has been approved.

Before the work can be started, municipal officials haye pointed out, 51 per cent of the property owners on each street to be improved must request the work.

Plans call for 30-foot paved roadways, four-foot sidewalks with cement curbs and gutters. Driveways over the sidewalk at each home also will be paved.

It was stated that 31 per cent of the amount expended for labor need not be repaid to the Government and property owners will be given 20 years in which to pay off the balance. Interest will be charged at the rate of 4 per cent per annum.

It was estimated the improvement will cost each property owner about $6 a year. This cost will be offset partially by the fact that for the first time since the town was incorporated the tax rate has been reduced from 25 cents to 20 cents per $100 valuation.

This drop in the town tax rate was a result of one of the changes in the town charter, it was revealed.

New Deal Charged As Forcing Clash

Investors Syndicate Is Told of Changes.

Richmond, Jan. 13 (AP).—The new economic era can not be left to chance, as in the past, but must be intelligently planned, some 400 delegates attending the investors syndicate Eastern sales conference here were told today by Dr. Raymond B. Pinchbeck, dean of the University of Richmond.

"We need to learn a new definition of freedom and think in terms of National concern and interest," Dr. Pinchbeck said. "The four horsemen—Government, labor, capital and consumer—are back of the new planned economic order.

"What has the New Deal brought? It seems to have produced questions of the constitutionality of the NRA, clashes of interests between large groups, cheap politics, international conflict, and danger of bureaucracy. But the one single change of the greatest importance is that we must plan our future economic life and not leave it blindly to chance."

Bethesda Fire Board Returns Walter Bogley

President's Report Shows Volunteers Answered 124 Alarms in 1933.

S. Walter Bogley was reelected president of the fire board of the Bethesda Volunteer Fire Department at the annual meeting, it was announced last night. John A. Dickinson, vice president; T. R. Pickett, secretary and J. A. P. Farnham, treasurer, also were elected.

Ford E. Young, sr., Emory H. Bogley and Earle Hampton were elected to the executive committee, and Lendell A. Conner, Mr. Young, and William Buckley to the liaison committee.

The annual repor of President Bogley revealed that the department traveled 6,216 miles in 1933 to answer 124 fire alarms and 29 courtesy calls and assistances to other departments. The rescue squad made 125 runs ni first aid cases and six calls in response to calls from other departments.

President Bogley paid tribute to Chief J. Fred Imirie's efficiency during the year and praised John L. Imirie, chief of the reserve squad, for his efforts on behalf of the department. The reports listed the assets of the department as $40,500, with indebtedness of $6,510.

He said thta maintenance of a paid fire department of 15 men at a salary of $100 each a month would necessitate doubling teh tax rate. The department now has 56 volunteers.

Hyattsville Church Women Call Election

The Hyattsville Council of Federated Church Women will hold its quarterly meeting tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock in the First Baptist Church.

Mrs. K. J. Morris, president of the Associated Charities of Hyattsville and Vicinity, will discuss the aims of the Boys Club recently organized by the charities group and the need of assistance to women and children in the county police court. Establishment of a juvenile court will be suggested. Officers will be elected.

Crash!

Owl and Pursuing Hawk Die Hitting Auto.

Richmond, Jan. 13 (Spl.).—While Mrs. A. G. Neal, of Keysville, was driving to Amelia something smashed the windshield of her car. The machine was stopped and she and her brother, B. L. Winn, of Richmond, found a dead owl in the front of the car, and on the outside a dead hawk. Apparently the hawk had been chasing the owl, and they collided with the car in the darkness.

Except for the shattered windshield no damage was done. They brought the birds along with them.

Maryland Veterans Of 1898 Organize

Meet at Frederick and Form Branch.

Frederick, Md., Jan. 13 (Spl.). Spanish-American War veterans of Frederick and Carroll Counties at the State Armory last night decided to organize a local camp of the United Spanish-American War Veterans, a National organization.

Among those in attendance were men who saw service in the First Maryland, First Colorado, Second Virginia, Thirty-fifth Michigan, Fifth Pennsylvania and Second West Virginia Infantries.

A committee composed of Herbert G. Taylor, chairman; George Williams, Jacob Kidwiler, Lewis A. Moberly, of Frederick, and Claude E. Smith, of Emmitsburg, was appointed to enroll members. Col. D. John Markey, commander of the First Regiment, Maryland National Guard, was chairman of the meeting and Harry Miller secretary.

Virginia Farmer Meetings Called

County Agent Schedules 17 Sessions.

New Market, Va., Jan. 13 (Spl.). County Agent G. G. Dickinson today announced the dates for a series of 17 farmer meetings, beginning January 16, at which the Administration's corn-hog reduction program will be explained to Shenandoah County farmers.

Dickinson stated that considerable interest is being manifested by farmers throughout the county and indications point to a considerably larger number signing than under the Government's wheat production control plan a few months ago.

Meetings will be held at New Market, Mount Jackson, Edinburg, Woodstock, Strasburg, Kerlins, Toms Brook, Quicksburg, Lebanon Church, Mount Clifton, Saumsville, Forestville, Jerome, Columbia Furnace, Hamburg, Maurertown and Detrick.

Beer Gave Virginia $211,474 Last Year

Four-Month Revenues to State Decreased.

Richmond, Jan. 13 (AP).—State Tax Commissioner C. H. Morrissett today reported the total State revenue from the legal sale of 3.2 beer through December was $211,474.64. He had no estimate of the revenue received from this source by the localities.

Beer was legalized in Virginia last September. State license taxes since then have amounted to $33,942.41 and the excise taxes for the period totaled $177,532.23. New State license taxes were due January 1.

The excise taxes for September were $63,410.94; October, $47,105.84; November, $36,581.65; December, $30,433.80.

CWA Grumbles Heard in Valley

Varied Complaints Over Jobs and Men Made in New Market.

New Market, Va., Jan. 13 (Spl.). In reply to reports that some employes on CWA projects throughout Shenandoah County are doing little work, Harold G. Chandler, county administrator, at a meeting of foremen demanded that they make every man give an honest day's work.

Answering rumors that undeserving individuals were being placed on the pay rolls, Chandler stated that jobs had been, and would continue to be, given out on a strictly nonpolitical basis.

Considerable agitation is current here regarding the placement of workers. Dissatisfaction also is current regarding the cessation yesterday of the local high school project. The ten men were laid off by Foreman Jacob F. Bowman, who said that although the work was far from completed the allotted manhours had been used.

Citizens are in arms over an allegedly unsightly fence placed along the Water street boundary of the high school grounds. A mass meeting is contemplated to remove it.

About 650 men are now on the pay roll in the county receiving $8,500 weekly. With the expected early approval of New Market's application for $18,806 for an airport it is estimated the employment roll will surpass 700 and the pay roll reach $10,000.

Women Employes Of Utilities Meet

Mayor of Fredericksburg Welcomes Visitors.

Fredericksburg, Va., Jan. 13 (Spl.). The annual meeting of the women engaged in the public utility industry throughout Virginia was held in the Stratford Hotel here yesterday, with Miss Gladys Eastwood, of the Virginia Electric & Power Co., at Richmond, as chairman.

Miss Mildred Fears, of the Virginia Public Service Co., at Charlottesville, responded to the welcome extended by Mayor Robert J. Payne and Mrs. Louise Roach, of Fredericksburg.

Improvement in branches of public uitility service were discussed during the morning session, while the afternoon meeting was taken up by talks on various domestic appliances.

Mrs. Charles L. Bushnell, dean of the State Teachers' College of Fredericksburg, was the principal speaker at the luncheon. Officers of the association include Miss Gladys Eastwood, of Richmond, chairman; Miss Anne Harrington, of Alexandria, vice chairman, and Miss Jeanette Ray, of Fredericksburg, secretary.

Cannon Takes Saloon Battle To Roosevelt

Urges Him to Change or Veto Control Bill for District.

The dry forces have carried their fight directly to the White House in the effort to head off the "saloon" features of the District liquor bill, which is speeding toward early passage in the Senate.

Yesterday, a letter addressed to the President by the executive committee of the Board of Temperance and Social Service of the Methodist Episcopal Church South was made public. It was signed by the board's secretary, Eugene L. Crawford, and its chairman, Bishop James Cannon, jr., who is now awaiting trial on a charge of violating the corrupt practices act for alleged failure to report campaign funds received by him in the anti-Smith fight of 1928.

"Alteration or Veto."

Reminding the President that he repeatedly has opposed the return of the saloon, the letter points out that his power to keep it out of the individual States is only "persuasive." But in the District, it is pointed out, he has "the persuasive and veto power," which he is begged to exercise in the case of the District bill.

"The House of Representatives after a debate of only a few hours passed a bill which legalizes all the essential features of the saloon in its old form," says the Methodist committee. It urges the President to seek a change in the bill or, failing this, to veto it.

Reminded of Pledge.

The letter:

January 13, 1934.

The President,
The White House,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. President—In your opening campaign speech, at Sea Girt, New Jersey, on August 27, 1932, you quoted from the Democratic platform the following: "We urge the enactment of such measures by the several States as will actually promote temperance, effectively prevent the saloon and bring the liquor traffic into the open under complete supervision and control by the States." You declared in your speech that you "accepted this statement 100 per cent."

In your proclamation on December 6 you declared: "I ask especially that no State shall by law or otherwise authorize the return of the saloon, either in its old form or in some modern guise." And on December 30, in a telegram to the chairman of the State Democratic Committee of Missouri, you said: "I have great confidence that our party leaders, not only in your State, but wherever this question of liquor control is coming up, will respect pledges made to the electorate and will provide legislation that will make impossible the return of the open saloon and all its attendant evils."

Responsibility Attached.

These quotations clearly express positive, unequivocal opposition to the return of the old saloon or any modern equivalent. But all these appeals to party leaders in the States have necessarily been purely persuasive, for as is declared in the Missouri telegram, the President can exercise no Executive power over "the formulation of State legislation for the control of the liquor traffic." But now the Congress of the United States is engaged in the formulation of legislation for the control of the liquor traffic for the District of Columbia, and concerning this legislation the President has both persuasive and veto power, and the District is the only place where the President has such power. The eyes of the Nation are centered upon the President and Congress at this juncture, eager to see the model liquor control legislation they will jointly formulate, and for which legislation they must bear joint responsibility.

The House of Representatives, after a debate of only a few hours, passed a bill which legalizes all the essential features of the "saloon in its old form"—the sale of intoxicants by the drink with practically no restrictions, the glittering display of bottles and decanters, the glazed or curtained doors and windows, a perambulating bar, in short, the only difference being that purchaser can not drink standing up but must sit on a stool at the bar to drink beer and wine or on a stool or a chair at a table to drink spirits, and with no restrictions concerning sale to women over 19 years old. (The press reports this morning that the Senate committee has retained the old-time saloon features in the bill.)

The executive committee of the Board of Temperance and Social Service of the M. E. Church South appeals to you not only as the Chief Executive of the Nation but also of the District of Columbia to use your great influence to secure such changes in the bill which has passed the House of Representative as in your own language "will prevent the return of the saloon, either in its old form or in some modern guise." And if, notwithstanding your efforts, the Senate passes this bill without any changes in its essential features, we appeal to you to veto this bill as directly contrary to your openly expressed opposition to the saloon. Yours respectfully,

JAMES CANNON, Jr.,
Chairman.
EUGENE L. CRAWFORD,
Secretary.

Ban Upon Stands Pleases Chamber

Prince Georges Group Will Continue Campaign.

Officials of the Prince Georges County Chamber of Commerce see a definite victory in its fight against roadside stands, following a decision by the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

The commission last week ruled against renewing a temporary permit for a stand in Colmar Manor on the Washington-Baltimore boulevard. Efforts now will be made to eliminate from the county all roadside stands of temporary construction except those at which products raised on the premises are sold.

Results of the membership drive conducted by two chamber teams, the Red and Blue Ducks, have proved gratifying. It is pointed out that the recent change in name of the chamber from Hyattsville to Prince Georges has created a wider appeal.

Kaiser's Rheumatism Stops Wood-Chopping

Doorn, The Netherlands, Jan. 13 (AP).—An attack of rheumatism in the legs has compelled former Kaiser Wilhelm II of Germany to forego his favorite outdoor exercise of wood-chopping.

Although confined within his residence, the former ruler, who is approaching his seventy-fifth birthday, remains otherwise in good health. He keeps close watch on political developments in Germany.

Secretary Hull Invited To Pay Mexico Visit

New York, Jan. 13 (AP).—Jose Manuel Puig Casauranc, Mexico's foreign minister, said tonight he had invited Secretary of State Cordell Hull to visit Mexico on the latter's return from the Pan-American Conference, and assured him a "real welcome."

Dr. Puig, chief of Mexico's delegation to the conference, left tonight for Mexico City by train.

Man, 70, Found Dead On Hotel Window Sill

Boston, Jan. 13 (AP).—The body of a 70-year-old man, known to employes of the Strand Hotel here only as D. Fontaine, Indianapolis, was found lying on the sill of a sixth-story window at the hotel today. A medical examiner said death apparently had been caused by heart failure, presumably as the aged man was seeking fresh air.

Another Lindbergh Hoax.

Los Angeles, Jan. 13 (AP).—A man who told former Police Chief Louis Oaks that the kidnaped son of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh was alive in San Diego, was questioned and released by police who said his knowledge of the famous case had been obtained from newspaper stories.

Tracing him through automobile license numbers, police yesterday arrested Clarence Wilson Gooding, 22, of 4120 Gault street northeast, on charges of failing to stop his car after striking two persons at Tennessee avenue and Duncan street northeast, Friday night.

David Bryant, 49, and his sister, Rebecca Bryant, 60, colored, of 1425 Duncan street northeast, suffered severe injuries and were treated at Casualty Hospital.

Gooding was arrested by Detective Sergeant William Liverman. The machine was damaged in front and a pair of glasses belonging to Rebecca Bryant was found on the running board, police said.

Admiral McCully Buys St. Augustine Home

St. Augustine, Fla., Jan. 13 (AP).—Rear Admiral Newton A. McCully, United States Navy, retired, a bachelor, who adopted seven Russian orphans and brought them to this country to save them suffering resulting from the revolutions, has purchased a home here.

Admiral McCully, after sailing about for several years with his adopted family on a converted submarine chaser, will live here permanently.

Early's Hunting Trip Stirs London Rumor of News 'Ban'

The desire of Stephen T. Early, White House secretary, to bring down a few more ducks before the season closed yesterday caused repercussions abroad.

The United Press reported London's Lombard Street reading undue significance in reports the President had "ordered" a moratorium on news over the week-end, wanted to know what was up.

What, asked London's financial district, did this mean? Rumors floated about to the effect the President had directed official silence on monetary matters, as though this presaged some momentous decision.

Sole basis for the reports was the President's smiling remark the day before that Mr. Early, in charge of White House news, wanted to go shooting over the week-end, and hence nothing might be expected.

Officials conferred again at the White House yesterday, but their close-lipped silence was but a continuation of the Administration's policy as regards monetary affairs. The President remained away from the Executive offices, working in his White House study.

Filipinos to Push Independence Plea

Manila, P. I., Jan. 13 (AP).—With the date for Filipino acceptance of the Hawes-Cutting independence act only four days away, Senator Sergio Osmena, champion of the act, called upon all factions today to bury the hatchet and press the matter before Congress.

He urged Congressional extension of the date to permit consideration of amendments which the majority faction, led by Manuel Quezon, now heading an independence mission to Washington, have demanded.

Dr. Abbot Cites Century Gains Of Smithsonian

Secretary, Forum Speaker, Says 2 Million Annually Visit Museum, Zoo.

More than 2,000,000 persons, many of them school children, visit the National Museum yearly, Dr. Charles G. Abbot, secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, said in an address last night before the Washington Community Forum.

How the Smithsonian exerts its influence in all parts of the globe was illustrated by Dr. Abbot, who was introduced by Elwood Street, director of the Community Chest. Dr. Abbot traced development of the organization since its founding in 1826, saying its collections and exhibits now are valued at $130,000,00. It began with a $550,000 gift by James A. Smithson, an Englishman who never had seen America.

Ward of Government.

"The institution, though a private foundation, is the ward of the Government," said Dr. Abbot. "Its policy, insofar as it was not specified by Smithson's immortal direction that his gift be used for 'the increase of enlightenment and diffusion of knowledge among men,' was laid down by its first secretary, Prof. Joseph Henry.

"He was an experimental investigator of electricity, hardly inferior to the great Michael Faraday. Associated with Henry, and succeeding him, worked the indefatigable naturalist, Spencer F. Baird."

Pays Them Tribute.

Dr. Abbot declared America owed to Henry and Baird the National Museum, the Weather Service, the Bureau of International Exchange of Scientific Publications, the Bureau of Fisheries and the Bureau of American Ethnology. He added:

"From 1850 until 1890 there was no source of scientific inspiration in this country more influential than the Smithsonian Institution.

"I think that next to the republican form of Government itself, the next greatest contribution of the United States during the nineteenth century to world culture, good will, and peaceful understanding was the Smithsonian Institution."

Dr. Abbot said a third of the contents of the Institution was private property, and two-thirds were owned by the Government. He discussed the National Gallery of Art and the National Zoological Park, which are parts of the institution, adding:

"No fewer than 2,000,000 persons each year visit the beautiful zoo alone."

Lunches Extended To Aid 3,581 Pupils

Five More Schools to Get Service Tomorrow.

The school free-lunch program will be extended to five more buildings tomorrow, bringing the local service to a total of 3,581 children, Robert L. Haycock, assistant superintendent of schools, in charge of the program, announced yesterday.

Other buildings will be added as quickly as sterilization equipment for utensils can be installed, he said. Children needing the lunches have increased in some buildings and decreased in others, the school official said.

The service is expected to reach 4,000 children when the program is in full swing.

Boy, 5, and Man, 22, Are Bitten by Dogs

Child Is Given Treatment at Hospital.

Dogs attacked and injured two persons yesterday.

Jeremiah J. McAuliffe, 5, of 742 Ingraham street northwest, was bitten while playing at the Truesdale School Playground, Eighth and Ingraham streets northwest. He was taken to Walter Reed Hospital and treated for bites on his face and head. Police said the dog was owned by Ben. V. McAlwee, 702 Ingraham street northwest.

Charles H. Tucker, 22, employe of the Washington Gaslight Co., told police he was attacked and bitten while reading a gas meter in the home of Peter F. Brock, 1541 Holly street northwest. He was treated by a private physician for lacerations to his nose. The Health Department was notified in both cases.

Civic Association Asks Street Improvements

Immediate improvement of Fairmont and Girard streets between Sherman and Georgia avenues was sought last night by the Pleasant Plains Civic Association at a meeting in Monroe School. Members said the streets are without curbs or gutters, resulting in the pavements being flooded after heavy rain or snow.

The association also organized a drive for an assembly hall in the Monroe Building, on Columbia road, and indorsed a movement to obtain a curtain for the stage at the Dunbar High School.

Resolutions of condolence were sent to the family of the late W. H. Lewis, former president of the Garfield Civic Association.

Alexandria Red Cross Tops Quota by $2.24

The Alexandria Red Cross drive for 1933 went over the top by a $2.24 margin, and exceeded the 1932 fund by approximately $150, according to a report yesterday by Armistead L. Boothe to Roger C. Sullivan, chairman of the Alexandria Red Cross.

The amount includes $21.45 proceeds from a football game, and $39.79 contributed apart from memberships.

Major Faymonville Will Go From White House to Russia

Lieut. White Also Named to Military Staff at Embassy.

LIEUT. THOMAS D. WHITE.

Maj. Philip R. Faymonville, one of President's military aids, will be the first American military attache to the Soviet Union, it was learned yesterday.

First Lieut. Thomas D. White, Air Corps, has been named Assistant Military Attache, yesterday's Army orders announced.

These are the first names of Moscow appointees to become known since the appointment of Ambassador Bullitt on the day of Soviet recognition. Secretaries, attaches and consular appointments are due next week, it is understood.

Maj. Faymonville, 45, was born in San Francisco and was graduated from West Point in 1912 as an artillery officer. He served under Gen. Graves in Siberia during the intervention where he was judge advocate general.

While there he became acquainted with Boris Skvirsky, then a member of the so-called Vladivistok government and later unofficial Soviet representative here. Skvirsky has been counselor of embassy since recognition. The two are believed to have kept up the friendship begun in Siberia.

Maj. Faymonville speaks German, Russian and some Japanese. He is unmarried and lives at 69 Observatory Circle. Besides his other duties he is studying at the War College, where he is expected to complete his work in June.

Lieut. White is now attached to Bolling Field. Before coming to Washington in 1931 he was a language student in China for four years. He is familiar with both Chinese and Russian and this is believed to have been a factor in his selection.

White was born in Walker, Minn., and maintains a home in Springfield, Ill. Graduating from the Military Academy as a second lieutenant of infantry, he was assigned to aviation in 1927 and sent to the Far East.

He is married and has one daughter. The family lives at 3000 Connecticut avenue.

Bandit Takes Cab And Driver's Cash

Holdup Staged at Cemetery Scene of Other Crimes.

Prince Georges County (Md.) and Washington police yesterday were hunting a lone robber who held up Glenn A. Bowers near Cedar Hill Cemetery, and robbed him of his taxicab and $2.70.

Bowers, who lives at 420 Sixth street southwest, said he picked the man up at Seventh street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest. The passenger, he said, declared he wanted to go driving in Maryland.

Four taxicabs have been taken from their drivers in the vicinity of this cemetery during the last several weeks, county police said. Two of the cabs have been recovered.

Garrett Funeral Is Set Tomorrow

Burial to Take Place in Fort Lincoln.

Funeral services for Mrs. Winifred J. Garrett, who died Friday at her home, 7 Ralston avenue, Hyattsville, will be held tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock at the house. The Rev. Clyde Brown, rector of Pinkney Memorial Protestant Episcopal Church, Hyattsville, will officiate. Interment will be at Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

She is survived by her husband, Johnson L. Garrett; one daughter, Mrs. H. E. Haigley, of Bradbury Heights, and a sister, Mrs. W. W. Stewart, of Baltimore.

Fire Razes Combined Store-Home-Postoffice

Fredericksburg, Va., Jan. 13 (Spl.). The combined store, postoffice, and residence of C. J. Spicer, of Belmont, Spotsylvania County, was destroyed by fire last night, with a loss of several thousand dollars.

A defective flue in the store is believed cause of the fire. There was partial insurance coverage.

Arlington Gets Behind District Boundary Bill

Measure Asking Survey Will Be Introduced Tomorrow.

Unanimous indorsement was given yesterday by the Arlington County Board to the bill to be introduced tomorrow in the House by Representative Howard W. Smith, of Virginia, for the creation of a commission to decide for all time the disputed boundaries between the District of Columbia and Virginia.

The action of the county board will be communicated to the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce and all civic organizations asking that they likewise indorse the bill.

The bill provides that the President shall appoint one commissioner to act in conjunction with a like commissioner to be appointed by Virginia. The two commissioners and a third person to be selected by them shall constitute the commission.

The bill sets out that in determining the true location of the boundary line the commission should take into consideration decisions of the United States Supreme Court. Its study should also include findings of the Maryland and Virginia Boundary Commission of 1877. A joint report to Congress and the Virginia Legislature is suggested.

Brown Mentioned For Governorship

Speaker of House May Be Candidate.

Richmond, Jan. 13 (AP).—The Times Dispatch says tonight that the name of J. Sinclair Brown, of Salem, beginning his third term as Speaker of the House of Delegates, is mentioned frequently as a contender in 1937 for the Democratic nomination for Governor of Virginia.

"This gossip is particularly interesting," the paper adds, "in view of the fact that James H. Price, lieutenant governor, presiding officer of the Senate, is regarded as having his eye on the same leadership.

"It may be that geographical considerations will enter into the candidacy of the next Governor of Virginia. Trinkle was from the southwest, Byrd from the valley, Pollard from tidewater, and Peery is from the southwest. The territory south of the James River has not been represented since 1914.

Prof. Ribble Hits Virginia's Lack of Bar Requirements

Charlottesville, Va., Jan. 13 (AP). Virginia is one of six States in the Union which have neither legal nor academic requirements for admission to the bar, F. D. G. Riddle, professor of law at the University of Virginia, writes in the institution's current News Letter.

His statement is based on a table compiled by Frank W. Rogers, of Roanoke, chairman of the committee on legal education and admission to the bar of the Virginia Bar Association, which in turn was prepared from a report of the Carnegie Foundation.

Asserting that poor legal preparation has left its mark both in the courtroom and outside the court, Dr. Ribble asserts that "the possibilty of safeguarding" a client's "interests effectively by practicing law by ear or by intuition has passed away."

Not only legal, but general education is needed, he says, because of the growing demands on a lawyer's ability. "The lawyer must be more than a technician," Dr. Ribble says. "He is called upon to be a confidential adviser of persons in a vast range of human activities, details of which are not to be understood by the mere application of rules of law."

Virginia, he points out, is grouped with Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Indiana and Nevada as the States which have neither academic nor legal requirements for admission to the bar.

States which require no academic education are Virginia, North Carolina, Nevada, Indiana, Georgia, Florida and Arkansas. The table shows the vast majority of States require at least a high school education as a prerequisite to the practice of law in Virginia and in addition require two or three years study in a law school, in most cases three years.

Delaware and Pennsylvania have the most rigid requirements—a college degree and three years of law school training.

Admissions to professions other than law require a much higher education standard that is demanded of bar applicants, Dr. Ribble said.

Referring to the requirement that applicants for embalmers' examinations must have completed a seventh grade public school education or its equivalent and must have had at least two years' apprenticeship under a licenesed embalmer, the writer says:

"If the young man finds that the educational requirments for embalming are too strenuous, he need not dispair. He may still meet the requirments for admission to the practice of law."

Virginia Blue Law Revision Is Slated

Richmond, Jan. 13 (AP).—The Times-Dispatch said that older "Liberals" of the present General Assembly, buttressed by 50 new members, are "ready to do battle with the State's blue laws, confident of victory."

The paper said these Liberal members admit they would welcome a chance to vote for Sunday movies and athletic contests so long as the hours do not conflict with church hours, for horse racing and pari-mutuel betting, and for a reasonably liberal liquor control law.

Bells to Herald Charity Drive In Alexandria

Noise Launches Campaign for $15,000 Relief Fund Tomorrow.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 323.

Arrangements have been completed for the drive to raise $15,000 in three days for the Alexandria United Charities.

At 9 o'clock tomorrow morning bells and factory whistles throughout the city will announce the opening of the campaigns. Francis H. Fannon is in charge of the "noise squad" and of the speakers' committee. Pastors of the various churches in the city have agreed to bring the drive to the attention of their congregations today.

At 6:45 p. m. today John B. Gordon, chairman of the drive committee, will give a talk over Station WJSV, appealing to Alexandrians to aid the drive, and tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock Marshall M. Shuman, vice chairman, also will broadcast.

A house-to-house canvass will be made, and the workers will assemble at the George Mason Hotel each day for luncheon to make reports on progress. Each worker will pay for his lunch. No person connected with the drive will receive any compensation.

Federal Relief Discussed.

A. W. Boehringer, Alexandria administrator of the Federal Department of Public Welfare, addressed workers Friday night and told of starting his work last July with $4,000. Since that time, he said, approximately $14,000 has been spent in caring for about 200 families. This money, he said, all went to aid families in need because of unemployment. He also explained that where ther is permanent disability the charity body must fill the gap, the welfare department being unable to afford relief.

In setting the goal of the drive at $15,000, it was pointed out that this is a reduction. Last year the United Charities spent $18,000. The quota of Alexandrians, it was pointed out, is 75 cents per person, as against $4 in the District of Columbia.

V. Ward Boswell, John B. Gordon and Marshall M. Shuman have been selected to address theater audiences on the three nights of the drive. Citizens of the Sixth Ward will speak at the Palm Theater in Potomac. The Negro population will be solicited by a committee of nine, headed by Attorney Alfred H. Collins. To the Negro Elks Lodge goes the distinction of having made the first contribution, $25, received when plans were first announced for the drive.

Landmark May Be Bought.

A meeting of the Society for the Preservation of Alexandria Antiquities, to consider the purchase of the old Leadbeater drug store, will be held in Gadsby's Tavern at 8 o'clock tomorrow night. Fourteen organizations are to be represented, but the meeting is open to the public.

If a decision to purchase the building is reached, arrangements will be made with the American Pharmaceutical Association before Friday of this week to retain all the fixtures and equipment of this landmark in their original setting. The store, which had the patronage of George Washington and his contemporaries, and other distinguished Virginians, including Gen. Robert E. Lee, remained in the same family from 1793 until the death of the last member of the Leadbeater firm, in 1933.

The project has received the approval of Dr. E. F. Kelly, secretary of the American Pharmaceutical Association, who has informed the Alexandria society that the association is planning a celebration in Washington to dedicate the National headquarters. The American Association may take an active part in the restoration work, at Alexandria.

The contents of the Leadbeater store were sold at auction recently to settle the estate, and were bid in by the Pharmaceutical Association. In the event the restoration project does not succeed, the fixtures and relics will be installed in Washington in the new headquarters buildings.

Arlington Kiwanis Plans Anniversary

Past Governor in Charge of Jan. 24 Program.

The Arlington County Kiwanis Club will observe the nineteenth anniversary of the founding of Kiwanis International at Windsor Tavern Wednesday afternoon, January 24, at 12:30 o'clock. Past Governor Edwin E.Hill will have charge of the program.

The first Kiwanis Club was organized in Detroit in 1915 and on January 24 of that year the first meeting was held.

Plans for club activities for 1934 will be presented at the anniversary meeting. The club will continue its work for under-privileged children, aggressive citizenship, friendly rural and urban relations, vocational guidance and boys and girls work.

Confidence Is Voted In Home Management

New Market, Va., Jan. 13 (Spl.). The board of governors of Hines Memorial Pythian Home here today voted complete satisfaction with management of the establishment by E. M. Rice, superintendent of the home since its opening in 1927. The home cares for children of deceased members of the Pythian Lodge. There are now 35 in the institution.

The board of governors is composed of Dr. Thomas E. Payne, Roanoke, chairman; P. S. Ford, Martinsville, vice chairman; D. C. Hancock, Richmond, secretary; P. L. Bryan, Norfolk; B. F. White and Mrs. C. H. Moore, New Market.

Peery Advisers Reveal Income Tax Proposals

Reductions of Exemption Deductions Planned to Raise $400,000.

By Doug Warrenfels.

Richmond, Jan. 13.—Thousands of low-salaried persons now exempt may be required to pay State income taxes under a plan favored by Gov.-elect George C. Peery.

Advisers of the new governor revealed tonight that income tax revisions would be recommended to the General Assembly as the principal point in an administration program intended to increase State revenue by $1,500,000 annually and provide greater school funds.

The Peery plan was said to contemplate lowering of income tax exemptions from $1,200 to $1,000 for single persons, and from $2,500 to $2,000 for married persons. The allowance for dependents would be cut from $400 to $200. Deduction of charitable donations would be forbidden, and all dividends would be made subject to taxation.

Experts estimated increased revenue from income taxes under the proposed changes would total $400,000 a year.

Other new revenue suggestions likely to be advanced by the new governor would include revision of existing merchants' license fees to yield $300,000 a year; miscellaneous levies such as gift, soft drink and theater license taxes due to produce $300,000 a year; reduction in exemption for inheritance beneficiaries, $110,000; chain store tax, $50,000; tax on transportation receipts in cities, $35,000, and tax on pipeline systems, $25,000.

Democratic leaders predicted the Peery plan would eliminate all possibility of a general sales tax.

Meanwhile, a compromise seemed in sight in the controversy between the retiring governor, John Garland Pollard, and majority members of the State liquor control commission over personnel of the proposed board.

Three-Man Plan Advocated.

The majority report called for a board of three full-time members to be paid $7,500 a year each. Pollard said a board of three members would result in conflicting authority and insisted on a one-man board.

Observers believed the Legislature would retain the three-man plan, with the concession that the chairman should have greater authority than the other two members.

In any event, floor leaders hope to dispose definitely of liquor legislation within three weeks. An anticipated emergency clause would make the bill effective on passage.

Radical Departure Seen.

Richmond, Jan. 13 (AP).—Gov.-elect George C. Peery in his inaugural address Wednesday will recommend full restoration of the 30 per cent cut imposed on State school appropriations during the current biennium. Revenue bills for a new tax schedule are expected soon before the Assembly.

Spokesmen today predicted a revision upward in some of the major sources of State income, along with some new items.

Gov. Pollard said to restore fully the appropriation to schools would mean a substantial increase in taxes, and because this was a radical departure from the policy of his administration, he would not recommend it.

The new governor has been silent on the proposals he plans, except to say: "We must do something for schools."

The legislators will return Monday after the first week-end holiday of the current session.

Meanwhile, plans have been made tentatively for a public hearing on the liquor control measures Thursday. Maj. Edwin H. Gibson, assistant attorney general, suggested that the State not only monopolize the sale of liquor, but also manufacture it.

Along with liquor, redistricting for Congressional election purposes is slated for early consideration. Senator Saxon W. Holt, of Newport News, chairman of the privileges and elections committee, already has introduced a bill which is said to have wide approval among members of the Congressional delegation.

Although the Assembly has not had an opportunity to consider Senator Aubrey Weaver's bill abolishing highway construction districts, outside opposition in the interest of the tidewater section of the State was reported as developing rapidly.

Licenses to Wed In Loudoun Gain

Leesburg, Va., Jan. 13 (Spl.).—Records in the office of County Clerk E. O. Russell show that during 1933, marriage licenses totaled 111, which was an increase of three over the previous year in Loudoun County.

In both 1932 and 1933 more white persons than colored procured marriage licenses. In 1932 the record was: White, 81, colored 21. The 1933 record was: White 84, colored, 27.

Sleepy

Fall Fails to Rouse Man, Starting Death Scare.

Roanoke, Va., Jan. 13 (Spl.).—When police here received a call to northwest Roanoke on information that an aged Negro had fallen dead in his house, they hurried to investigate.

In the home police found the man apparently lifeless on the floor. Nearby was a chair. Occupants of the house said the man had taken a chair near the hot stove and had fallen asleep. Meanwhile they left the house and upon returning found the Negro presumably dead on the floor. Frightened, they called the police. A shaking roused him. He had fallen asleep, fallen out of the chair, and kept snoozing.

The officers went home. The elderly Negro went back to sleep.

Hendrickson, Frederick, Md., will talk on the international convention to be held in Toronto, Canada, in June.

Editor and Son Held in Slaying

T. E. Cornett Killed in Gun Fight Near Bristol.

Bristol, Va., Jan. 13 (Spl.).—Henry Bausell, of Bristol, editor of Russell County News, weekly newspaper at Lebanon, Va., and his son, Bernice, were under police guard in a Bristol, Tenn., hospital tonight, held in connection with the fatal shooting of T. E. Cornett, younger Bausell's father-in-law, at Rural Retreat, Va., this afternoon.

Bausell went to Rural Retreat to confer with young Bausell's estranged wife and her parents regarding custody of a Bausell child. In the affray Cornett was slain, Mrs. Bausell critically wounded and both Bausell men wounded. The elder Bausell was shot through the left shoulder the younger in the left forearm. Though wounded, the two men drove 55 miles to Bristol, and went to the hospital.

The younger Bausell and Cornett engaged in argument earlier in the week, at which time Bausell was shot but not seriously wounded by Cornett. He took his father with him to Rural Retreat today in an attempt to effect an agreement, he declared.

Board Orders Suit to Obtain Right of Way

Arlington Manager Reports 22 CWA Projects in Construction.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Car. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Failing to reach an agreement with Hollie Herrell for rights of way needed to complete the extension of Harlow avenue in Rosslyn, the county board yesterday authorized Commonwealth's Attorney Lawrence W. Douglas to institute condemnation proceedings.

County Manager Roy S. Braden reported that work on some sections of the road has been started.

He further announced that 22 CWA projects are now under way in Arlington county, with a total expenditure of $72,000. The county is paying only about $22,000 of this amount.

With approximately $30,000 due from delinquent scavenger bills, the Commonwealth's attorney was instructed to proceed with the necessary legal action.

Monroe H. Stockett, chairman of the street naming committee, appeared before the board and urged adoption of the new report showing a complete list of all street names.

Adoption Urged.

Reading a lengthy list of persons and organizations approving recommendations of the committee, Stockett pointed out that one of the principal requirements before Arlington County can have a central postoffice is a uniform street name and house numbering system.

Declaring that the Arlington County library in Clarendon is housed in inadequate quarters, Mrs. Nat Hynes, president, asked the board to appropriate funds for erection of a suitable building.

Mrs. Hynes presented tenative plans for a brick structure costing less than $4,000 on a portion of the site now occupied by the Clarendon Health Center. Chairman Lyman M. Kelley asked the matter be deferred until the budget is submitted.

Upon motion of Board Member C. B. Garnett, County Manager Braden and Commonwealth's Attorney Douglas were requested to make a study of such legislation needed to perfect the county manager form of government.

The semimonthly pay roll of $8,636.34 was approved.
